ERIC.

- 77796 Obv. + ERIC RE-X TO cross pattée in centre. R. IN-DEL-GAR MO in 2 lines divided by three crosses; above and below, a triangle of pellets (B.M.C., I, xxix, 11). RRR. V. F. 20 » »

The TO on the obverse is curious being suggestive of TOTIVS BRITANNIÆ but apparently Eric had no jurisdiction beyond Northumbria. In the year 948 he first arrived in England and was "received as King". It is just possible that he claimed Kingship over the whole land: if so this coin is significant.

OFFA (Mercia).

- 77797 Obv. + OFFA R-EX+, diademed bust of the King to right. R. EOLVALD in the angles of large cross with oval limbs springing from the large inner circle of which the cross forms a part. In centre, plain cross over a cross pommée (B.M.C., I, v, 12). A charming specimen, of extreme rarity. From the Evans coll. Found at Eastry. RRR. E. F. 22 10 »

COENVVLF.

- 77798 Obv. + COENVVLF REX. In centre, ᛞ. R. DYDÄ in the angles of a plain voided tribrach moline, a pellet in centre and at end of each limb (B.M.C., I, pl. IX, 2). RR. V. F. 4 » »
 77799 Obv. + COENVVLF REX. In centre ᛞ. R. EAPÄ in the angles of a voided tribrach moline with a beaded line down each limb (B.M.C., pl. IX, 1). Rare type and a rare moneyer. From the Evans collection. RRR. V. F. 8 » »

Hon. Lieutenant-Colonel. RR. 150 " "
- From the date of the departure of Havelock's Force from Allahabad for the relief of Lucknow, early in July 1857, until its entry on Sept. 25th, the above officer was practically engaged daily with the enemy either in pitched battles with his regiment or as a scout and skirmisher. Twelve severe actions were fought, and in all these he took part. In Lucknow he helped to storm a bridge and was the first man to dash into a masked battery. His rank in 1857, and that which he lately held is a sufficient indication of his meritorious services. Died in Ireland his native country, in January, 1900.

VARIA

MEDAL PRESENTED TO MR. J. DE LAGERBERG.

We have pleasure in giving an illustration of a Medal of which Mr. J. de Lagerberg, of New York, was lately the recipient. It was struck in Sweden, in recognition of his meritorious activity in Numismatics, and on September 1st was presented to him as a souvenir and token of esteem. The obverse shows the Lagerberg family crest with motto and below, R. MICHAUX; the inscription on the reverse was suggested by Professor Fr. L. Laffer, one of the most prominent numismatists in Sweden, and designed by Mr. Eric Lindberg, the well known Government coin and medal engraver.

VALUABLE NUMISMATIC GIFT TO THE CITY OF LEICESTER MUSEUM FROM COUNTY SUBSCRIBERS.

An oft-forgotten page in the history of ancient Leicester — when there was a Mint in the city — was recalled at an interesting presentation at the City Museum, on Saturday afternoon, when Sir Thomas Cope formally presented to the City a valuable collection of coins and tokens, on behalf of subscribers resident in the county.

The gift, which was purchased from the collection of the late Mr. J. Young, consisted of Anglo-Saxon and Norman pennies minted at Leicester and Chester, and a collection of Leicestershire and Rutland tradesmen's tokens of the 17th and 18th centuries.

Coins were first minted at Leicester in the time of Edgar (959). Chester pennies of Athelstan's time, 925 A.D., are known, but none so early for Leicester. Here the mint was at the North Gate, not at the North Bridge as supposed. No coins could be struck outside the walls of the city, and the North Bridge was outside. There was considerable confusion between the Leicester and Chester pennies until they were worked out by Montagu, the Chester pennies being those in which the name of the mint began with Lei or Lege, whilst those of Leicester were spelt Legr or Leh. The Leicester mint ceased in 1173 (temp. of Henry 2nd), when Leicester was besieged, a breach effected in the walls, and the town laid in ruins.

On each obverse is the King's name, and "Rex Anglorum" (King of the Angles). On each reverse is given the name of the Moneyer and the mint, e.g., "Leoppine on Lege" (Leoppine of Chester). There is usually an r in the spelling on the early equivalent for Leicester (Ligra, or Lehra Ceaster), by means of which the two mints may often be discriminated.

The coinage of Saxon times consisted of pennies and half-pennies, the earliest form being a sceat of silver, about 20 grs.; and there was a golden sceat of similar weight. The penny was introduced by King Offa of Mercia, and continued to be the main English coin, and was of original design. There were in Northumbria Stycas of copper or base silver about 670 A.D.

The so-called "Tradesmen's Tokens" originated in the reign of Edward IV., by merchants issuing coins of tin, pewter, etc., representing small amounts, such as farthings and halfpence, to supply the want of small money not met by the Royal issues. Tokens could only be exchanged for goods sold by the issuers, as a rule, but whenever the small copper currency ran short, tokens immediately sprang more prominently into use. This form of currency was finally abolished by Act of Parliament in 1817, which prohibited the manufacture, and compelled the issuers to take up all they had put into circulation by January 1st, 1818.

THE PRESENTATION.

Ald. C. Squire (chairman of the Museum, Art Gallery, and Library Committee) presided at the presentation ceremony, supported by the Mayor (Ald. J. Chaplin) and Sir Thomas Cope. Among those present were the Rev. S.T. Winckley, Ald. Hugh Goodacre, Colonel Bond, Major Freer, Dr. Sevestre, Dr. Astley Clarke, Mr. F. B. Lott, Mr. J.M. Gimson, Mr. Fosbrooke, and others.

Sir Thomas Cope said that Mr. Goodacre was the gentleman who should have made the presentation, as he had been instrumental in the purchase of the collection. Through the thoughtful intervention of Mr. Goodacre the Museum had also become possessed of a Roman coin, with the head of Titus engraved, and in an excellent state of preservation. He had great pleasure in handing over the collection, and hoped it would be of interest to visitors to the Museum, which was a constant source of instruction and delight.

PAPER FARTHINGS.

Paper "notes" representing 5s. pieces and half-crowns have been talked about, and the former — if not the latter — are, we are told, stored away in the archives of the Treasury ready for issue if deemed necessary.

Paper or cardboard farthings have, however, already made their appearance in the London suburbs. They are in the form of brown millboard, of the same size as a penny piece, and in the centre is printed "Voucher Representing $\frac{1}{4}$ d. Change," with the name and address of the tradesman issuing them around the edge.

They are, at the moment, issued by a firm of bakers to meet the shortage and "nuisance" of proper bronze farthings, but we should not be surprised to see the custom taken up by other tradesmen.

The Daily Chronicle, Dec. 2.

THE COINAGE PROBLEM. POSSIBLE SUBSTITUTES FOR SILVER.

(From a correspondent.)

The Council of the London Chamber of Commerce has recommended that, having regard to the present price of silver and the possible disappearance of the silver currency, the Government should prepare and have ready for issue when required a nickel coinage of the lower denominations instead of issuing notes of a lower value than 5 s.

The present price of silver is now well above the face value of our silver coins. Several awkward situations therefore arise. In the first place, while the Government buys silver and mints silver coins it loses on every piece coined. Secondly, it will pay unscrupulous people to melt down the silver coins of the realm into ingots, the silver in which would have a greater value than the coins used to produce them. The expense of separating the alloyed metals would have to be taken into account, but a considerable quantity of silver coinage would very probably be lost in this way in course of time.

There may also be a tendency on the part of many individuals to hoard silver coins. The realization that a half-crown, for example, is really worth, say, 2 s. 9 d., is an incentive to many people to put by a little store of such coins. This helps to accentuate the shortage of silver currency which will soon make itself felt. Meantime, if the Government has to continue to coin silver to replace these accumulated leakages, it will be a very expensive business, not only on account of the loss on the transaction of converting silver bars into coins, but because the continuous demand will still further enhance the market price.

NICKEL ALLOYS.

The recommendation of the London Chamber of Commerce is that the Government should prepare and have ready for issue nickel sixpences, shillings, and half-crowns. The so-called nickel coins of the United States and many other countries consist of an alloy of about 25 per cent. nickel and 75 per cent. copper. A sixpence or shilling of this alloy having approximately its face value would be extremely heavy and inconvenient to handle. In coins of pure nickel this objection is not so great, though pure nickel coins are not usually made with a greater face value than about 2 d.

Doubtless the London Chamber of Commerce, in its reference to a nickel coinage, does not mean either the ordinary "nickel" coinage-alloy, consisting of one part nickel and three parts copper or pure nickel. The Chamber probably refers to the alloy which was suggested in the Bill which was drafted some time ago for the decimalization of the British coinage. (This was dealt with in The Times Trade Supplement of February, 1917.) The composition of the alloy then proposed for the new "nickel" coins was 22 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. nickel, 60 per cent. silver, and 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. zinc.

If this is a correct assumption, the meaning of the recommendation is therefore that coins — sixpences, shillings, and half-crown — of approximately the same size as those at present in circulation should be struck, but consisting of only 60 per cent. silver, or roughly rather less than two-thirds the present face value. This seems to be quite a feasible proposition.

PURE NICKEL COINS.

Pure nickel has been used for coinage in the country which was formerly Austria-Hungary since 1892. No less than 560 million pure nickel coins were estimated to be current in Austria-Hungary in 1914, the face value being 20 hellers and 10 hellers. Other countries in which pure nickel coins are used are Italy, France, Mexico, Siam, Switzerland, and Turkey.

Pure nickel coins are hard and of fine colour, but the metal is less easy to mint than the cheaper alloy of 25 per cent. nickel and 75 per cent. copper, which is commonly used. True nickel coin can be easily identified by means of a magnet, whereas the ordinary "nickel" (made of the 1 : 3 nickel-copper alloy) is entirely unaffected even by a powerful electro-magnet. The harder the coin the less wear occurs in use. In respect of hardness, therefore, nickel coins have an advantage.

NICKEL-BRONZE COINAGE.

The use of nickel for coinage purposes is extremely ancient. Before the Christian era nickel was used in coins of the Bactrian King Euthydemus, 235 B. C.

The countries which now use a nickel-bronze coinage include Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Bulgaria, Egypt, Germany, India, Japan, Korea, Persia, Rumania, Switzerland, the United States, Uruguay, etc. Coins of nickel alloy or nickel-bronze have been made in the London Mint for many years past for Jamaica, West and East Africa, Ceylon and British Honduras. In the year 1914 over 38 million nickel pieces were struck for British colonies and Protectorates. It will be noted, however, that these coins were of nickel-copper alloy containing only 25 per cent. of nickel.

NICKEL IN ONTARIO.

If nickel is adopted for coinage purposes in this country and to a greater extent than heretofore in India and other silver-using British Dependencies it will involve the increased utilization of an important Empire product, because about four-fifths of the world's supply of nickel is produced from ores mined and smelted in Ontario, Canada. The only other country producing nickel in important quantities is the French colony of New Caledonia. The nickel-copper ores of Sudbury, Ontario, are first smelted to a matte containing about 80 per cent. of the combined metals. Formerly this matte was sent abroad to the United States and to Great Britain for refining, but now the refining of nickel has been firmly established as an important industry in the Dominion.

COBALT COINS.

The use of cobalt coinage for Canada has been suggested as an avenue for the employment of cobalt which is contained in the silver-cobalt ores of Ontario in larger quantities than can be marketed. The proposal for the employment of cobalt in the coinage of Canada was to replace the five-cent silver piece, which is very small and inconvenient to handle. It was suggested that this should be replaced by a coin of pure cobalt intermediate in size between the 10-cent and 25-cent nickel pieces, which would have the advantage of being readily distinguishable from all other coins. It would be attractive in appearance, being similar in colour to pure nickel, but somewhat more silvery. Its hardness would render it unlikely to be counterfeited. The question of substituting a cobalt coin for our silver threepenny piece would be worth consideration.

Workable cobalt ores are found in Canada, New Caledonia, the United States (Missouri), the Belgian Congo, and Germany, but the silver-cobalt ores of Ontario are by far the most important and supply practically the whole of the world's demands. Canada's output of cobalt metal in 1917 was 175 tons (not including cobalt in stellite, or cobalt oxide and salts). This output could readily be multiplied three or four fold.

GOLD V. PAPER MONEY.
EFFECT OF CURRENCY INFLATION.

Gold has been sold for export during the past week at the exceptionally high price of 103 s. 6 d. per fine oz. This compares with the normal price of 85 s., the equivalent of 77 s. 10½ d. per standard oz. (the standard oz. is made up of eleven-twelfths of fine gold and one-twelfth of alloy), which is the price the Mint pays for gold for coinage purposes.

The difference between 85 s. per oz. and 103 s. per oz., which gold is now realizing, is the difference between the value of gold money and paper money, 85 s. of gold money being the equivalent of 103 s. of paper money. The English Coinage Act of 1870 fixes the weight of gold contained in the sovereign at 113.001 grains of fine (pure) gold or 123.274 grains of standard gold. Thus every troy oz. of standard gold contains sufficient gold to make £3 17s. 10½ d. of gold sovereigns, and 1 oz. of pure gold makes £4 5s. worth of sovereigns. The weight of gold in a sovereign being fixed by law, the price of gold must necessarily also be fixed, and it cannot be changed except by legislation. Put in another way, the price of gold, in gold, of 1 oz. of gold is 1 oz. of gold.

In the following table are given the foreign equivalents, in gold, of the British sovereign as fixed by the respective Mint laws of the different gold standard countries:—

France and the Latin Union.....	£ 1—25 f. 22
Denmark and Scandinavia.....	£ 1—18 k. 15
Germany.....	£ 1—20 m. 43
Spain.....	£ 1—25 p. 22
Holland.....	£ 1—12 fl. 10
Austria.....	£ 1—24 k. 02
United States.....	£ 1—\$ 4.86 $\frac{2}{3}$ c.
Argentina.....	£ 1—$ 5.54
Uruguay.....	£ 1—$ 4.70

It should be clearly understood these are the prices in foreign gold (not paper) currencies of one English gold sovereign. These prices are fixed, and can only be altered by law. They represent the Mint par of exchange, and with gold freely obtainable in these countries these values can fluctuate within only very narrow limits, since if, for instance, the New York exchange fell, to say, \$ 4.75 c., it would be cheaper to send gold to the United States and get \$ 4.86 $\frac{2}{3}$ c. for each sovereign's worth of gold (123.274 grains standard) than to pay £ 1 here for only \$ 4.75 c. in New York.

OUTPUT OF PAPER MONEY.

But the exchange values of currencies fluctuate enormously if the currency is inconvertible paper—i.e., paper money not readily convertible into gold. During the five war years all the principal countries of the world have been making paper money in enormous quantities, with the result that in these countries the amount of paper currency has, in the aggregate, been increased about five times, as the following table shows:—

FALL IN VALUE OF PAPER.

Thus we have in the 12 principal countries of Europe, Japan, and the United States about £ 5,914,000,000 of paper money, as against £ 1,201,800,000 at the end of 1914, when the printing press had already got actively to work and increased the total as at the end of 1913 by something like 500 millions. As the reserve of gold of the State banks in the same period has increased from £ 575,000,000 to £ 1,106,000,000, it follows that the proportion of gold to paper has fallen heavily. In the countries where the excess is very marked, it is of less value than gold money. At the present time £ 1 of English paper currency is worth in American gold money only \$ 4.01 $\frac{1}{4}$, though £ 1 of English gold money is always worth in American gold money \$ 4.86 $\frac{2}{3}$, a value which is fixed by the respective mint laws of the two countries. There can be no change in the gold price of the English gold sovereign except by law, but the value of the English paper pound, so long as it is inconvertible into gold on demand, fluctuates according to the supply of paper pounds.

A buyer of gold here, by shipping it to New York, gets \$ 4.86 $\frac{2}{3}$ for every £ 1, because the gold contents of both is the same; but he can sell the dollars for paper pounds at \$ 4.01 $\frac{1}{4}$, and the difference between the two prices, about 21 per cent., represents the shipper's profit. This is what the gold producers are now doing under the arrangement made with the Bank of England in July. A £ 1 currency note is worth in American gold dollars, at the present rate of exchange, less than 16 s. Thus for every sovereign's worth of gold that a South African gold producer sends to America he can purchase more than a £ 1 currency note; in fact, he gets about 24 s. in currency notes for each sovereign's worth of gold.

EFFECT OF INDIAN EMBARGO.

The paper price of gold would probably be much higher than it is were the embargo on private exports of gold to India abolished. At the present time the Indian Government acquires all the gold imported into India, and it fixes the price paid in rupees according to the discount on sterling in New York. At present it is paying 11 rupees 2 annas for the sovereign, which at 2 s. 2 d. to the rupee is equivalent to 24 s. 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. per sovereign. But towards the end of October the price of gold in the Indian bazaars was 17 rupees to the sovereign, and at an earlier date it had been 20 rupees. Taking the rupee in October at 2 s., the paper price of gold in India was 34 s. per sovereign. It is obvious that if the Indian market were freed then the gold available in the market each week would be sold to India. This would result in a reduction of gold shipments to New York, and cause the American exchange to fall still further. The Indian embargo on gold imports therefore tends to reduce the real difference between the value of gold and paper money.

PROSPECTS OF THE GOLD MARKET.

In the United States there is no difference between the value of the paper currency and the gold currency, since the former is convertible into the latter. The paper price of gold can only exceed the gold price in those countries where the supply of paper money is so much in excess of the supply of gold as to render it impossible to make the former freely convertible. An appreciation of the bearing of these points may help the public to realize that the rise in the paper price of gold is due to the excess issue of paper money.

It is difficult to say how long the paper price of gold will continue to be higher than the gold price. For a period of four years after the close of the Napoleonic wars the paper price of gold was higher than the mint price. How long it will now remain above the gold price will depend upon the measures which are taken to regulate the future issue of paper currency, and thereby to set some limit on further credit expansion. The funding or the floating debt and the stoppage of Government borrowing will reduce the demand for currency and facilitate the restoration of a free gold market — the convertibility of the note. When the paper currency note is freely convertible the premium on gold will automatically disappear. In currency reform, and consequent credit restriction, lies the real cure of profiteering, for profiteering, such as we have witnessed during the war, arose out of, and was actually rendered possible by, the inflation of the currency.

The Times, Dec. 1st.

THE ANTIQUITY OF PAPER MONEY.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir, — In view of the extraordinary quantity not only of paper money but of all kinds of base metal and other substitutes for true money which the exigencies of war have put into circulation all over the world, it may be of interest to recall the following early historical occasions on which these substitutes have been launched.

Mommsen (I., 506) states the Carthaginians possessed a token money, worthless in itself, and that the Romans in A.D. 91 issued a silver-plated copper money, of which the currency was enforced (II., 405). During the first Crusade the Doge of Venice had money cut out of leather (Romanin: "Storia documentata di Venezia", Venice, 1853, II., 46); and in the Siege of Faenza (A.D. 1241) Frederick II. paid his troops in stamped pieces of leather (Amari: "Storia dei musulmani in Sicilia", Florenz, 1868: III., 816). The Arabians in 1147 in Syria made their payments in printed paper money (Papyrus Rainer). In Persia in the thirteenth century, and in North India and Japan in the fourteenth, a fruitless attempt was made to coin gilt-faced copper with enforced currency. Marco Polo (1270-1295) is surprised to find that the Customs in China and all other payments are liquidated with paper money (Yule I., 409). This money consisted of mulberry bast for large amounts, also of silk, printed in red and black, with the stamp of the Grand Khan; its currency was enforced, and every man had to accept it on pain of death. Such paper money was known since A.D. 975, and since 1155 was in regular use, and is mentioned by the Brabant monk, Ruisbroeck (called Rubruquis), who travelled in East Asia 18 years before Marco Polo. There is humour in Marco Polo's description of the Emperor's Mint, in the City of Cambaluc, where he possessed the secret of Alchemy, and converted the Bark, or rather the Bast, of Mulberry Trees into what might, but for the pun, be called Bastard money, resembling black paper, and representing, according to size, Tornesels, Groats, and Bezants (a Bezant equals 10 s. 6 d. or 11 s.). The issue of paper money in China began in the ninth century. By 1160 Government paper money, equal in value to nearly 44 million ounces of silver, had been issued in six years. The Mongols began to issue paper money in 1236. Pauthier ("La Chine") informs us from Chinese sources that Kublai-Khan was the first to issue paper money in enormous quantities, and within 34 years put into circulation tokens of the nominal value of £125,000,000, and brought on a great commercial crisis, leading to the fall of the Mongolian dynasty.

For these notes I am indebted to Yule's "Marco Polo" and Lippmann's "History of Sugar".

Yours obediently,

A. FORBES SIEVEKING.

GREEK COINS.

COINS OF THE CITIES VISITED BY ST. PAUL

PAPHOS.

The name of this city is familiar to many who in school days read how Virgil told us "Venus winged her way to high Paphos, and with joy revisited her seats, where sacred to her honour was a temple, and a hundred altars smoked with Sabeian incense, and were fragrant with fresh garlands". (Æn., I, 415.) And again in the tenth Book Venus asks Jupiter to let the boy Ascanius be preserved saying "Amathus is mine, lofty Paphos and Cythera... there let him spend his days". In the Odyssey of Homer (VIII, 362) we read how "laughter loving Aphrodite went to Paphos of Cyprus where is her precinct and fragrant altar".

Horace invoked Venus to leave Paphos and come to him, and Æschylus (Supp., 556) tells us the women swear by the Paphian Venus.

Throughout the long period of about 770 years, during which money was coined in Cyprus, the image or symbols of this goddess appeared as types on the coinage. The cult of a female deity was, from the earliest period known to us, common along the shores of the Eastern Mediterranean sea. Little clay figures of very rude workmanship are found in excavations both in Crete and Cyprus, all of which are very similar showing the hands of the goddess placed upon her breast.

The difference between the Greek conception of Aphrodite, and the older eastern Astarte or queen of heaven, consists in the Greeks regarding her as an earth goddess of fertility, and the Phoenicians as a moon or stellar divinity.

The immoral nature of this cult was due to the eastern influence, and the result was naturally a general deterioration of the mental capacity and bodily physique of the Cyprians, who in consequence were called by the Greeks Cyprian bulls. As an illustration of this miserable state we may take the description of a king of Neo Paphos in Athenæus (VI) taken from a lost comedy of Antiphanes.

Under the kings of Paphos the people were ruled by the family of the Cinyradæ whose ancestors claimed to have introduced the cult of the goddess.

The family ruled not only in Paphos but all through the island wherever the cult was established, and their rule did not end until Ptolemy expelled them. Eusebius mentions a legend that the town of Paphos was founded by Israelites expelled from Palestine in the time of the first Judge Athaniel.

In the old Testament we read of the Chittim or Kittim who are identified by Josephus (Ant., I, vi, 1) with the Cyprians, and he mentions Citium as a town named after them. Bishop Epiphanius of Salamis regarded the Kittim as dwellers not only in Cyprus but also in other islands as Rhodes. Herodotus (VII, 90), says the Phoenicians planted many colonies in the island. The Phoenicians were joined by Canaanitish refugees who brought with them their goddess of the Moon, Atergatis; this may be the origin of the legend told by Eusebius.

In the days of king Solomon Cyprus was ruled by Tyre; and in the days of Sargon by the Assyrians in 709 B.C. The Kittim were of the Greek race whereas the Phoenicians were descendants of Ham.

Inscriptions found at Citium (Larnaka) although written in Phoenician letters are composed in a Greek dialect. We can understand from these legends of the early settlements in the island the rapid growth of Greek culture. There is evidence that the sculptors of Paphos were celebrated for their skill, in an inscription on a marble slab at Neo Paphos describing a statue by Zenodotus, who claimed to work in the style of Phidias. The name Paphos is generally used by prose writers of Neo Paphos whereas the poets used the name of Old Paphos. Old Paphos is now called Kukla or Konuklia.

The old city was about a mile and a half from the sea, near the mouth of the little river Bocarus, which is represented on some of the early coins.

The old temple was destroyed by an earthquake in the time of Vespasian who rebuilt it and represented it on his coins. New Paphos is now called Baffa and lies 7 or 8 miles north of the old city.

Pausanias (VIII, 5, 3) relates that the new city was founded by Agapenor who after his departure from Troy landed at that spot and built a temple to Aphrodite. This city like the older one suffered from earthquakes and Dion Cassius relates that Augustus restored it. Tacitus records that Titus, son of Vespasian, visited Paphos about 69 A.D. (Hist., II, 2, 3).

The earliest coins of Paphos in the British Museum are Staters, Tetrobols and Obols of about 480 B.C. of the Persic standard struck by an uncertain King whose name began with the letters Pasi...? The obverse type is a human-headed bull kneeling, and on the obols the forepart of the same creature kneeling or swimming. The bull was a symbol of the river Bokaros. The reverse type was an astragalus or knuckle-bone used as dice, the best throw of which was called "Aphrodite", or "jactus Veneris".

The type of the Bull was continued in 460 B.C., but the reverse was an eagle's head in a dotted incuse square. The Bull and the eagle continued to be used as types in the middle of the fifth century and again in the second half of that century.

About 385 B.C. on the coins probably struck by Timocharis the old types were changed, and we find on the obverse Zeus seated on a throne, and on the reverse Aphrodite-Nemesis standing to front holding a branch of apple in her left hand, and in her right a phiale.

A bust of Aphrodite occurs on a tetrobol of about 360 B.C. struck by some king of uncertain name. On the reverse is her symbol a dove flying to right.

On a stater of about 400 B.C. her head is on the Obv., and a dove standing, on the Reverse.

This type was continued to about 332 B.C. when the types usual on Alexander the Great's coins took the place of the older types.

COINS ISSUED IN CYPRUS UNDER THE ROMANS.

Those interested in the coins which were seen and used by St. Paul and his companions must remember that not only the few copper coins now known to us from the specimens in Museums were then in use but also the ordinary denarii of Augustus and Tiberius, and the larger silver coins of the Ptolemies.

The Imperial coinage extends from Augustus to Caracalla and Geta, and the most common types of the Reverse are the figures of Zeus Salaminios and the temple of Paphos.

The partition of the Provinces occurred in the year 27 B.C. some coins bearing the consulship designate of the Emperor shew they were issued in that year.

In the year 22 B.C. the province was returned to the Senate and those coins bearing PRO COS were struck after that date. The Roman governors of Cyprus then were Proprators with the title of Proconsuls and were assisted with a Legatus and a Quæstor. Augustus died in 14 A.D. so coins with his name were issued during forty one years. These Cyprian coins of Augustus however are very rarely found and few in good condition.

There are only three Reverse types of Augustus.

1. Nike advancing to left with wreath on right hand and palm in left.
2. Temple of Aphrodite with cone and two candelabra at sides.
3. Zeus Salaminios standing holding phiale and sceptre.

It is proposed to give detailed account of the Roman coinage of Cyprus in the next number of the Circular.

The coins are of more interest to students of ancient numismatics than to collectors of whom few are able to acquire any coins of Cyprus.

GREEK COINS FOR THE NATION.

MASTERPIECES FROM THE WEBER COLLECTION.

Some specimens of extraordinary beauty as well as historical interest from the late Sir Hermann Weber's collection of Greek coins have been secured for the British Museum, partly by a Government grant, partly by private generosity. It is hoped that other treasures of the collection will be obtained by funds contributed privately.

The collection is one of the most remarkable ever made by an amateur. Sir Hermann was a student as well as a collector, and his cabinet contained not only pieces of great rarity and beauty, but an immense series of coins useful, and often indispensable, to the specialist in classifying and studying the history of the monetary issues of ancient Greece. It was highly desirable that an effort should be made to secure at least a portion of this collection for the nation. The British Museum, its funds depleted by the years of war, during which its purchase grant had been suspended, would have been helpless, had not the Government come to the rescue with a special grant. The National Art Collections Fund and some friends of the Museum (among whom may be mentioned two members of Sir Hermann's family, Dr. F. Parkes Weber and Mrs. Ernest Schuster, as well as Mr. W. H. Woodward) also made contributions to the special purchase fund. The holders of the collection, Messrs. Spink and Son, placed it at the disposal of the Museum authorities, who have thus been able to secure a small selection of the most important pieces, though by no means all that might be desired.

It is impossible without illustration and detailed description to give an adequate idea of the quality of the new acquisitions. But it must be recorded that the Museum acquires at a stroke five gold coins issued by Lampsacus in Asia Minor in the fourth century B.C. and ranking, small as they are, among the most beautiful productions of Greek art. Two of these, with the designs of a Victory sacrificing a ram and a head of the goddess Hera, are unique specimens of their respective types, and if sold by auction would probably have created a "record". The contribution of the National Art Collections Fund secured a superb coin of Cnidus in Asia Minor, with a head of Aphrodite in all probability inspired by, and certainly not unworthy of, the masterpiece of Praxiteles. The already rich Museum series of electrum or pale gold coins, which were issued from Cyzicus, on the Sea of Marmora, as a kind of international currency, is increased by four brilliant specimens, representing an archaic head of the hero Perseus, a lion breaking a spear in his jaws, a lioness, and an eagle. The city of Smyrna had a plentiful coinage in the Hellenistic and Roman Age; but Sir Hermann possessed the only relic of its mint in the fifth century. That, too, a fine silver coin with a severe head of Apollo, and a lyre as its reverse type, has passed into the Museum.

A singularly interesting coin (one of the only two extant specimens) from the Sicilian mint of Himera represents the hero Pelops in his chariot, and the nymph of the locality — a charming draped figure in the graceful archaic style of the early fifth century. The coins we have mentioned are all, with one exception, of Asia Minor, but the acquisitions range over the whole of the Greek world from the seventh century B.C. to the third century after Christ.

What the British Museum has so far acquired is, as has been said, but a portion of what ought to be secured. A number of coins, of great importance and beauty, have been definitely released: they will doubtless, for the most part, find their way to Paris or America. Nevertheless, there is still, thanks to the public spirit of the holders of the collection, a possibility of the acquisition by the nation of a large remainder, if only funds can be obtained from private sources. But, whatever happens, some advantage will have been taken of the greatest opportunity of adding to the national collection of Greek coins that has occurred since the sale of the Montagu cabinet in 1896 and 1897.

R. — Legend: — ONE PENNY. The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the plumes on Britannia's helmet and the head of her trident. Emblem of Britannia looking to the right. The figure is wearing a helmet adorned with plumes. Some of her long thick wavy hair rests on her right shoulder. An ornament round her neck with each end terminating in a scroll. She is draped in a long flowing robe with an ornament on each shoulder and fastened on the breast with a clasp and at the waist by a garnished girdle. She is seated upon a rock with the sea in front and behind. Her right hand rests on a convex oval shield which leans against the rock, her thumb touching the space between the cross of Saint George and the cross of Saint Patrick in the first quarter of the shield. The shield bears the cross of Saint George and the saltires of Saint Andrew, and Saint Patrick, united, but not heraldically coloured. Her left hand firmly grasps a plain trident. On her right foot a sandal. The rock on which she is seated is cut off by a straight line, forming an exergue, containing the date, 1902. The whole within an ornamented rim.

Below, on the left, the inscription, in two lines: — 10 | PIASTRES, and on the right, in Arabic characters, the inscription, in two lines: — 10 | PIASTRES with ornamentation between and above the inscriptions. A branch of leaves on the left and another on the right, the lower portions of the branches being crossed and tied together by ribbon formed into a bow with hanging parts. Below the crossed branches the date, 1916, on the left, and the Hegira date, 1335, on the right. The whole within a plain circle, encompassed by a beaded circle, which is encircled by a plain rim.

E. — Milled with straight lines.

Similar coins are dated 1917, but the Hegira date is 1335 (A. D. 1916).

Similar coins but with the initials H. R. on the ribbon bow on the obverse omitted are dated 1917, but the Hegira date is 1335 (A. D. 1916), and the mint mark H (Heaton) without serifs, is between the hanging parts of the ribbon on the reverse.

GUADALOUPE.

DURING BRITISH OCCUPATION, 1810-1816.

EIGHT REALES, 1793.

Spanish Eight Reales dated 1793, with an approximate square perforation, with crenated edges. The imperfect coin is counter-marked on the obverse and reverse with a capital G with the Royal Crown above it.

TWO LIVRES FIVE SOUS.

One of the pieces of a Spanish Eight Reales which had been cut into four approximately equal parts, countermarked with a capital G, with a crown above it, in each of its three angles.

This coin is said to have been current in Guadeloupe during the British occupation, for Two Livres, Five Sous. A Livre was equivalent to Twenty-four Sous.

GUERNSEY.

TWO DOUBLES, 1914.

O. — Legend: — GUERNESEY below a plain shield heraldically coloured, bearing three leopards passant guardant and surmounted by a sprig of nine laurel leaves. The whole within a beaded circle encompassed by a plain rim.

R. — Inscription, on three lines: — 2 | DOUBLES | 1914. The mint mark H (Heaton) below the date. The whole within a beaded circle encompassed by a plain rim.

E. — Plain.

MARTINIQUE.

DURING BRITISH OCCUPATION, 1809-1814.

EIGHT REALES, 1748.

Mexican Eight Reales (Mexico City Mint) of Ferdinand the Sixth, dated 1748, with a heart shaped perforation with a plain edge, and a dentated ornamentation on the obverse and reverse, around it.

TWO REALES, 1742.

Mexican Two Reales (Mexico City Mint) of Philip the Fifth, dated 1742, with a heart shaped perforation with a plain edge, and a dentated ornamentation on the obverse and reverse, around it.

ZANZIBAR.

MEDAL OF SHAKESPEARE.

Probably by Richard Yeo R. A. (?—1779). Foundation member of the Royal Academy. — Mentioned in the Catalogue of the Royal Mint Museum.

Obv. Bust of Shakespeare. Profile to r.

Leg. GULIELMUS SHAKSPEARE.

2" Copper. From the unfinished die, or matrix, in the Royal Mint, now injured from corrosion on forehead, nose, and breast.

This impression is probably unique. An electrotype was kindly struck, Dec. 1917, by the courtesy of J. W. Cawston, Esq. C. B., Deputy Master and Comptroller of the Mint, for the Collection of Shakespeare medals and tokens formed by M. H. Spielmann, a catalogue of which it is intended in due course to issue.

A Memorandum by the Curator, Mr. J. W. Hocking, F. R. N. S., points out that the die gives evidence of having been engraved in the Mint, probably about the middle of the 18th century. Of the three principal engravers then working there — (James Dassier, S. Tanner, and Richard Yeo — the latter, Assistant-engraver, 1749, and Chief-engraver, 1775-1779) — Yeo, the engraver of the Culloden medal and of a Shakespeare intaglio, is the likeliest author: but the available evidence is slight. Mr. Hocking thinks that the medal may have been intended for issue in connection with the Shakespeare Bicentenary in 1764.

These two strikes are probably the only ones taken from the die. The head is very sweetly and elegantly engraved, but without suggestion of force. The skull is very bald, with a short fringe of curls of hair growing towards the nape of the neck. The nose is long, straight, and well shaped. The mouth, with a moustache on the upper lip, is delicate and sensitive. There is no whisker, and the beard is thin, straight, and short. Although the medal is inspired by the Chandos portrait there is no ear-ring, but the soft falling collar, and the tassels to the "ends" introduced by later engravers and by Ozias Humphrey in his miniatures of Shakespeare, together with the doublet with "wings", are retained. The arm is truncated. Though by no means strong, it is a beautiful, intellectual, and extremely refined representation of the poet.

It may be conjectured that the excessive baldness at the back of the neck as adopted by the medallist may have given rise to criticism and induced him to abandon his work; otherwise some other engraver would presumably have taken it up and finished it — supposing that the artist had simply been forced to lay it aside through pressure of more important or more urgent calls.

NUMISMATA MISCELLANEA.

8. AUSTRALIAN BRONZE COINAGE.

A highly valued Australian correspondent writes to me as follows:—

"On Tuesday, June 10th, 1919, at the invitation of the Deputy Master of the Royal Mint, Sydney, New South Wales, Lady Davidson coined the first bronze halfpenny for the Australian Government. The alloy used was supplied by Australian producers. Prior to 1919, all bronze coins in use in Australia were minted in London, Birmingham, and Calcutta. Recently the Government decided to make all Australian coinage in Australia and the pennies will be minted in the Royal Mint, Melbourne, and the halfpennies in the Royal Mint, Sydney".

9. AUSTRALIAN TOKENS.

Some years ago a most interesting series of articles on "Trade Tokens and the Firms who Issued Them", by Mr. Frank Gardner, were printed in "The Australian Storekeepers and Traders' Journal", published at 237, Collins Street, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia. The first article appeared on May 31st, 1910 (Volume XVII, Number 5). I am indebted to my old and valued friend Mr. Harry Fentiman for kindly supplying me with this information.

10. BRITISH HONDURAS COINAGE.

An esteemed correspondent in British Honduras kindly reports the issue of the copper-nickel five cents dated 1918, and the bronze cent dated 1918.

11. BRITISH INDIAN COPPER-NICKEL COINAGE.

An esteemed correspondent in India kindly informs me that the Half Rupee and Quarter Rupee have been coined in copper-nickel owing to the high price of silver. The coins are of a different design and are stamped with their value in Aunas on the reverse.

12. CHILEAN COINAGE.

A Decree was issued in December, 1907, authorising the coining of a million dollars in nickel Ten Cents and Five Cents, in the Santiago Mint, but a correspondent in Chile kindly informs me that they were never issued.

13. SWISS BRASS COINAGE.

The Swiss Government was compelled to relinquish coining nickel and copper-nickel pieces during a period of the Great War of 1914-1918, owing to the difficulty of obtaining nickel. They used brass, an alloy of copper and zinc, from which excellent golden coloured coins of the value of Five Centimes and Ten Centimes were minted. I am indebted to my old and valued friend Mr. Leonard Forrer for kindly supplying me with this information.

14. SYDNEY MINT.

A much esteemed Australian correspondent kindly sends the following interesting information concerning the building which is now the Royal Mint, Sydney:—

Of the three buildings that formed the original General Hospital of the period when Major-General Lachlan Macquarie was Governor of New South Wales (1809-1822), two remain, somewhat altered from their original appearance. One, the State Parliament House, was intended for the principal surgeon's quarters, with that of two staff surgeons. The centre building has gone, and on its site is Sydney Hospital. The third, the Sydney Mint, was built for the assistant surgeons, purveyor, and apothecary. The foundation-stone of these buildings was laid on October 30th, 1811, with great ceremony. On January 18th, 1816, Governor Macquarie and his wife gave a ball in one of the wards of the old building before it was complete to celebrate the Queen's birthday. The site occupied by it included seven acres, of which one acre had been a grant to Mr. John Blaxland, and was given by his wife at the urgent request of Mrs. Macquarie, for the hospital, on the promise of compensation, which was not received until Governor Darling's time, when £ 400 was paid to Mr. John Blaxland. The southern building, now the Royal Mint, was, in July, 1845, transferred to the directors of the Sydney Infirmary, and in 1853 taken for a Mint. A place of historic memories, indeed, this — where justice was administered, Councils sat, and the first Parliament in Australia was held, where men who have long passed from among us framed the laws of our Constitution, whose names are now revered, not only in this State but throughout Australia; where meetings, serious and frivolous, took place; where the sick were cared for, and where sorrows and joys have passed side by side.

15. UKRAINE CURRENCY.

I referred in a previous part of the "Numismatic Circular" (May-June, 1919, Column 238) to the issue of card currency in the Ukraine, a republic in the south of Russia.

I recently obtained some further information on the subject, and the following values of postage stamp designs all characteristically Russian, and by native artists, were printed in Odessa, in the year 1919, on plain card, and then perforated, so as to be easily separated, and used in lieu of metallic currency, owing to the shortage of silver and copper coins.

FIFTY CHAGIVES. — Numeral of value surmounted by a shield bearing two interlaced posthorns.

FORTY CHAGIVES. — A triform device representing a sacred candelabrum in the cathedral of Saint Sophia, Kieff.

THIRTY CHAGIVES. — A Russian conception of the head of Liberty.

TWENTY CHAGIVES. — A representation of a Russian peasant.

TEN CHAGIVES. — A triform device representing a sacred candelabrum in the cathedral of Saint Sophia, Kieff.

16. WALES AND THE ROYAL ARMS, AND COINAGE.

A representative meeting was held in the City Hall, Cardiff, on May 30th, 1919, with a view to resuscitating the movement which was postponed owing to the great war, to secure the representation of Wales on the Royal Arms and on the British Imperial coinage. The Lord Mayor (Mr. A. C. Kirk) presided. After discussion it was agreed to call a Welsh national conference of all municipal and county authorities, Lords Lieutenant, Welsh Members of Parliament, and the Professors of the University Colleges of Aberystwyth, Bangor and Cardiff. The first meeting of the Advisory Committee was held in the City Hall, Cardiff on Wednesday, October 8th, 1919.

Henry GARSIDE.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE N. F. COINAGE.

Walton-on-Thames, 24. Dec. 19.

To the Editors of The Numismatic Circular,

Sirs,

I am obliged to Mr. Goodacre for the letter which appeared in your November issue, and hope that we have, between us, done something to establish a numismatic fact.

As to his remaining question, whether the issue was of later date than the Augustan series, I think the evidence is not in favour of an affirmative answer.

There is nothing in the types employed to suggest that they were issued after the deaths of the ladies whose effigies they bear. The veil is not used, and though the reverse type would not be unsuitable for a commemorative coin, I do not recall any instance of its use in such a manner.

The early part of the Fourth Century was particularly fertile in examples of commemorative coins, on which various methods (always unmistakable) of indicating their character were adopted.

These N. F. coins follow none of such methods nor of those in earlier use. Again, commemorative coins would hardly attribute to the persons commemorated a rank lower than the highest that they had attained in their lifetime. I think, too, that, even Mr. Goodacre's suggestion that the N.F. coins are bolder and better modelled than those of the Augustan series, is, in effect, against him, as indicating an earlier, rather than a later date. Considering the circumstances of Fausta's death, it cannot be supposed that her memory would have been honoured during the life of her husband, and the style of the coins is certainly superior to that which set in shortly after his death. I still therefore, believe that M. Maurice has rightly dated these coins.

Yours faithfully,
PERCY H. WEBB.

OLD TOWN MARKS ON COIN WEIGHTS.

12th January. 1920.

To the Editors of The Numismatic Circular.

Gentlemen,

Perhaps you may like to insert :

"The old Town Marks for Coin and other weights would, if tabulated, form a valuable clue in many cases to the unidentified marks on old English provincial silver, such, for instance, as the Catherine Wheel of Yorkshire, and the fleur de lys mark of the Eastern Counties."

Yours truly,
W.V. MORTEN.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

ROYAL NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Dec. 18 : Sir Henry H. Howorth, K.C.I.E., F.R.S., Vice President in the Chair :

Mr. Garside exhibited a set of the nickel coinage of Jamaica for 1918 with the mint-mark C for the Ottawa Mint, the first issue of these coins not struck at the Royal Mint in London.

Mr. G.F. Hill read a paper entitled "The Mint of Crosraguel Abbey" written by Dr. George Macdonald who was unable to be present.

Recent excavations at Crosraguel ("Crossregal") Abbey, a Cluniac foundation in Ayrshire, founded in 1244, and endowed by the Scottish kings with extraordinary privileges, resulted in the discovery in a latrine-drain of a large number of small objects, some of a miscellaneous nature, others evidently the remains of a local mint : large quantities of small tags of brass, needles, portions of thin sheets, &c., as well as objects and pieces of copper and lead, together with 197 coins of billon, bronze or copper and brass. The coins are (A) contemporary imitations of pennies of James III and IV, and farthings of James IV, including 20 which are combination of the obverse of one type with the reverse of another; (B) 51 copper pennies bearing a cross on one side and a regal orb on the other, and the inscriptions Jacobus Dei Gra. Rex and Crux Pellit omne crimen variously abbreviated; (C) 88 copper or brass farthings, of types not hitherto known, inscribed Moneta Pauperum. The imitations of class (A) are the "black money" known from record. The pennies of class (B) are almost exclusively found in Scotland, though they have hitherto been attributed to one or other James of Aragon. They were clearly minted at Crosraguel, the types having a punning significance. They and the farthings are the only known instance in Great Britain of an Abbey coinage, such as is very frequent on the Continent, e.g. at Cluny. The inscription Moneta Pauperum shows that the coins were intended to provide small change for the especial benefit of the poor like the seventeenth century tokens. The mint was probably suppressed by James IV. In the discussion that followed, Mr. C.R. Peers, Mr. Lawrence, Mr. Grueber, Miss Farquhar, Colonel Morrieson and Sir Henry Howorth took part.

Jan. 15th. Prof. C. Oman, M.P., President, and later Sir Henry H. Howorth, K.C.I.E., Vice-President in the Chair. Mr. W.H. Woodward was elected a Fellow of the Society :

Mr. L.G.P. Messenger exhibited the 20 and 10 cent pieces silver 1919 of the Straits Settlements and the one cent 1919 bronze, square with rounded corners, struck at the Bombay Mint, and an Australian penny token, a mule between an Irish Wellington penny and a Tasmanian token : Obv. Bust r. WELLINGTON & ERIN GO BRAGH. R. Britannia seated l. AUSTRALIA.

Rev. E. Rogers exhibited two tetradrachms, both with types, head of Herakles and Zeus Aetophoros and having the same symbols (anchor and feeding horse) and monograms. One is of Alexander the Great the other of Seleucus I. These two pieces are of Eastern fabric and probably belong farther East than Imhoof has suggested. He also showed two Seleucid staters with Apollo and Zeus reverses : The Apollo stater had been previously known and attributed by Dr. Macdonald to Antiochus II; the new stater with Zeus reverse now confirms this attribution. A silver tetradrachm with the same portrait, apparently unique was also shown : a tetradrachm of Diodotos of Bactria was shown for comparison.

Mr. John Pinches exhibited specimens of Air Force Decorations struck by his firm from designs by Mr. E. Carter Preston; these were the Distinguished Flying Cross, a silver cross with purple and white ribbon, R A F in monogram surrounded by wreath with crown above and wings on r. and l. R. G R I (cursive 1918) in monogram; and the Air Force Cross, obv. Mercury on eagle r. holding wreath in r. and caduceus in l. hand; crown above, G.R.I.V. on extremities of cross. R. as preceding : Crimson and white ribbon.

Fine selections of the coins of Augustus in illustration of the paper were shown by the President, Mr. Percy H. Webb, Mr. Sydenham and Mr. H.P. Hall.

The Rev. E.A. Sydenham read a paper on the "Coinages of Augustus" which was intended as a sequel to Mr. Mattingly's "Republican origins of the Imperial Coins" read at the November Meeting. The reader began by giving a chronological summary of the various series and groups of coins under Augustus. There were seven species of mints : a) The Senatorial Mint of Rome; b) Military Mints; c) Mints in Senatorial Provinces; d) Mints in Imperial Provinces; e) Autonomous Mints (issuing bronze only); f) the "Imperial" Mint; g) the Imperial Mint. After brief notes on the Senatorial Mint (B.C. 43-36) the military coinage of Octavius in Gaul and Italy (41-39 B.C.) incidentally attributing the S C coins to camp mints of Northern Italy, Mr. Sydenham proceeded to discuss the Asiatic Coinages (B.C. 28-15) and the Imperial Mint (B.C. 21-15). Besides coins generally attributed to Asiatic mints the reader proposed to give the undated silver and gold with CAESAR DIVI F to Asia rather than Rome and he criticised Laffranchi's attribution of certain coins to Phrygia and Gabrici's to Athens. The CA bronze coins he attributed to Asia, reading the CA as Commune Asiae.

The coins attributed to the "Imperial" Mint are very distinctive in style and were probably issued under direct control of Augustus. These coins had been attributed by Grueber to Rome and by Laffranchi to Spain. Mr. Sydenham gave cogent arguments against these views and reasons for considering them a distinct Imperial issue.

A theory on which a good deal of the argument turned is that in B.C. 28 Augustus made a formal surrender of his triumviral office and the extraordinary powers pertaining to it. Included in the powers was probably the right of coinage. The surrender of this right was merely an act of policy which Augustus did not regard as permanently binding. But he held to it to this extent that for 5 or 6 years he issued no coins of any sort on his own authority, and even down to the end of his reign he issued no coins in Rome. After an experimental coinage through P. Carisius in Spain (B.C. 24-22) he inaugurated his "Imperial" mint but confined its operations to the provinces. Finally he fixed the Imperial mint at Lugdunum (B.C. 14).

In the discussion which followed, Mr. Hill, Mr. Webb, Mr. Mattingly and Sir Henry Howorth took part. Mr. Hill said that the interpretation of CA as Commune Asiae was not considered absolutely certain and pointed out the strong resemblance of the CA bronze to the late Imperial coins of Antioch. He was also struck by the 'Gaulish' style of the horse on the S C coins. Mr. Webb said that he had always put the CA coins down to Antioch. Mr. Mattingly discussed several points relating to the constitutional rights under which Augustus coined.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

December 1st, 1919. Lieut.-Colonel H.W. Morrieson, R.A., F.S.A., President, in the Chair. An application for membership was announced from Lieut.-Colonel T.G. Taylor.

Mr. G.C. Brooke, M.A., and Mr. Edward Francis Young were elected members of the Society.

Mr. W.L. Pocock and Mr. J. Shirley-Fox were appointed Scrutators of the Ballot.

Presentation.

The following Presentation was announced, and a vote of thanks to the donor was passed:—

Photographs of the Memorial Hall in the Connecticut State Library; one, showing the cases in which the Joseph A. Mitchelson collection of medals and decorations is displayed. By the State Librarian.

The Ballot.

The Ballot for the election of Officers and Council for the ensuing year was opened at 8.30 p.m. and closed at 9 p.m.

The President read the Council's Report.

THE BALLOTS.

The Scrutators having made their report, the President announced that the members nominated by the Council had been elected, namely:—

OFFICERS AND COUNCIL—SESSION 1920.

President:— Frederick A. Walters, F.S.A.

Vice-Presidents:— W. J. Andrew, F.S.A.; William Dale, F.S.A.; F.G.S.; Miss H. Farquhar; W. Sharp Ogden, F.S.A.; J. Sanford Saltus, Officier de la Légion d'Honneur; Surgeon-Captain H.E. Weightman, R.N., O.B.E., F.S.A.

Director:— Major P.W.P. Carlyon-Britton, D.L., J.P., F.S.A.

Treasurer:— Alexander C. Hutchins, F.C.A.

Librarian:— Raymond C. Carlyon-Britton.

Secretary:— Lieut.-Colonel H.W. Morrieson, F.S.A.

Exhibitions.

By Mr. F. Warren, of Winchester. — An Irish penny of John, struck in Dublin and bearing a curious portrait.

By Mr. Raymond Carlyon-Britton:—

3. Charles I, Briot's shilling, mint-mark prostrate anchor.

4. Charles I, Tower sixpence, mint-mark rose.

5. A Passe counter of Charles I and his Queen.

6. A memorial badge of Charles I.

7. A curious bronze statuette of Charles I in armour on horseback, of contemporary work.

By Mr. H.W. Taffs. — A marriage medal of The Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne, 21st March, 1871, by J.S. Wyon.

By Miss Helen Farquhar. — A bronze medal on the late Peace, issued by the Birmingham mint.

By Mr. W.J. Andrew. — A small group in ormolu and bronze of St. George and the Dragon, said to have been designed by B. Pistrucci.

Papers.

Major P.W.P. Carlyon-Britton, F.S.A., read a paper on a remarkable penny of the first issue of Henry II, generally known as the Tealby type, which he exhibited.

Obverse:— ✠ HENRI REX S.

Reverse:— ✠ RICARD: ON: IVELE. Ilchester.

The peculiarity was the final S in the obverse legend, of which very few examples were known. Mr. L.A. Lawrence had one which he attributes to London, and there was another in the British Museum of an indecipherable mint from the Lark Hill find. Each of these three differed from the others in type, thus showing that this S was not an accidental introduction. Major Carlyon-Britton believed that it stood for the initial letter of Secundus, to distinguish Henry II's coins from those of Henry I. It was unnecessary for it to be used on the short-cross type which succeeded in 1180, because the coins were of an entirely different design. On the introduction of the long-cross series in 1247 by Henry III, that monarch placed on his money, first of all REX TERCII, and afterwards REX III. If this supposition was correct, Henry II was the first English king to put a distinguishing mark on his money. Had the later Plantagenet kings followed this plan, there would have been much less matter for debate for members of the society.

Mr. Grant R. Francis read a paper on the sixpences issued from the Tower in the Reign of Charles I, being the fourth chapter of his monograph "The Silver Coins of the Tower Mint of Charles I". Numerous rare varieties and some very interesting examples of "mules" were commented upon with the author's accustomed care and knowledge of this difficult series.

The influence of Nicholas Briot's designs on the coins with the mint-marks anchor and triangle and subsequent issues, which has been observed and illustrated in previous chapters, was again apparent in the sixpenny denominations, as also was the probability of the use of Aberystwith dies at the Tower.

Some very interesting exhibits of rare sixpences were brought in illustration of Mr. Francis' subject by the President, by Miss Helen Farquhar, and by Mr. Raymond Carlyon-Britton; and with those exhibited by the Author they probably formed the most complete series of coins of this denomination ever shown on a single occasion.

Note.— At a special meeting of the Council, held on December 15th, Mr. Frederick A. Walters F.S.A., President, in the chair, Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson tendered his resignation as temporary secretary, and Mr. W.J. Andrew, F.S.A., was unanimously reappointed to his old office.

January 21st, 1920. Mr. F.A. Walters, F.S.A., President, in the Chair. The Director, Major P.W.P. Carlyon-Britton, read the following letter to the Meeting:—

St. James's Palace,
January 2nd, 1920.

Dear Sir,

I have had the honour of submitting to the Prince of Wales your letter of the 20th ult., asking that His Royal Highness would accept the position of Member of the British Numismatic Society, and am desired, in reply, to inform you that the Prince will have much pleasure in complying with your request.

Yours faithfully,
Sidney Greville,

Major P. Carlyon-Britton.

Comptroller.

Upon the resolution from the Chair His Royal Highness was unanimously elected a Royal Member, and the honour conferred upon the Society was most loyally appreciated by the Members present.

The President reported that the Council had unanimously elected Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson a Vice-President to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Andrew's resignation of that office on his appointment as Honorary Secretary.

Lieut.-Colonel T. G. Taylor was elected a Member.

Presentation.

The President read the following letter, and exhibited the medal to which it refers:—

The American Numismatic Society,
New York,

December 31, 1919.

To the President of the British Numismatic Society.

Dear Sir,

On behalf of Mr. J. Sanford Saltus, Honorary Councillor for Life of the American Numismatic Society, and Vice-President of the British Numismatic Society, I have the honor to transmit as a gift to your Society a copy in brass of the medal presented to H. R. H. the Prince of Wales during his recent visit to New York. Mr. Saltus provided the funds which made it possible for our Society to present the Gold Medal, and he made it a stipulation when the gift was tendered that a single copy in a metal not used for any other specimens should be struck for presentation to the British Numismatic Society.

It gives me great pleasure to be instrumental in transmitting this gift, and with assurances of my cordial regard, I beg that you will believe me

Very respectfully yours,
Sydney P. Noe,
Secretary.

The beauty of the medal and the excellence of the portrait were the subject of general comment, preceding a vote of thanks expressing the Society's appreciation of the kind thought on the part of both the American Society and Mr. Saltus, and so cordially conveyed by Mr. Noe, that had prompted the gift.

Exhibits.

By Mr. E. H. Wheeler. — Penny of Edward the Confessor of the York Mint. Obverse, type V according to Major Carlyon-Britton's classification, but with sceptre replaced by a crozier. Reverse, type VI, annulet in one quarter, ✠ STYRCOL ON EOFERP.

By Mr. F. W. Yeates. — Contemporary forgery of the Tower shilling of Charles I, mint-mark harp, with the large plume over the shield on the reverse.

By Mr. W. L. Pocock. — A fine example of the Nelson medal for the Victory of the Nile.

By Mr. Henry Garside. — The fifteen-rupee piece in gold, dated 1918, coined at the Bombay mint for general circulation in British India.

Paper.

Mr. Alfred Anscombe, F. R. Hist. S., read his paper "The Golden Solidus of Scân Omôdu—the earliest English Coin". His treatise dealt with the coin and its prototype; with the Latin inscription on both, and with the date of the prototype. The runic inscriptions on the coin were discussed and identified with the man's name Scân and the folk-name Omôdu. Mr. Anscombe dated the coin about A. D. 460, and believed it to have been copied from a triumphal medal of Honorius, which he gave reasons for assigning to A. D. 421. The coin, he contended, was struck to commemorate the victory that the Alemannic Prince Scân, Duke of Cair Benet, or Winchester, won over the Saxon invaders of Britain in the sixteenth year after that in which the comet of A. D. 443 was seen—namely in A. D. 459. Scân was the official chief of ten provincial kings in Southern Britain. In the 'Merlin' he was called "Duke Escam" [<Escâ=Escan]. In the 'Morte D'Arthur' he was called "Duke Eustace" [$\text{<Espace <Espace <Escanus=Escanus}$]. In Wolfram von Eschenbach, circa 1210, he appeared with the title of "Lander" and was called "Schianatu". Wolfram said he was slain by Orilus, lord of Cumberland. "Lander" was a misrendering of "Guletic", the Early Welch for dux and comes. "Schianatu" was a Brythonic representation of a West-Saxon Scēanutta. This postulated Alemannic Scânutto, and that name appeared in the Augsburg 'Liber Vitae' of the eighth century.

The scribal errors in the blundered Latin inscription on the coin were explained, and the folk-name Omôd-, genitive plural Omôdu, was identified with the Amothingas of 'Widsith'. Their homeland lay near Shrewsbury, and that town is called "Caer Amwythig", in Welch, to this day.

KENT NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The ordinary meeting took place on Thursday, Nov. 13th at 14 Mill St., Maidstone, by the kind invitation of Mr. W. Savage who was voted to the chair; the attendance was exceptionally good. The correspondence held favourable replies from those approached to stand for office in the coming year and although there is still some difficulty about a Secretary, the nomination list will shortly be issued. A packet was also received containing a quantity of valuable English and Continental Coins presented by L. Mc Cormick Goodhart Esq. as an addition to the Society County Collection; and an Early British Gold piece was also offered to the Society, upon which a resolution was passed that the above items be accepted and suitably acknowledged. The collection of coins of the late Vice-President, J. P. H. Wood, was brought to the meeting for the purpose of cataloguing and a long and pleasant time was spent in their tabulation. A few exhibits were made, notably a number of beautiful Gold Persian and Turkish Coins recently brought from the seat of war in the east and shewn by Mr. P. D. Jones, which concluded the meeting.

The annual general meeting of this Society took place on Thursday, January 8th and by the courtesy of Mr. A. J. Lewis was held at the offices of the Kent Friendly Society, Maidstone, where a most enjoyable evening was spent. The annual election of officers and council was first taken and the ballot produced the following changes: Mr. H. Risch, Director. Mr. W. Jacob, Treasurer; and Mr. W. Savage, Librarian; while Mr. E. T. Clark is acting as hon. secretary pro. tem. and Miss Thomson, Rev^d J. R. Hale, and Mr. P. D. Jones were elected on the council and the above mentioned Mr. Lewis was elected an ordinary member. The annual report and balance sheet was read and revealed much that was intensely satisfactory in facts and figures.

Those officers and friends responsible for the conduct and maintenance of the Society being specially acknowledged for the progress made by the Society as shewn in the report, it was unanimously adopted and will be issued forthwith. The rules having been revised and somewhat amended were brought up for adoption and the proposition was carried. The subject of a Society's case at the Museum received much attention and every means is being used to complete the project in the coming year.

After all formal business was finished a very pleasant time was spent, Mr. Risch exhibiting some early money balances and a specially interesting set of antique Troy weights and items of the forger's gentle art including a specimen very kindly sent to him for exhibition at our meeting by a London reader of "Spinks Circular" who had seen previous accounts of Mr. Risch's Exhibitions, the piece in question being a shilling (?) silvered copper with Anne Obverse and Geo. Reverse. Mr. Clark produced an early large paper copy of "Snelling" beautifully preserved and illustrated. A special vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Lewis for his comfortable rooms and the usual vote of thanks to the chair and the officers concluded the proceedings.

The monthly meeting took place at the offices of the Kent Friendly Society on Thursday Feb. 12th when Mr. W. Jacob presided over a good meeting. After the usual matters of business were performed a proposition was carried that another Vice-President be nominated which was coupled with the name of J. Tomlin Esq. (the present Mayor). An arrangement was made with the Hon. Secretary for cataloguing property in his possession prior to its being handed over to the present Librarian and the remainder of the evening was chiefly occupied by the reading of letters and papers of the Avenue Villa Num. Soc., Regent's Park, of about seventy years ago, some of which were correspondence between Edgar Herman Cross Esq. President, — Avenue Villa — and Joseph Gibbs Esq. Secretary; these were contributed by the Hon. Sec. and recorded matters of considerable interest of that period including a large find of Silver Pennies of W^m the Conqueror at Beaworth in Hampshire on the Sunday afternoon of June 30th 1833; and also a paper on the Shillings of Queen Anne. Time however did not permit their conclusion and the remainder are reserved for another meeting, in order to have the needful time to inspect the large collection of beautiful historic and commemorative medals which were on exhibition by the Hon. Librarian Mr. W. Savage as follows: —

A series of historical medals comprising some forty pieces in silver and bronze the most notable being in silver: —

1. One of the "Old Pretender" James bearing the date 1697.
 2. To commemorate the opening of the Royal Exchange by Queen Victoria in 1844, by W. Wyon.
 3. Centenary Medal of the Church Missionary Society 1799-1896, by A. Wyon.
- In bronze:
4. Opening of London Bridge Aug. 1st 1851, Benjamin Wyon.
 5. In honour of Her Majesty's visit to the Corporation of London Nov. 9th 1857, W. Wyon. R.A.
 6. Royal Society for the Protection of Life from Fire 1845. Ben. Wyon.
 7. Henry Ryder D.D. Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry 1824-36. T. W. Ingram.
 8. Visit of the R^t Hon. J. Chamberlain to South Africa 1902, J. A. Restall.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

An ordinary meeting of the Society was held in the Museum, Albion St., Hull, on November 8th 1919.

Mr. Geo. L. Shackles, F.R.N.S. (President) occupied the chair. Mr. J. B. Fay of Hull was elected a member of the Society.

Mr. T. Sheppard, M. Sc., F.G.S. read an interesting paper on "Love Tokens of the 18th and 19th Centuries" illustrated by upwards of 350 examples from the Hull Museum Collection of these pieces.

In the majority of cases Love Tokens consist of copper halfpence of George III (early issues) smoothed down on one side and engraved with initials or names and in some cases a suitable inscription (usually a motto or message) is added. Occasionally both obverse and reverse are smoothed in order that both sides may be used for purpose of engraving. Besides initials, symbolical representations of love are frequently engraved such as a heart pierced by two arrows, a pair of clasped hands, Cupid, bunch of flowers, etc. Sometimes scenery, figures of men and women, birds, ships and other objects more or less appropriate were engraved.

A variety of coins has been used for the purpose, including crowns and halfcrowns of William III, halfcrowns of Charles II, shillings of Elizabeth, William III and George III, and smaller silver coins of the same periods. Many copper and silver Continental and American coins are also found in the series and in rarer instances even gold coins have been used. A large proportion of pieces are on copper pence and halfpence of George III. The method of engraving varied from the perfect workmanship of the skilled artist to the crude letters formed by a punch, chisel or acid. The fashion for love tokens was at its height in the middle of the 18th century, especially between 1740 and 1780. The earliest example shown was dated 1724. Difficult to distinguish from love tokens proper are the pieces engraved about the same period in commemoration of births, marriages and deaths or of some important event in the life of the owner such as, date on entering apprenticeship, &c. Of inscriptions on the various pieces shown the following may be cited as typical examples:

On a George III Maunday threepence:

Obv. "One sweet kiss and then take this" - two hearts pierced.
R. As issued.

On a George III penny:

Obv. "Sweets the love that meets return Thomas Hadshead. Francis Holdsworth." Two hearts pierced. R. "Success to the Jolley Spinners." Floral decoration surmounted by two doves with heart and end of love knot in their beaks.

On a George III penny:

Obv. "The gift of my father W. Joiner being the only penny he earned on the day of my birth, Augst 24. 1852." R. Initials in scroll work border.

On a George III halfpenny:

Obv. "Dear Sister the Gift is small. But love is all. When this you see think on me." R. "When I am in a foreign country. W. Bramley." A heart pierced by two arrows.

On a George III halfpenny.

Obv. "I hope the heart that now is free, Will think of that which pants for liberty." Two hearts, one of which is pierced by an arrow. R. "J. L."

On an Anglesey halfpenny token.

Obv. "A. Bett" in monogram. R. "Love is a kind of warr all such depart As bear timerous or a sloathfull heart." A coursing dog after a rabbit.

On a George III farthing.

Obv. "Edw^d Dexter. Born April 3. 1752." R. Scene illustrating the fable of the grasshopper and the ant.

Mr. Sheppard was heartily thanked for his novel and interesting contribution.

Mr. T. Pickersgill showed and described a series of upwards of 20 long cross pennies from the Brussels hoard — the collection included 19 different mintages. Also a number of love tokens on copper pence and halfpence.

Mr. W. Sykes exhibited a collection of Yorkshire and other medals of general interest including the Beverley Friendly Society's Coronation medal, Sir Titus Salt, Lord George Anson, Halifax National Society, etc., also a one mark note of Emms (1918), and a 25 pfenning iron token of Düren (1918).

Mr. J. F. Musham, F.E.S. exhibited a Spade halfguinea bent for use as a "pocket" or "lucky" piece, a Spade guinea engraved as a love token and a 36 shilling brass weight engraved for the same purpose.

Mr. A. Rider, A.M.I.E.E., showed a number of contemporary forgeries of halfcrowns, shillings, sixpences and Bank of England tokens of the reign of George III; a series of Victorian coin models; the recently issued Bridlington Peace Medal as distributed to the school children of that town. Also a very interesting selection of continental wartime paper currency including Bolshevik, Lettish, Esthonian and Russian notes, the latter issued by the British.

Mr. J. Digby Firth, showed a number of tokens, tickets and advertisements connected with English State Lotteries, some rare Church communion tokens, a number of Eastern coins, etc.

At the conclusion of the meeting the President entertained the members and was thanked for his hospitality on the motion of Mr. Pickersgill seconded by the Hon. Secretary.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The September Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 25th of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott being in the Chair.

After the general business had been transacted the Numismatic Proceedings commenced with the reading by Mr. Henry E. Parkes of the first part of his paper entitled "Depreciated Metallic Currency, its Nature and Effects". It will be sufficient at this stage to give the Table of Contents thus showing its scope leaving its "raison d'être" for the October Report after the reading of the second and concluding portion.

Table of contents.

1. Introduction. — 2. Gold in Western Europe. — 3. First English commercial coinage of gold. — 4. Payments in early times. — 5. Causes of monetary disturbances. — 6. The Money Brokers. — 7. Drainage of Currency. — 8. The Netherlands Plakkaats. — 9. International circulation of coins in Europe. — 10. Circulation of Standard currencies, England. — 11. Royal profits on base coinage. — 18. Elizabeth's debasement of the Coinage. — 19. Debasement by appeal of Parliament. — 20. Depreciation by foreign states and private persons. Contemporary Counterfeits. — 21. Depreciation by Government connivance. — 22. Depreciation by Proclamation. England. — 23. Depreciation by Proclamation France. — 24. Depreciation by circulation of base feudal coins, England. — 25. Depreciation by circulation of base foreign coins, England. — 26. Popular names of coins. — 27. Cash payments in the 15th Century, England. — 28. Denominational depreciation Scottish as against English Coins. — 26. Effects of base and depreciated currency.

A representative collection of Coins of the Kingdom of Belgium from the Cabinets of Dr. G. H. Abbott (gold, silver, and copper, pre-war), Dr. Andrews (Belgian Congo) and Henry E. Parkes (pre-war copper and nickel and iron war money) was on view.

This coinage although so recent, dating but from 1831, yet exhibits some points of much interest. The earlier issues were by Joseph Pierre Braemt, Engraver to the Belgian Mint, born at Ghent, 1796, died 1864. His designs are bold and striking as witness the copper pieces commemorative of the constitution (that 'scrap of paper') and the nickel bearing the heraldic Lion of Belgium, in marked contrast to those of his successor A. Michaux who is responsible for the very trite designs which follow, until the original type was revived by Leopold II and Albert. But the greatest historic and sentimental interest will always attach to the obsidional pieces in iron struck by her savage invaders, the Boches, bearing on the obverse the Lion of Belgium and on the reverse the language of Fleming and Walloon, united in defence of their country and hatred of Germany who has thus only succeeded in raising an indestructible monument to her own infamy.

The special exhibits which were of much interest were as follows : —

The October Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Bridge Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 23rd inst, the President, Dr. G.H. Abbott being in the Chair.

The Council unanimously elected (under power conferred by Rule 9) Dr. Arthur Andrews, one of the original members who has lately removed from Albury to Sydney, as a member of the Council. Dr. Andrews is the holder of one of the three recognised finest collections of Australian Coins and tokens in private hands and his unabated interest in numismatics is in evidence when it is stated that with the ample leisure thus at his disposal he has undertaken the arrangement of the hitherto undescribed and uncatalogued collection of coins possessed by the Mitchell Library. The Doctor's labour has already yielded matter of considerable interest in Australian numismatics and also some hitherto unpublished pieces.

After the usual business had been transacted the President called on Mr. Henry E. Parkes to read the second portion of his paper on "Depreciated Currency, Its Nature and Effects".

Raison d'être of the Paper on Depreciated Currency.

The ground covered by the paper was indicated in last month's Report, but the subject being too extensive for satisfactory condensation in the space at our disposal it will perhaps be better to give the 'raison d'être' for its appearance.

And first, in the course of reading and observation it occurred to the author that very much was lost to historical research by the fact that coins of the class treated of were neglected by collectors who could do excellent work for the furtherance of historical science by admitting them to their cabinets notwithstanding their, in many cases, poor appearance and the fact that large numbers of them originated in unauthorised sources; thus rescuing these important and historically valuable evidences from loss and oblivion. It is true that their study involves much greater research into historical by-ways than the regular issues but that should be rather an incentive than otherwise to the student-numismatist.

Secondly, a perusal of their catalogues tends to shew the value of the services rendered to historical research by the London scientific numismatists. Although making a business of dealing in coins yet their wide experience is always at the disposal of their clients. Their courtesy in this matter I have myself many times experienced and their assistance and co-operation in many researches becomes an absolute necessity for any who are unable to attend the London coin auctions.

Also it was thought that such a sketch suggestive of the importance to historical economics of further study in this wide and rather difficult field would not be unacceptable as drawing attention to by-ways of research not sufficiently opened up.

An exhibition of the Coins of Queen Elizabeth, both gold and silver, was on view from the cabinets of Dr. G.A. Abbott (gold) Mr. E. Wills (silver Crown and Half Crown and lower denominations), Dr. A. Andrews (silver Hammered and Milled shillings and sixpences and hammered 3d. 2d. 1d. and ½d. pieces), Mr. P. Larsen (silver, all denominations from the shilling to the half-penny both hammered and milled), and varieties of the lower denominations by Mr. W.J. Mc. Niell and Mr. H. Priestley.

These striking and characteristic coins cannot fail to bring us in touch with perhaps the proudest and most glorious era which England ever saw; the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth being redolent of romance and high adventure when the lowest born by valour and endurance could win gold and renown in the, to Englishmen, congenial occupation of 'singeing the beard of His Most Catholic Majesty of Spain'. They are also the connecting link between mediaeval and modern times, for with Sir Phillip Sidney knightly chivalry expired. This transition is curiously enough reflected in the coinage for although the coins in this series struck by the ancient method with hammer and anvil preponderate yet some were also struck by the modern machine process. Good Queen Bess is seen on the sovereign enthroned and holding the orb and sceptre; and on the ryal in full dress with crown and ruff 'all complete' but on a dangerously small ship for so portly a lady. On all other coins her bust only appears. Elizabeth was the last sovereign in the world to forego a shred of any claim the crown of England may have had and therefore we still find in the shield of arms on her coins the Lilies of France equally quartered with the Lions of England. Although declaring on her sovereign that the shield of faith protected her — SCVTVM.FIDEI.PROTEGET.EAM — and on her silver that she had made God her helper — POSVI DEVM ADIVTOREM MEVM — (a bit of the Kaiser touch about that) she yet took care to place the shield of the English navy between England and the Catholic Powers with the evident belief that God helped those that helped themselves.

The truly characteristic motto of the Age of Elizabeth — ROSA SINE SPINA — which graced some of her coins must have seemed passing strange to her loving subjects when applied to their liege lady, knowing, as they did, the very lurid language of which she was capable when affairs went awry.

Certainly the subjects of the Tudor sovereigns had something to argue about in their monetary transactions, even in Elizabeth's time, what with double standards of gold, double valuations of the same coins, and silver coins of standard quality, half standard and practically no standard at all, especially the Irish issues, to say nothing of the circulation of alien debased currencies. Although not above countenancing some slight irregularities, Elizabeth's mint regulations, except in the case of Ireland, tended to an honest coinage; the bulk of her silver having only 1/12th part of alloy, thanks probably to the plenitude of the metal both bullion and pieces of eight captured by the English from Spain.

To illustrate the utilitarian nature of the Coinage of Athens, the city 'par excellence' of the Cult of Beauty, the President exhibited a collection of silver coins of that city comprising early tetradrachms of true archaic art, the intermediate quasi-archaic pieces of mediocre art — a concession to commercial expediency — terminating with the characteristic late tetradrachms of spread fabric, all being of a high standard of purity.

The special exhibits were :

By Mr. E. Wills :

A Crown of the Protector Cromwell 1685 in E F Cond. and a pattern Crown of William IV. dated 1831.

By Mr. H. Priestley :

 This reverse probably relates to the defeat of the Gallic tribes by the moneyer's father. In this engagement they are said to have sent against the Roman soldiers packs of hounds.
 79038 Cnaeus Domitius Calvinus. Spain. B.C. 39-37. Æ. Obv. Head of Hercules r., bearded; around neck, chain; behind head, OSCA. R. Emblems of the Pontificate; apex, securis (sacificial axe), aspergillum (sprinkler) and simpulum; below and on r., DOM COS ITER IMP. B., I, p. 457. B.M.C., II, 373. F. » 15 »
 Denarii of Calvinus were struck during his campaign in Spain, but not until after his defeat of the Cerretani, as they are inscribed with the title of IMPERATOR. They were issued at the town of Osca. The head of Hercules is copied from the contemporary Celtiberian coinage of that city.

EGNATIA.

- 79039 C. Egnatius Cn. f. Cn. Nepos Maxsumus. Rome. B.C. 75. Æ. Obv.  There is no satisfactory explanation of the reverse types of this moneyer.

EPPIA.

- 79042 Quintus Caecilius Metellus Pius Scipio; Marcus Eppius. Africa. B.C. 47-46. Æ. Obv. Head of Africa r., wearing elephant's skin; before, corn stalk; below, plough; on r., Q.  79046 — Æ. Similar. F. » 2 » »
 The type shows that they were struck on the occasion of a public largesse, and that the bullion to provide the coinage came from the treasury (Publico argento).

FLAMINIA.

- 79047 Lucius Flaminius Chilo. Rome. B.C. 43. Æ. Obv. Head of Juno Moneta r., wearing diadem; around, III VIR FRI. FL. R. Victory in biga r., horses galloping; she holds wreath and reins; below horses, L. FLAMIN; in exergue, CHILO. B., 2. B.M.C., I, 565. V. F. » 12 6

FONTEIA.

The reverse recalls the naval exploits of P. Fonteius Capito, who commanded the Roman fleet at Sardinia in B.C. 169.

79049 Manius Fonteius Cail f. Rome. B.C. 85. R. Obv. Young head of Veiovis r., laureate; below, thunderbolt; behind, M. FONEI. C. F.; under chin, R (= Roma).

FUFIA.

79053 Quintus Fufius Kaleni: Mucius Cordi. Rome. B.C. 72.

R. Obv. HO (on l.); VIR (on r.); KALENI below jugate heads of Honos and Virtus; the latter wears crested helmet. R. CORDI (in ex.); RO (on l.); IA (on r.). Roma standing l., foot on globe, holding spear and with r. hand grasps that of Italia, who faces her, holding cornucopiae. B., 1. B.M.C., 1, 415. Fine tone. E. F. » 7 6

The reverse type is apparently an allusion to the recent pacification of Italy after the Social war, and the obv. type intends to convey the intimation that in future this alliance would be under the special care of the divinities Honos and Virtus.

FUNDANIA.

79069 — R. Similar. V. F. » 5 6

The obverse type refers to the recent campaign in Gaul. The reverse is an allusion to the office of Pontifex Maximus.

79070 — Rome. B.C. 49. R. Obv. Head of Pietas r., wearing wreath of oak-leaves; behind, III (= 52). R. Trophy of Gallic arms, consisting of an oval shield and a carynx; the trunk draped and surmounted by a helmet with horns; on r., an axe surmounted by an animal's head; at base, CAESAR. B., 25. B.M.C., 1, 506. V. F. » 6 6

This type was struck in gold and silver by Julius Caesar on his return to Rome after the flight of Pompey and they were issued for special distribution to the army, which had so faithfully served under him during his long and arduous campaign in Gaul. The III may indicate Caesar's age.

79072 — East, B.C. 48. R. Obv. Head of Venus r., diademed and wearing necklace. R. Aeneas naked, walking l., holding in r. hand the Palladium, and bearing on l. shoulder his father Anchises; on r., CAESAR. B., 10. E. F. » 5 6

The type relates to the mythical descent of the Julia gens from Iulus, the son of Aeneas.

79073 — Africa. B.C. 46. R. Obv. Head of Ceres r., wearing corn-wreath; before, DICT. ITER; behind, COS. TERT. R. Simpulum, aspergillum, capis and lituus; below, PONT. MAX; above, AVGV. on r., D. B., 16. B.M.C., 11, 576. V. F. » 12 6

This type while tracing the descent of Brutus from the consul of B.C. 509, points also to his connection through his mother with the Servilia gens, which claimed as an ancestor C. Servilius Ahala, who slew Spurius Maelius on the ground that he was plotting against the state.

79084 — R. Obv. Head of Libertas r.; behind, LIBERTAS. R. BRVTVS (in exergue). The consul, L. Junius Brutus, walking l., between two lictors, and preceded by an accensus. B., 31. B.M.C., 1, 479. E. F. » 5 »

This type recalls the expulsion of the Tarquins from Rome by L. Junius Brutus, who was first to bear the cognomen Brutus.

* In February 1758, a Naval and Military expedition left England for the conquest of Cape Breton Island, held by the French. Admiral Hon. Edward Boscawen and General J. Amherst were the two leaders. After a stay at Halifax the fleet of 167 sail appeared off Louisbourg, the capital, which was strongly defended, on June 2nd. On the 8th the troops effected a landing, and siege operations were begun on the 13th. On the 28th the enemy sank four ships to block the mouth of the harbour. On July 21st, three of the five French ships of the line took fire and blew up, and as the fire from the remaining two was still troublesome, Admiral Boscawen sent in 600 seamen in boats on the night of the 25th. The Prudent, 74, being aground, was burnt; the Bienfaisant, 64, was towed into the N.E. Harbour. (Both incidents are depicted on the reverse of the medal). The following day the place surrendered, 3,600 soldiers and 200 guns being taken. British Naval Medals, p. 175.

TRADE TOKENS IN THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY.

To meet the wishes of all collectors of this series, we propose to quote both Dalton's and Atkins' reference numbers, thus (47-25) which will mean that 47 is the former's and 25 the latter's attribution.

GREEK COINS.

IMPERIAL ROMAN COINS OF PAPHOS.

TIBERIUS AND LIVIA.

Only one type of Bronze coins is found in the British Museum issued by Tiberius some time between 4 A.D. and 37 A.D. Probably these coins were issued before Tiberius became so jealous of his mother Livia that he quarrelled with her and left her to reside in Capræ.

As Livia died in 29 A.D. these coins were issued before that date. In size they are about 1 inch in diameter.

I. Obv. TI CAESAR AVGVSTVS. Head of Tiberius to right, bare, the inscription around.

Rev. Livia, veiled, seated to right on a backless chair with footstool, holding a patera in her right hand on her knees, her left resting on a sceptre: around, the inscription IVLIAA VGVSTA.

These two specimens in the British Museum both come from Cyprus.

DRUSUS JULIUS CAESAR.

This Drusus, the only son of Tiberius and his first wife Vipsania, is reported by the contemporary writers to have borne an evil character.

In 10 A.D. he was Quæstor, in 15 A.D. Consul, in 22 A.D. he had the honour of the Tribunitia Potestas but only for a few months. In the next year he quarrelled with Sejanus who seduced his wife, Livia, sister of Germanicus, and by her he was poisoned. He is mentioned in an inscription found at Famagusta, (once Salamis.) A head of Drusus in the British Museum was found at Kyrenia (Cerynia).

II. Size .75. Obv. Head of Drusus to right, bare, ΔΡΥΣΥΣ CAESAR.

Rev. Zeus Salaminios standing before the temple of Aphrodite of Paphos. Zeus is wearing chiton and himation, in his right hand a phiale, his left rests on a short sceptre. The temple shews a double beam joining the two columns. At each side are slender columns or candelabra. In front a paved semicircular court yard.

III. Size .75. Obv. Similar to last.

Rev. Similar type but with the following differences: Zeus bears an eagle on his hand.

On the temple are antefixes above the line of roof.

IV. Size .65. Obv. Similar to preceeding.

Rev. Temple of Aphrodite differing only in that the two candelabra are shorter and the antefixes more clearly marked and the court is enclosed by lattice fence.

V. Size .75. Obv. Similar to all preceding.

Rev. Zeus Salaminios standing to front with phiale and short sceptre, and an eagle on his left wrist.

CLAUDIUS.

Tiberius Claudius Drusus, son of Nero Drusus and Antonia, born B.C. 10, poisoned by his fourth wife Agrippina in 54 A.D. The year in which St. Paul was at Corinth about 10 years after his visit to Cyprus.

Claudius began to reign in 41 A.D. and therefore was Emperor when Paul was at Paphos.

His Cyprian coins are easily recognized as they are nearly all of one type, the exception being that bearing the name of C. Proculus.

VI. Size 1.5. Obv. Head of Claudius, laureate, sometimes to right; at other times to left. TI CLAVDIVS CAESAR AVG P M TRP IMP.

Rev. A laurel wreath containing the inscription KOINON ΚΥΠΡΙΩΝ (the Cyprian state). The coins seem to belong to two denominations, the larger being 1.5 to 1.4, the smaller 1.2 to 1.05 inch in diameter. The weights do not conform to any rule.

VII. Size .95. Obv. Similar to last.

Rev. ΕΠΙΚΟΜΙΝΙΟΥ ΠΡΟΚΛΟΥ arranged in a circle near the edge, in the centre ΚΥΠΡΙΩΝ (under Cominius Proculus, Procos).

VESPASIAN.

Vespasian was 60 years of age when he began to reign in 70 A.D. The manner of dating his Cyprian coins shews that "the new sacred year" ΕΤΟΥΣ ΝΕΟΥ ΙΕΡΟΥ was reckoned from Sep. 2 to Sep. 1 of each year according to the Syrian year of Augustus so that the year marked H or 8 would be 76/77 A.D. They are a continuation of a series of coins which were struck at Antioch on the Orontes.

When Titus returned from his intended visit to Galba he consulted the oracle of the temple of Aphrodite at Paphos and in obedience to the oracle returned to Palestine and his military duties before Jerusalem (Suetonius, Titus. V.). The mint was transferred from Antioch to Cyprus.

Vespasian issued both silver and bronze coins with each of the normal types, the Temple and the Zeus Salaminios.

VIII. Size 1.0. The silver coins bear on the obverse the legend ΑΥΤΟΚΡΑΤΩΡ ΟΥΕΣΤΑΚΙΑΝΟΣ ΚΑΙΣΑΡ around head of Vespasian; and on the reverse the legend ΕΤΟΥΣ ΝΕΟΥ ΙΕΡΟΥ Η. The temple of Aphrodite at Paphos.

In the centre a large cone occupying all the space of the central doorway which is flanked by two towers or columns one on each side of door, joined by a cornice looking like two beams, between which is a decoration of ornaments like crescents. The centre part is flanked by wings which are only as high as the centre doorway. There are three columns in front of each wing, and two low doors one open, the other shut. The details of the Temple vary on the specimens.

IX. Size .95. The similar obverse and reverse type of Normal Zeus Salaminios.

VESPASIAN'S BRONZE COINS.

X. Size .95. Obv. Head of Emperor to left laureate; around, the legend ΑΥΤΟΚΡΑΤΩΡ ΟΥΕΣΤΑΚΙΑΝΟΣ ΣΕΒΑΚΤΟC.

Rev. Around rim KOINON ΚΥΠΡΙΩΝ ΕΤΟΥC Η. The temple of Aphrodite differing from above in that it shews only the centre portion and inserts the semicircular court with a candelabra or light column at each end near the temple.

XI. Size 1.35. Obv. Similar to last.

Rev. Same legend but type of Zeus Salaminios standing, normal type.

GALBA.

The Brit. Mus. possesses no coins of Galba issued in Cyprus but in the B.M. Catalogue in Plate XXVI illustrations of Galba's coins are given from the Marsy Collection.

Galba reigned from June 68 to Jan. 15th 69 A.D. His coins bear dates ΕΤΟΥC Α and Β, those dated Α were probably struck before Sep. 1, 68, those dated Β between that date and the death of Galba Jan. 15. 69 B.C. The coins were struck by the KOINON or state; the manner of dating may be that of the Syrian year of Augustus as at Antioch. There is proof that the years of the Emperors' reigns at Paphos were dated not from the renewal of the Tribunician power, but by the civil year.

The types of the Reverse are the usual figures of the god Zeus Salaminios or the temple of Aphrodite. The representations of the temple are more clear and full of detail than on any previously coined.

TITUS.

The coins of Titus were issued in Cyprus before he became sole Emperor in 79 A.D., when he was 39 years of age. He received the title of ΚΑΙΣΑΡ on his return to Rome after the siege of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. and was associated with his father in the government. He died of fever 13th Sep. 81 A.D.

XII. Silver. Size .8. Weight, 94.3 grs. issued 77/78 A.D. Obv. ΑΥΤΟΚΡΑΤΩΡ ΤΙΤΟΣ ΚΑΙΣΑΡ. Head of Titus to left laureate.

Rev. ΕΤΟΥC ΝΕΟΥ ΙΕΡΟΥ Θ. Normal temple of Aphrodite with side wings.

XIII. Silver. Size .85. Weight, 97 grs. Similar Obverse type to last.

Rev. Normal type of Zeus Salaminios same legend as last. Bronze issued 76/77 A.D.

XIV. Size 1.0. Obv. ΑΥΤΟΚΡΑΤΩΡ Τ ΟΥΕΣΤΑΚΙΑΝΟΣ. Head of Titus to right laureate.

Rev. KOINON ΚΥΠΡΙΩΝ ΕΤΟΥC Η. Normal type of Zeus Salaminios standing.

DOMITIAN.

Issued Silver in Cyprus in the year 77/78 A.D., year 9.

XV. Size .8. Weight 92.5 grs. Obv. ΔΟΜΙΤΙΑΝΟΣ ΚΑΙΣΑΡ. His head to right laureate.

Rev. ΕΤΟΥC ΝΕΟΥ ΙΕΡΟΥ Θ. Temple of Aphrodite with side wings and two cross beams.

XVI. Size .85. Weight, 96.0 grs. Obv. Similar type and legend to last.

Rev. Normal type of Zeus Salaminios standing; same legend as last.

No Bronze coins of Domitian issued in Cyprus are in the Brit. Mus. Collection.

TRAJAN 98-117 A.D.

The legend which distinguishes the reverse legends of Trajan's coins issued in Cyprus ΔΗΜΑΡΧ ΕΞ ΥΠΑΤΟC is the Greek form δημαρχικης εξουσιας of the Latin Tribunitia Potestate, one of the Emperor's titles used in marking the year.

The following coins were issued in Trajan's sixth consulship 112 to 117 A.D.

They are Bronze coins of two denominations corresponding to those used in the reign of Vespasian. The smaller coins usually bear the Emperors' busts radiate but there is an exception on No 39 B.M.C. illustrated on Plate XVI, no. 9.

The types are the usual Cyprian types. The Temple of Aphrodite and the standing figure of Zeus Salaminios.

XVII. Size 1.05. Obv. Legend ΑΥΤΟΚΡΑΤΩΡ ΚΑΙΣ ΝΕΡ ΤΡΑΙΑΝΩ ΑΡΙΣΤΟΤ ΑΥΤΟΚΡΑΤΩΡ was used to translate the Latin Dictator signifying an absolute arbitrary ruler; ἀριστος meant the best in rank or birth.

Rev. The Temple of Aphrodite with a garland tied to the tops of the central columns. Semicircular court in front. The Zeus Types of Trajan's coins are the usual normal figure of the god.

The Reverse legends are all the same

ΔΗΜΑΡΧ ΕΞΥΠΑΤΟΣ.
ΚΟΙΝΟΝ ΚΥΠΡΙΩΝ.

The later years of Trajan were spent in the east but whether he visited Cyprus is not recorded.

MONEY SCALES AND WEIGHTS.

SECTION A.

TOOLED WOOD CASES.

1612.

No. 1. — Book pattern, beech-wood Case cut out of solid $8\frac{1}{2}$ in. \times 4 in. \times $1\frac{1}{4}$ in.; tooled on lid in three panels, each with a rose in centre, across which is an illegible inscription in four lines (or probably four rows of chequers, 3, 5, 5, 2. Crown of England over; long decorated strap-hasp with diagonal row of incised wavy lines across middle, with long pierced and decorated plate catch similarly embellished. Lid inside tooled as above, and fitted with oblong lidded locker, with pair of pierced and decorated brass hinges. Circular "well" in centre of box for scale pans, and 20 smaller (9-11), each side of same, for the circular weights.

Scales. — Rectangular tapering balance beam $6\frac{3}{4}$ in. long, pentagonal ends. Beam stamped S.N.; gallows long and slender.

Indicator ditto. — With round perforated base.

Pans. — $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. dia. brass tinned; in centre, fleur-de-lis over: three concentric rounds margin.

Cords. — Green and stout.

Weights. — In lid.

Four round-edged rectangular troy weights for 5, 4, 3, and 2 dwts, respectively, stamped lion in irregular shield.

2. Sheet grain weights. Stamped lion to right.
6. — — — lion to left.
2. — — — XX and double rose.
2. — — — C crowned.
1. — — — double row of linear dots.

In case:

1. James I. XXIIIS. Weight.
1. — — — XIS.B. —
1. — — — XS. —
2. — — — VS.VID. —
2. — — — IIS.IXD.b. —
1. James II. XXS.
1. Charles I. XXS.
4. — — — 2 s. 6 d. all different vars. (for silver).
1. William and Mary. Guinea.
1. — — — $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea.
1. William III. Guinea.
2. — — — $\frac{1}{2}$ guineas, different dies.
1. Queen Anne. $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea with reversed "2" in " $\frac{1}{2}$ ".

A fine 17th century money-changer's set; if the weights are all original it shews its use upwards of 90 years (1612-1702). The William and Mary and Ann Weights have replaced the originals to fit it for later use. Some of the weights are rare, as die varieties—especially. Wm. III. $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea reading Gulielmus 3, instead of III, and on the rev. 1 2 guinea instead of $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea, etc.

No. 2. — Jacobean beech-wood, cut out of the solid, round-ended case, book-binder's tooling on lid, of an unusual style, the marginal border decoration consisting of a series of letters S, whilst the two outer squares of the general pattern are embossed centrally with four lis, diamond wise.

(No. 1). A.D. 1612.

Large decorated plate-hinged spring catch extending across the lid; original hinged part missing, engaging to a similar pattern, plate-latch in front of case.

Original hinges missing (replaced by more recent butt joints).

Slide-lidded locker fitted to whole length of the lid of case inside, decorated by two scallop shells superimposing a larger basal one; fitted inside in 10 circular recesses for Weights, and one larger dish recess for the sheet grain-weights; lettered border on upper part of lid.

Body of case has the usual shaped space for scales centred by two raised circular pans for the larger weights.

Scales. — Contemporary set, beam; oval sectioned and tapering, in hard steel; short plain gallows and knobbed indicator, original pan cords, stout, red and woven, engaging a tinsel woven large ball at upper ends.

A complete set of circular brass weights is still retained, as follows:

1. James I. XXII. S.B. 3. James I. II s. IX d. B.
1. — XI. Sb.
1. — Angel XI. S.B.
1. — Angel V s. VI d. B.
1. — II s. IX d. B.
1. Chas. I. XX. B.
1. — XS. B.
1. — Angel X S.
1. — VS.
3. Sheet grain weights, stamped lion in nine-lobed shield.

FIG. 25.
(No. 2). Circa 1625.

1. B = Briot.

1625.

No. 3. — Rectangular beech-wood cut-out-of-the-solid case with rounded ends, lidded locker inside lid extending one end to outer edge; for ten circular weights, and recess for grain weights; fitted heavy brass hinges and plate hasp, also two circular "cut-outs" for weights in the body of the box.

Scales. — Balance beam, tapering with rectangular middle section, cupid's bow under.

Indicator. — Long, slender, decorated and knobbed.

Pans. — Brass, dished, with Maker's initials T.S. stamped in centre.

Weights. — Two. James I. Unit and Charles I. ditto.

No. 4. — The British Museum, Bloomsbury, contains but a poor series of boxes of weights, but among them is a set, formerly belonging to Sir Wollaston Franks, which is of especial interest. It is an oblong flat box, the top and sides of which are elaborately ornamented by silver, cut into various designs and chased. Inside, the scales and weights are of silver, and the box is lined with white or cream coloured velvet, there being places for the scales, pans, and weights. A small locker, for very small weights, also has a lid made of white velvet.

The silver pans to the scales are rather deeper than usual, and in the centre of each is inscribed the arms of Henry V. Earl of Worcester¹. These occur on a shield, which fills the pan in each case.

An unusual feature in this box is a nest of six cup-weights, in silver. These bear the hall-mark of 1637.

This is the example figured in the "Introduction" (figs. 21 and 22).

No. 5. — Beech-wood case $6\frac{3}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{4}$ in. with rounded ends cut out of solid; lid embossed with book-binder's tooling in diaper and fleurs-de-lis pattern; elaborate brass hinged catch on lid, and catch-plate on front; two brass hinges. On the inside of the lid is a chamber with a rectangular weight and ten circular lockers, the whole of which are covered with a decorated wood lid with two elaborate brass hinges, and fastened by a brass hasp and staple. The scales are in a dumb-bell shaped cavity, lined with red velvet, and there are two open circular pans for weights.

Beneath the box at one end is an incised monogram M and the date '1644' filled in with red wax, and in the centre the carved letters HI. The former are contemporary with the box; the latter are later.

Scales. — Steel with brass pans. Beam, round, tapering towards the splayed curved ends; divided into thirds by two incised double lines.

Indicator. — Needle-like, plain, set in square base.

Pans. — Circular, plain with overturned edges.

No. 6. — Rectangular round-ended olive-wood case, cut out of the solid, $7\frac{1}{2} \times 3 \times 1\frac{1}{4}$ in.; lid fitted with long decorated hinged strap catch, engaging to large decorated plate on front side of box. Top of lid embossed long lid locker inside, also with an embossed border coloured black and gold; holding 23 receptacles for weights, those on the left side embossed at bottom, the whole enclosed with a close fitting lid, also embossed, fitted with two brass wire hinges and two decorated brass hasps; in the centre a rectangular blacked space with maker's name and address in gold script as follows: —

"Samuell Noale Scale-Maker at the Hammer and Crown in St. Ann's Lane near Aldersgate Lodon" (sic) 1682 below, between two scrolls; box lined with green plush, with two circular receptacles for weights.

Scales. — Well made, stout, straight, slightly oval balance beam, hollowed out under centre, maker's initials stamped on both arms (which is a rare feature); gallows long and flat sided.

1. He died in 1646.

Indicator. — Stout with large boss near base, tips missing, guard link under centre; brass S-hook and red tassel to gallows.

Pans. — Large brass, with three concentric rings as decoration, and maker's initials stamped in centre, pan cords green much shorter now than originally, with green fringe tassels below suspender links.

Weights. — Majority missing, inside lid seven chemist's weights, various, and one money weight = 120 grains.

In body of box 1 Wm. III. Guinea Weight, 1 George III. light ditto. This box is dated 1682 (Chas. II) the last two weights are evidently more recent additions.

The set was probably made for the milled guineas of Chas II.

FIG. 26.
(No. 6). A.D. 1682.

1690.

No. 7. — Case of beech-wood, lid decorated with three large fleur de lis etc. and rounded corners, $4\frac{1}{8} \times 2$ in. manuscript contemporary label inside lid giving values, which reads as follows: —
“The value of gold in Specie.

1 Grain is	worth.
12 Grains is $\frac{1}{2}$ a penny weight	2 pence.
24 Grains is 1 penny weight	2 shillings.
20 Pennyweight is one ounce	4 shillings.
12 Ounces is one pound	4 pounds.

There is a circular pen for larger weights and a locker with slide lid for lesser (lid missing); top of lid outside embossed, large decorated hasp.

Scales. — Balance-beam fine work and canted, cupid's-bow brackets under beam, short and flat sided, pierced base, tip-knobbed; pan cords with woven ball at upper end: late 17th century.

No. 8. — Rectangular hardwood case $4\frac{3}{8} \times 2\frac{1}{8}$ in. cut out of solid, with hinged lid, 2 decorated hasps, and staples in brass, incised coat of arms in centre of lid top; separate receptacles for scales, weights and forceps.

Scales. — A delicate and well-finished set, decorated balance-beam and gallows, indicator fine and needle like, with quatrefoil pierced base, suggesting the clock and watch hands of the period; pans small and deeply dished, in copper; suspension cords long.

These are probably for weighing diamonds and other precious stones, as well as coins.

Date. — The style of the indicator suggests late 17th century.

No. 9. — Case of beech-wood, with rounded corners similar to the last, but larger ($4\frac{3}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{8}$ in.); original hasp missing and replaced by a later one; lid embossed with an overlapping series of rosettes; inside are two circular, and one square weight-locker with lid for grain weights.

Scales. — Steel with brass pans; beam rectangular in section, extreme quarters canted.

Indicator. — Square in section and perforated with a single opening at base; lunar shaped piece cut out of underside of beam in centre; gallows thick and tapering edgewise: green tassels around suspension cords at top.

Weights. — 2, guinea and half guinea of William III.

No. 10. — Small beech-wood cut-out-of-the-solid case. $3\frac{3}{4} \times 1\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{3}{4}$ in.; rounded ends, decorated with diaper tooling on outside of lid, original hasp missing; Wire-loop hinges, one round well for weights, and one square slide-lidded locker for grain weights.

Scales. — Beam 3 in. long and flat-sided, extreme quarters keeled above, decorated in two incised lines on each arm; hollowed out under centre.

Indicator. — Truncated and flat-sided, with large circular pierced base.

Gallows. — Tapering in section, ends or foot lozenge shape, perforated to carry the hooks of guard link.

Pan cords. — Stout, cream coloured, brass S-hook attachments; the lower curve of which is very small.

Pans. — Brass $1\frac{1}{4}$ in. diameter.

Weights. — For William III. guinea and half guinea.

A similar box with exactly the same pattern of scales is marked John Player. Stoke 1694 (see No. 11).

No. 11. — Round-ended cut-out-of-the-solid beech-wood case. $3\frac{3}{4} \times 1\frac{7}{8} \times \frac{3}{8}$ in.; tooled lid in diaper pattern rose in centre of each; spring plate catch in brass; in script on bottom “John Player Stoke 1694”.

Inside lid, later label in script reading: —

“All current Gold to Weigh, Guineas 5 dwt. 8 grns $\frac{1}{2}$ Guinea 2. 16, $\frac{1}{2}$ Guinea 1.7. probably added in 1718.”

No. 12. — A well preserved William III, guinea set, in the cut-out tooled box of the period. $4\frac{1}{2} \times 2 \times \frac{3}{4}$ in. Inside: — Label with decorative margins reading in five lines, with figure of Justice to the left, Respecting the words "Old Tenor". "In the financial history of Massachusetts and Rhode Island a form of paper currency of the public issues which preceded one of 1737 (known as New Tenor) in the former Colony, and one of 1740 in the latter, and of which each bill bore a declaration that it should be in value equal to money.

"Joamese, Portuguese Gold, Value £ 3.11.2 d. so called from John V, the $\frac{1}{2}$ dobra. The popular name in England where numbers of this and the dobra have been melted, was Joey".

See Hazlitt, "Coinage of the European Continent", p. 208, line 16 et seq.

Scales. — Rectangular tapering balance beam, decorated in three incised lines on each link, canted upper edges.

Indicator. — Flat sided, with circular perforated base; brass S-links to pan cords and tassels. Tassel pink, cords dark green, pans brass, $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. diameter with pair of inner incised lines.

Weights. — Missing. The small size of the pens proves that 14 separate weights were not provided for the quantity of coins displayed on the label, but sufficient to cover any simple weight indicated.

No. 15. — An unusual set, with the scales missing, is in the British Museum (Bloomsbury) collection. It is in a rectangular wood case, and on the lid is a printed label showing that it was made and sold by John Kirk, St. Paul's Church Yard, London, Feby. 26. 1746-7.

The box has a section set apart for the scales, the remainder being occupied by two trays, one above the other. The top one contains receptacles for Moidore, a 36/- piece, and other large weights: the lower tray for smaller weights: most of which are missing. There is also a place for tweezers. The accompanying shows the plan of the box, the smaller partition being for the scales, the larger for the weights.

No. 16. — The illustration Fig. 27, is from a photograph kindly supplied by Prof. Flinders Petrie. The original set is in the University Museum, Gower Street, London.

The case is of hardwood $4\frac{2}{3}$ in. long and half as wide, with rounded corners. Besides the receptacle for the scales, are rectangular and two circular pens for weights, the first has apparently been provided with a lid. In the larger of the circular pens is a nest of three cup-weights. These are marked XII, XXX, V., i.e. 1/-, 2/6 d., 5/-. There are four other weights with the box, viz. three for a guinea, and one for 13/6 d. One bears the head of George II on the obverse.

The scales are well shown in the illustration; the cross beam is rectangular in section near the middle, and triangular towards the ends. Each pan is held by three cords, fastened to the beam by wires bent 8-shaped. One of the pans is unusual in shape, being triangular with the corners taken off. This shape is a survival of the 15th century form, shown in the old paintings referred to in the introductory chapter. The other pan is comparatively small, and with rather steep sides. On the lid is a printed label which reads as under: —

"By His Majesty's Proclamation of the 24th June last, no guineas, half-guineas or quarter guineas more deficient than specified in the following table, will be allowed to pass current in any payment, viz.

(No. 16). Circa 1775.

We understand there is a pair of money scales in the Bury museum, with one circular and one triangular pan, on the latter is the date 1620.

No. 17. — Round ended cut-out-of-solid beech-wood case, $5\frac{3}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{2} \times 1$ in., wire hinged, fitted two brass hasps engaging wire staples through slots in lid.

Lid top, tooled and cross lined panel-wise; in centre, in ink, the initials F.O.

NUOVO CONTRIBUTO ALLA MEDAGLISTICA DEL PERIODO NAPOLEONICO.

In una ricca collezione napoleonica formata nell'epoca da un nobile Signore veneziano e che dopo quasi un secolo di riposo venne in mio possesso, ebbi la ventura di trovare oltre alle più pregiate rarità, due pezzi che per quanto mi consta, risulterebbero inediti.

Essi appartengono alla categoria numerosa dei distintivi degli Ufficiali pubblici che sono una speciale caratteristica dei brevi e tumultuari governi succeduti in quell'epoca tanto movimentata. I germi di libertà che la Rivoluzione francese aveva fatto pensare e sperare anche in Italia, avevano trovato fertile terreno di sviluppo in seno alle genti lombarde. Più fortunate degli altri Italiani, favorite nelle loro aspirazioni dal disegno del Grande Capitano, i Lombardi avevano scosso l'abborrito giogo di casa d'Austria e poste le basi di un reggimento repubblicano che ebbe il nome di Amministrazione generale della Lombardia.

Questa denominazione appunto figura nella bella medaglia d'argento che qui descrivo.

Sopra una mensola sulle cui modanature sono le parole LIBERTÀ EGUALIANZA FRATELLANZA, e dalla quale pendono festoni di alloro, si erge la figura della Repubblica con la testa volta a s., che tiene un'asta sormontata dal berretto frigio con la d. mentre appoggia la s. sul fascio consolare; ai piedi una corona reale e il triangolo. Nel giro corre la leggenda: AMMINISTRAZIONE GENERALE DELLA LOMBARDIA con le parole divise da berretti frigi.

Questo medesimo tipo e forma troviamo in distintivo di epoca posteriore già noto (cfr. Cat.

L'altro distintivo pure d'argento è circolare, diam. mm. 44, lavorato a bulino, con appiccagnolo e pesa gr. 24.5. Su una delle faccie la leggenda in tre linee: GOVERNO—CENTRALE—PROVISORIO; sull'altra la parola: LA LEGGE.

great numismatist. Had he been spared he had copious notes wherewith to write on the subsequent reigns especially those of Richard II and Henry IV. Besides his interest in coins Earle Fox had a great love of nature and that wide knowledge of natural history which is only produced by a country life.

In London, when his time permitted him, one of his pleasures was to coach school-boys in cricket and swimming and many of them he tried to imbue with his love of coins by gifts of some of the commoner sorts and a little lecture on the interest of them. By his death his friends have lost a truly loveable man. He had no enemies.

GEORGES HANTZ.

Genève, 10 avril.

Samedi matin est décédé à Genève, Georges Hantz, directeur du Musée des Arts décoratifs.

Jules-Georges Hantz était né à la Chaux-de-Fonds, le 4 novembre 1846; il avait fait son apprentissage de graveur dès 1863 dans sa ville natale, dans l'atelier de Fritz Kundert. En 1869, il arrivait à Genève, où il entra dans celui de Georges Oettinger, afin de se perfectionner comme graveur; il fut l'élève de Barthélemy Menn pour le dessin et du sculpteur Dorcière pour le modelage. Il fut un des premiers élèves de l'Ecole d'art appliqué, où il obtint les premiers prix et médailles.

Naturalisé genevois en 1874, il fondait en 1878 un petit atelier de décorateur de boîtes de montres, d'où sont sorties de nombreuses pièces de fantaisie, émaillées et ciselées, des petits meubles, coffrets à bijoux montés en ébène, pièces uniques et signées. Il fit aussi de la gravure de médailles artistiques et nombreuses sont les œuvres de Georges Hantz dans ce domaine. Il grava en particulier la médaille du tir du centenaire des Carabiniers de Lausanne, puis celle de l'Exposition nationale suisse de Genève.

Envoyé en mission d'études en France, en Allemagne, en Belgique et en Italie, Hantz en rapporta le plan d'installation du Musée des Arts décoratifs de Genève ouvert en 1885, dont il fut nommé directeur.

Georges Hantz a présidé la classe des Beaux-Arts, après en avoir été le secrétaire pendant huit ans. Il a beaucoup contribué au développement artistique de la ville de Genève.

HENRI HUGUENIN.

On annonce de Neuchâtel le décès survenu à l'âge de 41 ans, des suites de la grippe, du médailleur loclois bien connu Henri Huguenin, dont les œuvres innombrables sont répandues partout en Suisse, comme à l'étranger.

Si l'art de la médaille a conquis une place honorable dans notre pays, on le doit en grande partie à Henri Huguenin qui fut un des pionniers de son développement. Elève de l'Ecole d'art à Genève, où il remporta plusieurs prix, il acquit une solide préparation qui lui permit d'entrer à Paris dans l'atelier de maître Ponscarne, d'où il devait rapporter ce goût et ce cachet bien français qui caractérisent ses œuvres.

Henri Huguenin a déployé dans sa courte existence une activité extraordinaire; il est peu d'artistes qui se soient dépensés autant que lui. C'est par centaines qu'on compte ses médailles et ses plaquettes répandues dans le commerce, dans les collections privées et dans les musées. Les sports, les fêtes patriotiques suisses, les cérémonies de toute nature, lui ont inspiré des compositions qui, toutes, sortent de la banalité. Et des œuvres d'art plus sérieuses, qui figurèrent dans de nombreuses expositions en Suisse et à l'étranger, montrent l'artiste délicat autant que consciencieux.

Henri Huguenin s'en va en pleine force de son talent. Une puissance merveilleuse d'expression et de production s'éteint avec lui. L'art loclois, neuchâtelois et suisse portera longtemps le deuil de celui qui fut un de ses plus glorieux représentants.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

ROYAL NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Feb. 19. Prof. C. Oman, LL.D., M.P., President, in the Chair.

Dr. G.H. Abbott and Messrs. A.G. Montagu and J. Rochelle Thomas were elected Fellows of the Society.

Mr. Fredk. A. Harrison exhibited a centenary medal of Milan Cathedral with portrait of John Gonzaga and a Chinese rupee issued for the province of Sse-Chuan and Tibet.

The Rev. Edgar Rogers exhibited some fine Seleucid coins including tetradrachms of Seleucus I. and a drachm or half-drachm of Antiochus I. and a selection of silver coins of Alexander Bala from Phoenician Mints, Tyre (years, 150, 146, 145), Sidon (149, 148) and Berytos (149).

Mr. Percy H. Webb exhibited a portion of a find of late Roman coins from Egypt. The find covered the period 298-313, Domitianus—Maximinus Daza and was said to have comprised nearly two bushels of coins. The coins which Mr. Webb had been able to examine belonged to the last five years of the period and were of three rulers only, Galerius Maximian, Galeria Valeria and Daza. The bulk of the coins were of the Alexandria mint, although Antioch, Cyzicus and Nicomedia were also represented. The find presented a number of interesting features and afforded an interesting opportunity of testing Mr. Maurice's work, which it supported in every detail.

Mr. G.C. Brooke read a paper by Mr. R.C. Lockett on the 'Coinage of Offa'. The date of the earliest pennies of Offa was certainly before 790/1 A.D., the date of Jaenberht's death. It was probably late in the reign as a large number of Offa's moneyers also struck coins for Coenwulf. The most reasonable suggestion for the date of the beginning of the Mercian coinage was after the battle of Otford in 774 but it might be as late as the Council of Chelsea 786. The mint was probably Canterbury, as seven of his moneyers struck coins for Coenwulf and three of these worked for Eadberht, Cuthred and Baldred. Coins bearing the name Eadberht were probably to be attributed to Eadberht, Bishop of London 772-787.

Another penny with the name hitherto not read satisfactorily should probably be attributed to Higberht, Bishop of Lichfield, who was made Archbishop in 787. Cynethrith's coinage was evidently struck in Offa's life time either as a complimentary issue or in a period of regency during Offa's absence. A classification of the pennies of Offa was proposed, based on their affinity to the coinage of Jaenberht and Aethilheard. In the discussion which followed Mr. H.A. Grueber, Mr. G.F. Hill, Mr. H.A. Parsons and Sir H. Howorth, spoke.

Mar. 18: Prot. C. Oman, M.P., LL.D., President, in the Chair.

Mr. Ernest H. Wheeler was elected a Fellow of the Society.

The President exhibited seven tetradrachms of Antiochus the Great illustrating his portrait at different periods of the reign and at different mints.

Col. the Hon. Milo G. Talbot exhibited a silver quinarius of Galba. ℞. CONCORDIA AVG.

Mr. G.C. Haines exhibited a 20 nummi piece of Anastasius I, a variety of B.M. Cat. No. 49.

Mr. Henry Garside showed the gold fifteen rupee piece of 1918 struck at Bombay for circulation in British India.

Mr. Leopold Messenger showed specimens of the 1919 nickel coinage for India, 8 annas (round), 4 annas (octagonal with scalloped edges, and 2 annas (square with rounded corners).

Mr. G.F. Hill showed a clever forgery of a silver penny of Eadwald, king of East Anglia, ℞. Wihtred (Ruding IV, 2).

Mr. Fredk. A. Walters F.S.A. showed a second brass of Lucius Verus obv. IMP CAES L. AUREL. VERUS, bare head r. ℞. Salus seated to l. feeding serpent. TR. POT II COS II (no S.C.), and a small medallion of M. Aurelius obv. head l. M. ANTONINUS

Mr. L. A. Lawrence read a further note on the Amptill find of early Henry II pennies, in which he gave readings of many coins not previously deciphered. Most of the types were represented in the hoard and among the rare coin was one of a new Canterbury moneyer named RAULF.

Mr. G. F. Hill gave an account of his investigation of a story that a specimen of the gold mancus of Offa had been found near Orwell in Cambridgeshire forty years ago. If the coin was really a specimen of the Arab dinar copied by Offa, he had been unable to trace it but was able to show that it was not the specimen now in the British Museum. The latter could now be definitely stated to be the specimen acquired in Rome by the Duc de Blacas and had been in the possession of the Longperier family from whom it was acquired in 1906 and again brought to light by a Paris firm, from whom it was acquired by Mr. Carlyon-Britton.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

February 18th, 1920. Mr. F. A. Walters, F.S.A., President, in the Chair.

The President reported that Captain Marno was unable to read his paper on the Coinage of Edward III that evening as notified, and it had therefore been postponed.

Mrs. W. J. Andrew was nominated for membership.

Presentation to the Library.

By Mr. Lionel M. Hewlett : Anglo-Gallic Coins.

Exhibits

By Mr. H. A. Parsons, in illustration of his paper : Edward the Confessor, penny of his last type ; a variety of the same, with obverse similar in detail to the first issue of William I, except that Edward's bust is to the right. Harold II, penny, to show the absence of the shoulders and the unbroken legend surrounding the head. William I, penny of his first issue.

By Mr. L. A. Lawrence : A series of eighteen denarii of the Emperors Claudius, Septimius Severus, Caracalla, Geta, and Carausius relating to Britain.

Henry III, a penny of the long-cross type and Durham mint, reading WILLELM ON DVR(h). Mr. Lawrence explained that the moneyer was new to our lists, and must have held office later than A. D. 1260, probably coining between Roger whose coins appeared in the Brussels hoard and Robert who issued coins at Durham of the long-cross series in the early years of Edward I.

By Mr. F. A. Walters, President : A collection of the coins of Edward III intended to illustrate Captain Marno's paper.

By Mr. J. O. Manton : some Edwardian coins with the like object. A Danish imitation of a penny of Æthelred II.

By Miss Helen Farquhar : A collection of portraits of the seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth centuries adapted for wearing as ornaments in the form of pendants or rings. A "VIGO" five-guinea piece. Miss Farquhar read some interesting notes on her exhibits.

Papers

Mr. H. A. Parsons read a paper on the Prototype of the Initial Coinage of William I. After touching on the interest and importance of the study of evolution in the designs of our money, he proved — by the exhibition of a new variety of Edward the Confessor's last coinage, of which the obverse, except that the head was to the right, was practically identical with the Conqueror's first issue — that the design of William's first money was taken directly from that issue, and not from the intermediate coinage of Harold II, as had been usually assumed. The very striking differences between the pennies of Harold and of his successor were shown, and the general conclusion was that, not only historically but also in numismatics, William's intention to ignore Harold's accession was manifest.

Mr. Raymond Carlyon-Britton contributed a paper on the Halfpennies and Farthings of Henry VIII, in which he demurred to the theory, recently raised, that for sixty years prior to the Act of 1523 our halfpennies and farthings were struck from the same dies, and were only differentiated by the diameter and weight of the flans. This theory was based upon what he believed was a wrong construction of the wording of the Act :

Whereas the farthings and halfpennies were struck with one coin, so that the common people many times took the farthings for halfpennies, it was ordained that the farthings to be made, from that time, should have on one side a portcullis, and on the other a rose with a cross. Ruding, I, p. 302.

The context, providing as it does for the change in the design, and not in the method of manufacture, of the farthing, proved, he urged, that the expression "with one coin" did not refer to the dies, as suggested, but meant struck with one design or pattern, and he instanced the farthing of Henry VII, in Colonel Morrieson's collection, which was from a smaller die than that of the contemporary halfpenny, as direct evidence that the theory failed.

March 17th, 1920. Mr. F. A. Walters, F.S.A., President, in the Chair.

Mrs. W. J. Andrew was elected, and Miss Farquhar, Dr. Harold R. Cross, and the Royal Scottish Museum, Edinburgh, were nominated for membership.

The President explained that, in view of Colonel Leslie's paper, the Council had invited the ladies, resident in London, who had earned the Military Medal in the Great War to be present that evening. He was gratified to see that the meeting was honoured by a representative attendance of at least a third of their number, some of whom were wearing not only British decorations but also crosses and medals awarded by the French and Belgian governments. Members would join him in offering them their patriotic congratulations.

Regret was unanimously expressed at the total lack of art in the design of the Bronze Star for 1914-15.

Exhibitions

By Mr. Grant R. Francis : Charles I. The largest and the smallest silver coins ever struck in England, namely, the Oxford twenty-shilling piece and the halfpenny of the Tower mint. The former, he remarked, was illustrative of both the papers for that evening, because it served as the first British war medal, a specimen of it having been presented by Charles I to each of his colonels.

A pair of dies of the "square box" form for the Tower half-crown of Charles I, with mint-mark sun on the obverse, which had been ploughed up on the field of Marston Moor between the years 1819 and 1825, and now belonged to Mr. R. Cromwell Warner. Mr. Francis, however, called attention to the facts that the spelling "FRANCE" in the king's title differed from any known legend on the coins, and that as the sun mint-mark was not introduced until the following year, the discovery would seem to bear no relation to the battle.

A consecutive series of silver half-groats, pennies and halfpennies of the Tower issues of Charles I's reign, illustrative of his paper.

By Lieut.-Colonel Morrieson and Mr. R. Carlyon-Britton : Similar series of the half-groats and pennies.

By Major V. J. E. Ryan : Henry VIII. Sovereign of the second issue with mint-mark lys over sun-burst.

Edward VI. The gold crown with mint-mark arrow and crowned shield between h R, also crowned, mentioned in Kenyon, p. 107. Gold halfcrown, similar, but the letters at the sides of the shield and rose uncrowned.

Charles I. Silver crown with mint-mark harp, from the obverse die numbered 21 by Mr. Francis, but with reverse bearing the plume over the shield and the limbs of the cross showing beneath. Shrewsbury halfcrowns, C. 8 and F. 4 of Colonel Morrieson's arrangement.

Papers

"War Medals which have been awarded to Women" was the title of a paper read by Lieut.-Colonel J. H. Leslie. Prior to the late war, medals had been awarded to hospital nurses only in various military expeditions : South Africa, 1879 ; Egypt, 1882 ; Suakin, 1885 ; The Nile, 1884-5 ; Ashanti, 1896-1900 ; China 1900 ; South Africa, 1899-1902 ; and Nyassaland, 1915. But with the Great War new conditions arose owing to the thousands of women who, in addition to the hospital staffs, volunteered for employment in the field in one capacity or another. It was therefore decreed that the "Military Medal", which had been instituted by Royal Warrant, dated March 25th, 1916, should be awarded to women "for bravery and devotion under fire". One hundred and twenty-six of such awards were made, covering the whole period of the war. Women were qualified, exactly as men, to receive the Bronze Star, 1914; the Bronze Star, 1914-15; the British War Medal, 1914-19; and the Victory Medal. Many, also, were awarded foreign decorations, both military and civil.

At the close of the proceedings Colonel Leslie presented his audience with copies of Part I of the "Historical Roll, illustrated with portraits of the Women of the British Empire to whom the Military Medal has been awarded", which he is compiling.

Mr. Grant R. Francis contributed the closing chapter of "Silver Coins of the Tower Mint of Charles I," which described the half-groats, pennies and halfpennies of that issue, their sequence and their dies. The monograph is now completed, and upon its merits Mr. Francis has earned the unqualified gratitude of every student of Carolean Numismatics.

KENT NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting was held at the Kent Friendly Society offices on Thursday, March 11th when the chair was occupied by Mr W. Jacob. The nomination of Joseph Tomlin Esq. (the present Mayor) having been laid on the table for the customary month, he was elected a Vice-President and other gentlemen were nominated for membership. The catalogue of the Wood Collection having been completed by Mr W. Savage was now submitted for inspection and a vote of thanks was accorded him for his beautiful and careful work. Upon the proposition of Mr Risch a resolution was carried that at future meetings the business portion shall close at 8 o'clock to allow of more time for the enjoyment of papers, exhibitions, etc. A paper of the Avenue Villa Numismatic Society, Regents Park, dated 1853, on the shillings of Queen Anne, by Joseph Gibbs, secretary, was read by the Hon. Sec. and gave the writer's views on some of the doubtful points relating to the dates bearing the E and E*. A brass Jewish shekel with translation of the inscription was also exhibited by the Hon. Sec., and a copy of the "Original Rules" of the Kent Friendly Society dated 1828 was shewn by the Secretary of that Society, Mr A. J. Lewis, after which the customary votes of thanks to the chairman and contributors concluded the proceedings.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The November Meeting of the above Society was held in the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 27th of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott, being in the chair.

After transaction of the regular business, Mr. E. Wills, of Sydney, was elected a member.

Mr. H. Priestley, the General Secretary, in a felicitous speech conveyed the congratulations of the members to the President, Dr. Abbott, on his election to the Senate of the University of Sydney.

The Numismatic Proceedings commenced with the reading of a paper by Mr. W. A. Drury (for 18 years a trader in the country) entitled:—

"Barter and Currency in Liberia"

a résumé of which is appended to this report and in connection with which many interesting exhibits illustrative of native life were shewn by the author including King Massaquis' sword, slave whips, an iron spiked ball attached to short handle by a chain (Crusader type of weapon); amber collar from Timbuctoo. Brass bowls of native manufacture and design (Mandingo work). Ivory arm and earrings, specimens of trade, etc., etc.

An exhibit of modern coins of Africa (excluding Egypt) was of interest as bringing clearly into view the various European spheres of influence of that Continent.

Coins of Liberia by Mr. W. A. Drury in connection with his paper.

Coins of Morocco. Copper, cast, fabricated by the Jews who hold a monopoly for same 1, 2 and 3 falus 1847-1873. Belgian Congo all denominations in copper. Transvaal all denominations in gold, silver and copper, by Dr. A. Andrews.

Transvaal. The Kruger blank pond and the double shaft sovereign, $\frac{1}{2}$ sovereign and crown, by Mr. E. Wills.

Liberia. Copper, 1 and 2 cent pieces, from 1833-1896. Sierra Leone. Cent and Penny 1791 (British Co.). Zanzibar. Copper Pysas, 2 varieties (British). Mombasa $\frac{1}{4}$ anna (British Co.). British West Africa, $\frac{1}{10}$ th, $\frac{1}{2}$ and 1 penny, George V. East Africa and Uganda. Pice $\frac{1}{2}$, 1 and 10 cents, Victoria and Edward VII in copper, aluminium and nickel-bronze. Tunis (French) 5 and 10 centimes, copper. Ex German East Africa, silver and copper various denominations, from 1891-1913, by Mr. Henry E. Parkes.

The special exhibits as usual were of much interest and included: By Dr. G. H. Abbott, two interesting Ancient British gold staters:

No. 1. A degraded imitation of the celebrated stater of Philip II of Macedon. Obverse. The features on the obverse of the prototype of the coin have disappeared but reminiscences of the wreath and of some of the front curls remain. See Baldwin Brown's "Arts in Early England", Vol. III, plate II, 18 and p. 66. Reverse. Horse to right; below the horse, a pellet with small circle around (representing a degraded chariot-wheel); above the horse, a pellet and a crescentic line; exergual line with an ornamental design below.

No. 2. A gold stater of the Icenii in perfect condition, described in Spink and Son's Numismatic Circular, Jan.-Feb., 1919. Obverse. A cross with curved limbs diminishing outwardly, a rose ornament in the centre. Reverse. A horse to right, with immense branching tail; beneath the horse, a wheel of seven spokes.

By Dr. A. Andrews. English bronze pennies of our present sovereign of the three following mints:

1918, London Mint. 1918, Heaton Birmingham mm. H. 1918, King's Norton Metal Co. Ltd. (near Birmingham) mm. K. N. 1919, London Mint. 1919, King's Norton Metal Co., Ltd.

By Mr. P. J. Marks. Specimens of Chinese "Knife" and "Shirt" money procured during his recent tour in the East.

By Mr. E. Wills. Charles II farthing. Geo. II shilling and Victoria florin, all doublestruck.

By Mr. Henry E. Parkes. Four specimens of the curious Egyptian Copper coins of Ahmad I AH 1012-1026 (= A. D. 1603-1617) figured in Valentine's Copper coins of the Muhammadans, p. 30, nos. 13, 14, 15 on plate.

Résumé of Mr. Drury's paper.

This paper proved to be one of the most original and illuminating communicated to the Society, first-hand knowledge of native life and character being apparent in every page. The trickery and duplicity of the traders, both black and white, was fully and amusingly dwelt upon and as the bush native is continually on the 'qui vive' to 'do' the white trader he on his part 'does' the native and neither party feels particularly aggrieved by the resulting transaction. This applies only to Liberia and not to African Colonies under European control where strict and severe laws have eradicated this immoral system of trading. With regard to transport of produce, distance is immaterial, time of no consequence. As an example, casks of palm oil weighing ten to thirteen hundredweights each are rolled down to the coast or nearest waterway through swampy ground and difficult country in some instances a distance of 25 or 30 miles. Taxes are nominally oppressive but like the Code of Draco, defeat themselves. Thus a Kroo-boy is required to pay 2½ dollars for one day's trading, the result of which is thus stated by him. "Two dollar and half-uf, Sah, dem big black custom baas tief from pore kroo-boy. Kroo-boy get nothin; where we come in, Sah? So we dun pay no custom. De Lord gib us sense too much".

As he possesses no pockets, not being worried with tailors' bills, the native must carry his money or 'due-bill' in his hair, tying it to a curl with a piece of native tic-tic. This explains why the money of Liberia is rather an advertisement of autonomy than a practical currency. Business procedure in Liberia is somewhat as follows. A native brings in his palm oil. Having fixed the gallonage you calculate the amount at 33-1/3rd cents per gallon. Ten gallons would be 3 dollars 33-1/3rd cents, the produce clerk handing him a 'due-bill' for the amount with which he proceeds to the store clerk who gives him the articles he requires. He will probably say "Me take smoke, rice and cloth", so he hands him one head of tobacco containing five leaves of 20 inches in length value one dollar, a tin measure of rice value one dollar, twelve yards of cloth value one dollar, 25 cents, and for the remaining 13-1/3rd cents a clay pipe. If his 'due-bill' is for a larger amount he will probably point out articles he requires and you state their value and say, "so much left" which he will call for at a later period. The 'due-bill' is backed with the amount drawn and shews the amount left to be drawn. The native takes his 'due-bill' and puts it into his hair. Whatever takes place in the deal the bushman never retracts his bargain, nor does it ever occur to him to distrust the payment of the balance even if it be twelve months later before he again presents the bill for final adjustment. The white trader certainly holds the confidence of the native, the possibility of bankruptcy never entering his mind. The native conducts business on philosophical principles. If the trader does not care for his probably extra well adulterated produce and sends him away he does not worry. He merely says, "You no savee my tings, Baas, wal me lib fore me see you, me lib abter" and takes his stuff to another trader probably twenty miles further on. Due-bills are transferable and they are the only currency for internal trade, both private and governmental. For Government liabilities abroad, English notes and gold (the latter only before the war) supplied by the merchants are only accepted by foreign governments. With regard to the use of Liberian coins, Mr. Drury says, "Copper and silver coins have been issued by the Liberian Government but during the 18 years I was connected with this country making many visits to England at long and short periods I only handled three silver coins which were eagerly sought after by collectors and quickly disposed of as useless impediments. Numerous 2 and 1 cent pieces were presented by the Liberians which were tardily received by the merchants and brushed into a kerosene tin as unfit to handle being always damp, greasy and black from the moist hands of unwashed blacks. The coins thus collected were disposed of in England as curios".

Paper currency is confined to 25 and 50 cent and one dollar government notes, City and Corporation Bills and also special issues to clear abnormal outgoings caused by tribal and coastal wars. These bills are called Cavalla Bills, Rockcess Bills, Cape Palmas Bills, Bassa Bills called after the place where the engagements took place. These notes and bills never retained their face value quickly falling to 1/3rd and 1/4th of face. They were refused by most merchants. The German house Worsmann's of the Worsmann Line took all presented at 1/3rd face until 200,000 dollars were accumulated which they used against the Liberian government through the German Foreign Office in order to extort trading facilities and political advantages in Liberia. However, the war occurring in 1914 spoiled Germany's game and saved Liberia.

There is, however, a most interesting native Coin of the Mandingo tribe in the form of an open ring of oval shape with the ends terminating in a flattened knob reminding one of some varieties of the ring money of ancient times of which it is probably a survival. The genuine pieces occur in bronze, silver and (rarely in) gold of native refining and craftsmanship, and are nominally of the value of 5 cents, 5 dollars and 100 dollars respectively of which however the first only were actual currency. The silver and gold specimens being scarce are worn as ornaments by the chiefs, their wives and daughters and thus become of the nature of heirlooms in the tribe and are not parted with. By the chiefs they are worn, tied on a wire, after the fashion of the Lord Mayor's collar, the whole chain being kept in place by being tied to a belt worn round the middle. Thus worn they make a not unpleasing tinkling sound when the wearer is in motion. The bronze pieces for currency purposes accompanied the chiefs, being carried in casks. A description of these is as follows:

Size of oval. Exterior diam. 60×45 mm.
 " " Interior " 45×35 mm.
 diameter of ring opposite break 8 mm.
 " of flattened ends 17 or 18×20 mm.

width of break towards centre 20 mm. widening to 33 and 35 mm.

Weight of 2 Specimens, 76 grammes and 77.7 grammes respectively.

The January Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 22nd of the month, the President, Dr. G.H. Abbott being in the Chair.

The Correspondence included a communication from Mr. S.H. Hamer of London, donating a specimen part of his work on English Tokens, together with two Numismatic pamphlets for the Library which same will be duly noted in the year's Report.

The Numismatic Proceedings commenced with a Dissertation by the President on the Coinage of Macedonia chiefly designed to draw attention to the desirability of research work in connection with the study of symbols and countermarks on ancient coins, his remarks being suggested by the coins exhibited by him which comprised about fifty beautiful specimens, chiefly tetradrachms, of Lete, Thasos, Aegae, etc. of the autonomous series and of Amyntus, Phillip II, Alexander the Great, Cassander, Antigonus and Demetrius Poliorketes of the regal issues.

The importance of the coinage in its relation to and elucidation of, the history of the times was dwelt upon and as illustrations of specialised monographs the Doctor exhibited the very beautifully got up Treatise by Dr. Koepp on Alexander the Great and Newell's equally fine 'Dated Alexander Coinage of Ake and Sidon'.

An interesting exhibition of Paper Money was on view from the collections of Dr. G.H. Abbott, Dr. Andrews and Mr. P.J. Marks and was naturally mainly composed of early Australian Currencies the following from amongst the mass of interesting exhibits being especially worthy of notice.

From Dr. Andrews' Collection:

One of the rare and curious 'Rum Orders' size 4 in. \times 2 1/2 in. worded as follows:—

"Boyle Thomas to remove two Gallons of Rum (from the) house of Mr. McGuire at Barracks (to that of) Boyle Thomas at Clarence Plains (between the) hours of 8 in the morning and 6 in the afternoon of this.

(Signed) A.W.N. Thompson, J.P.

The words in brackets are conjectural owing to obliteration of the original from age.

Also an unsigned One Pound Note of Yarrundi Agricultural Establishment 1840 together with an especially fine series of private notes issued by John Hutchinson, John Weavell and Thomas Stace (Vide C.P. Hyman and Percy Marks' works on Australian Currency) together with various early Orders and I.O.U's which formerly passed as currency in Queensland.

Mr. Percy J. Marks exhibited a fine series of the interesting 'Police Fund Notes' figured on p. 116 of his work on Australian Paper Currency together with a number of the notes of the issuers mentioned above, together with notes in dollar currency issued in Fiji in the early seventies.

And from the collection of Dr. G.H. Abbott, Early 19th Cent: Notes of English Banks, Federal Notes (U.S.A.) and paper currency of the Far East together with the following French War Notes.

1 franc Calais (Chamber of Commerce)	Blue on white.
50 c. " "	Brown on white. Arms in red.
50 c. St. Omer	Blue on light Green.
50 c. Boulogne	Brown on light Green.
50 c. Ville de Abbeville	Green on white.
1 franc Havre	Blue on white.

The special Exhibits included:

By Dr. Abbott:

I. A 'Mandat Territorial' of the first French Revolution for 100 francs, series 8, no. 72319 Red on white.

II. A German officer's Iron Cross of the 1st Class.

By Mr. W.A. Gullick:

The (in) famous German Lusitania medal (Iron).

"With joyful pride we contemplate this latest deed of our navy".

Kölnische Zeitung
10th May 1915

Taken from a German prisoner after Paschendale by Private G. H. Kennedy, now of Woolahra.

The following interesting excerpt from Fuller's Worthies of England first published in 1662 was communicated by Mr. Henry E. Parkes.

An early Numismatist.

Sir Simonds Dewes of Stow Hall in the County of Suffolk, Sheriff of the County 15th Charles I.

"...His genius addicted him to the study of antiquity preferring dust before brightness and more conforming his mind to the garb of the former than mode of the modern times. He was studious in Roman Coin to discriminate true ones from such as were cast and counterfeit. He passed not for price to procure a choice piece and was no less careful in considering, than curious in culling many rare records. He had plenty of precious medals (coins) out of which a methodical architect might contrive a fair fabric for the benefit of posterity..."

Mr. Parkes also exhibited a photograph of Greek Silver coins taken directly from the coins by the process and with the apparatus described in the May 1919 Report of this Society, together with prints from a process block made from it in the Government Printing Office under the supervision of Mr. W. A. Gullick which proves absolutely the practicability and perfection of the process especially when its simplicity and rapidity are considered.

By Mr. E. Wills:

I. Pattern halfpenny of Queen Anne illustrated on p. 79. Montagu's Copper Coins of England.

II. Pattern farthing Queen Anne 1714.

By Mr. Henry E. Parkes:

I. A 'Mandat Territorial' for 25 francs of the first French Revolution No. 5058, series 46, size $9\frac{1}{4} \times 3\frac{1}{4}$ inches, Black on white.

II. A war note in the form a small plain card size 60×42 mm. On the Face COMMUNE DE BOULOGNE—/BON/DE/10 CEN-TIMES 10. On the Dorse Commune (rubber) stamp.

ROMAN REPUBLICAN COINS.

LICINIA.

- 80555 Calus Licinius Lucii f. Macer. Rome. B.C. 85. Æ.
Obv. Youthful bust of Veiovis turned from the spectator; head looking l., and diademed; cloak over l. shoulder; with
r. hand he hurls thunderbolt. ℞. C. LICINIVS. L. F. MACER (in exergue). Minerva armed with spear and shield in quadriga r., horses galloping. B., 16. B.M.C., 1, 320. V. F. " 3 6
- This moneyer was an historian and orator, he held several responsible posts. Veiovis, "the little Jupiter", appears to have been a Latin divinity of a destructive nature, whose lightnings produced deafness; the reference is, perhaps, to the Latin origin of the gens.
The reverse type of Minerva relates, doubtless, to some special military success of an ancestor of the moneyer.*

LIVINEIA.

- 80556 Lucius Livineius Regulus. Rome. B.C. 39. Æ. Obv.
Small head of Lucius Regulus, the praetor, r., bare; no legend. ℞. Modius filled with corn between two corn-ears on stalks (one off coin); above, [L. LIVINEIVS]; in ex., REGVLVS. B., 13. B.M.C., 1, 581. E. F. " 15 "
- This reverse relates to the provisioning of the city, which was carried out by the moneyer's father.*
- 80557 — Æ. Obv. Similar. ℞. Combat with wild beasts; one combatant attacks a lion with a spear; another, with shield and sword, defends himself against a tiger; on the l., a wounded boar; in exergue, L. REGVLVS. B., 12. B.M.C., 1, 581. F. D. C. " 15 "
- This illustrates the celebration of the public spectacles, at which combats with wild animals and bulls took place.*

LOLLIA.

- 80558 Lollius Palikanus. Rome. B.C. 47. Æ. Obv. Head of Libertas r., wearing diadem of pearls, necklace, earrings, etc.;
behind, LIBERTATIS. ℞. View of the Rostra in the Forum surmounted by a sella; the Rostra consist of a platform supported by an arcade; each column being ornamented with a ship's beak; above, PALIKANVS. B., 2. B.M.C., 1, 517.

V. F. " 12 6

The identification of this moneyer is uncertain, as is the explanation of the type.

LUCRETIA.

- 80559 Cnaeus Lucretius Trio. Rome. B.C. 150-125. Æ. Obv.
Head of Roma r., wearing winged helmet, etc.; under chin,
X; behind, TRIO. ℞. ROMA (in exergue), CN. LVCR
(below horses). The Dioscuri charging r., etc. B., 1. B.M.C.,
1, 132. V. F. " 2 6
- 80560 — Æ. Similar. F. " 2 "
- 80561 Lucius Lucretius Trio. Rome. B.C. 76. Æ. Obv. Head of Neptune r., laureate; behind, trident and number XXXIX;
below, small circle (? bankers countermark). ℞. L. LVCRETI TRIO in two lines below winged Genius on dolphin r., which he guides with a bridle. B., 3. B.M.C., 1, 396. E. F. " 5 "
- The head of Neptune and the Genius on the dolphin evidently record the fact of his ancestor's (C. Lucretius Gallus) connection with the navy. He commanded the fleet in the war against Perseus of Macedon. The reverse type may have been suggested by the early coins of Tarentum.*

MAENIA.

- 80562 Publius Maenius Antiaticus Marci f. Rome. B.C.
124-103. Æ. Head of Roma r., wearing winged helmet, etc.; behind, X. ℞. ROMA in (exergue). Victory, naked to the hips, in quadriga r., horses galloping; she holds in r. hand wreath and in l. goad and reins; below, P. ME A. B., 7.
B.M.C., 1, 145. F. " 2 6

MANLIA.

- 80563 Lucius Manlius; Lucius Cornelius Sulla. In the East. B.C. 82-81. Æ. Obv. Head of Roma r., in high relief, wearing winged helmet, etc.; before L. MANLI; behind, PRO.
Q. ℞. Sulla, togate, in triumphal quadriga r., horses walking;
he holds laurel-branch in r. hand and reins in l. and bearing wreath; in the exergue, L. SVLLA. IM. B., 4. B.M.C., 11, 461.
V. F. " 5 "
- Lucius Manlius was proquaestor to Sulla during the Mithra-datic war. As the work is more characteristic of a Greek engraver's art, than of a Roman, it is suggested that they were struck at Ephesus, to commemorate a triumph of Sulla.*

MARCIA.

- 80566 Lucius Marcius Philippus. Italy. B.C. 99-94. Æ. Obv.
Male head r. (Philip V. of Macedon), wearing the royal Macedonian helmet of skin ornamented with goat's horns, diadem and cheek pieces; under chin, letter Φ (Φιλίππος); behind head, monogram, AA (= Roma). ℞. Equestrian statue r., horse prancing, the rider holding a branch over his
r. shoulder; beneath the horse is a flower; the base of the statue is inscribed, L. PHILIPPVS; and below it, mark of value, X. B., 12. B.M.C., 11, 277. V. F. " 3 6
- The head on the obv., if Philip V of Macedon, relates to the mission of L. Marcius Q. f. Philippus who concluded with that monarch a treaty of friendship. The reverse records the erection of an equestrian monument to a member of the Marcia gens; probably Q. Marcus Philippus, the conqueror of Perseus.*

- 80567 Lucius Marcius Censorinus, Publius Crepusian, Calus Mamilius Limetanus. Rome. B.C. 83. Æ. Obv.
Bust of Venus r., diademed and veiled, and wearing earring and necklace; behind, L. CENSORIN. ℞. Venus, naked, in biga r., horses galloping; she hold reins with both hands and goad in r.; below horses, C. LIMEA; in exergue,
P. CREPVSI; above biga, number, (I ?). B., 27. B.M.C.,
1, 336. E. F. " 6 "

- 80568 — Æ. Similar, but number, LXVI. F. " 2 6

- 80569 Lucius Marcius Censorinus. Rome. B.C. 83. Æ. Obv.
Head of Apollo r., laureate; hair long. ℞. The Satyr, Marsyas, walking l., and carrying wine-skin on his shoulder;
behind him, column surmounted by draped figure (Minerva ?);
on l., L. CENSOR. B., 24. B.M.C., 1, 338. E. F. " 4 "
- The type evidently relates to the musical contest between Apollo and Marsyas, which was attended with such disastrous consequences to the latter. It is suggested that some relation may have existed between the name of Marsyas and Marcia.*

- 80570 — Æ. Similar. E. F. " 5 "
- 80571 — Æ. Similar. F. D. C. " 10 "

- 80572 Lucius Marcius Philippus. Rome. B.C. 56. Æ. Obv.
Head of Ancus Marcius r., diademed; below, ANCVS; behind, lituus. ℞. Equestrian statue r., on an arcade of five arches, within which is the inscription, AQVAMP; behind the statue, PHILIPPVS; and under it, a flower. B., 28.
B.M.C., 1, 485. E. F. " 9 "

The Marcia gens claimed descent from Ancus Marcius, the fourth king of Rome, who is said to have been the first to bring water to Rome by means of an aqueduct. The lituus may refer to the priestly offices and ceremonies instituted by the early kings. The equestrian statue on the reverse is that of Q. Marcius Rex, who was commissioned by the Senate to repair the old aqueducts and to build one which would give a supply of water to the Capitol; this aqueduct is known as the Aqua Marcia; in commemoration of the great benefit derived from this new water supply the Senate placed an equestrian statue of Marcius on the aqueduct. The flower under the horse may be identified with the flower, Martialis, a punning allusion to the name Marcia.

MEMMIA.

80581	Lucius and Caius Memmius L. f. Galeria. Rome. B.C. 87.	Æ. Obv. Head of Saturn l., bearded and laureate; before, letter · ; behind, harpa and ROMA. ℞. L·MEMMI GAL in two lines in exergue. Venus, naked, in biga r., horses walking; she holds reins with both hands and sceptre in left; above, Cupid with wreath; edge serrated.	F.	» 2 6
80581 ^a	—	Æ. Similar; before, letter κ.	V. F.	» 4 »
Venus was the tutelary divinity of the Memmia gens.
80582	Caius Memmius Calp. f. Rome. B.C. 51.	Æ. Obv. Head of Quirinus (Romulus) r., laureate, hair long, beard in six formal ringlets; behind, QVIRINVS, before, C·MEMMI·C·F. ℞. Ceres seated r., holding ears of corn in r. hand, and torch in l.; at her feet, serpent; around, MEMMIVS·AED·CER·ILALIA·PREIMVS·FECIT·B., 9.	V. F.	» 5 6
80583	—	Æ. Similar. Beard in four formal ringlets and the legend concentric with the edge of the coin.	V. F.	» 6 »
80583 ^a	—	Æ. Similar.	E. F.	» 9 »

The head of Quirinus refers to the ancient origin of the Memmia gens, which claimed to be descended through Romulus from the Trojan Menestheus. The reverse type relates to the institution at Rome of the Ludi Cereales (Games).

METTIA.

80584	Marcus Mettius. Rome. B.C. 44.	Æ. Obv. Head of Julius Caesar r., laureate; behind, bowl and lituus; before, CAESAR IMP. ℞. Venus standing l., holding Victory on r. hand, and sceptre on l.; her l. arm rests upon a shield placed on a celestial globe; behind her, M·METTIVS; before her, letter I. B., 4. B.M.C., 1, 544.	E. F.	» 2 10 »
This moneyer was a member of the first quattuorvirate of the mint instituted by Julius Caesar. The type refers to the claim of the Julia gens to be descended from Anchises and Venus. Caesar's signet-ring bore a figure of Venus Victrix, which also was his watch-word in two battles.

MINUCIA.

80585	Quintus Minucius Thermus Marci f. Italy. B.C. 90.	Æ. Obv. Head of Mars l., wearing crested helmet, ornamented at the side with feather and annulet. ℞. Q·THERM·ME (in exergue). Two warriors, each armed with sword and shield, fighting; the one on r., a barbarian, wears a helmet ornamented with two horns; the other on l., a Roman, protects a fallen comrade. B., 19. B.M.C., 11, 302.	V. F.	» 3 »
The reverse probably records the brave deeds of the moneyer's ancestor and namesake, who was consul B.C. 193, and who was killed in the war in Thrace B.C. 188.

MUSSIDIA.

80586	Lucius Mussidius F. f. Longus. Rome. B.C. 39.	Æ. Obv. Bust of Victory r., draped, hair collected into a knot behind, and ornamented with pearls; a plait also decorated with pearls is arranged in a loop at the top of the head. ℞. Victory in biga r., horses galloping; she holds goad in r. hand, and reins in l.; above, L·MVSSIDIVS; below, LONGVS·B., 4. B.M.C., 1, 575.	F.	» 8 6
The reverse is probably a tribute to the triumphs, more especially in connection with the victories over Brutus in the East. The bust of Victory is often described as bearing the features of Fulvia, the first wife of Antony.
80587	—	Æ. Obv. Head of Concordia r., veiled, and wearing diadem; behind CONCORDIA. ℞. A circular platform ornamented with a trellis-pattern brocade, and inscribed CLOACIN; on it are two draped statues of Venus Cloacina; each statue rests r. hand on cippus; the one on l. holds flower in l. hand; on the platform to r. is a low column surmounted by an ornament, and to l. is a flight of steps and a portico; above, L·MVSSIDIVS·LONGVS·B., 6. B.M.C., 1, 577.	V. F.	» 10 »
The reverse type is an illustration of the monument to Venus Cloacina (Expiatrix) which stood on the north side of the Forum.

The head of Concordia is in reference to the recent treaty between Octavius and Sextus Pompey.

(See note above.)
80593	—	Æ. Obv. Head of Julius Caesar r., laureate. ℞. Cornucopiae on celestial globe, between rudder on l. and winged caduceus and flamen's cap on r.; continuous above and on r., L·MVSSIDIVS·LONGVS·B., 8. B.M.C., 1, 576. V. F.	2 » »
See note on Concordia above; these were probably struck on the same occasion. Sextus Pompey had pledged himself to supply corn to Italy for 17½ million denarii. This was undoubtedly part of a special issue to meet this expenditure.

NAEVIA.

80594	Caius Naevius Balbus. Rome. B.C. 81.	Æ. Obv. Head of Juno r., wearing diadem, earring necklace, hair long; behind, S·C. ℞. C·NÆ·BALB (in exergue). Victory, naked to the waist, in triga r.; horses galloping; she holds reins with both hands; above triga, letter L. Edge serrated. B., 6. B.M.C., 1, 367.	M.	» 1 6
The head may be intended for Juno Moneta, in whose temple at Rome the mint was situated. The reverse type of Victory in a triga is unusual and only occurs in one other instance on the republican denarii.

80599	Marcus Nonius Sufenas. Rome. B.C. 63.	Æ. Obv. Head of Saturn r., bearded, hair long; before, SVFENAS; behind, harpa, conical stone and S·C. ℞. SEX·NONI PR·L·V·P·F (Sextus Nonius praetor ludos Victoriae primus fecit) in exergue and field. Roma bare-headed and draped seated l. on pile of arms, holding spear in r. hand, and sword in l.; she is crowned by Victory who stands behind her, and holds palm-branch. B., 1. B.M.C., 1, 470.	E. F.	» 10 »
The reverse type is in honour of Sextus Nonius, father of the moneyer, who inaugurated in B.C. 81 the Ludi Victoriae Sullanae in honour of Sulla's victory at the Colline Gate; they may have been issued on the occasion of the holding of the Ludi Victoriae in B.C. 63.

The reverse is an allusion to the part played by the moneyer's father in Sicily during the Social war, when he raised troops, organized a fleet and provisioned the town of Rhegium, by which means it was able to resist the attacks of the insurgents. The cult of Venus was especially honoured in Sicily.

ROMAN IMPERIAL COINS.

ANTONINUS PIUS.

(A.D. 86-161.)

He was the son of Aurelius Fulvius — a man of consular rank — and of Arria Fadella. Having passed through the offices of Quaestor and Praetor, with approved liberality he served his first Consulship in the year A.D. 120 in magnificent style. On his return from the pro-consulship of Asia he was made a member of Hadrian's council of state and on the death of Aelius his brother-in-law he was invested with title of Caesar; Hadrian at the same time adopted him, and he took the name T. Aelius Hadrianus Antoninus. The same year, Hadrian dying, he received from the Senate the title of Augustus and the surname of Pius. His coins show by their numerous legends and types his many patriotic activities; that he restored several public edifices and erected others, besides having concluded many important transactions, and given many public spectacles and largesses to his people.

After a reign of 23 years, which the gratitude of his contemporaries has handed down to the veneration of mankind, he died in A.D. 161 universally regretted, in the 75th year of his age.

- * Two fleets of equal strength, the English under Keppel, the French under D'Orvilliers, sighted each other west of Ushant on July 23, 1778. For four days the French, who were to windward, avoided action, but on the 27th Keppel's chasing ships came up with the enemy, and as neither fleet was formed for battle some confused fighting took place. When Keppel then made the signal for line of battle, his second in command, Sir Hugh Palliser, stood aloof with his division so long that the French were able to make good their retreat to Brest. A famous trial, the subject of no. 81762, arose out of this action. British Naval Medals.

Edge CORONEL DON JUAN GRANT. RRR. E. F. 15 » »

The above officer was a lieutenant in the 2nd Royal Veteran battalion and Lieutenant Colonel in the Portuguese service, a famous spy in the Peninsular War; began his military career as a subaltern in the Glamorganshire Militia, with which he served in Ireland 1799. In the same year he volunteered to the line from the embodied Militia and was appointed a Lieutenant in the 4th Foot, but was placed on half pay at the Peace of Amiens.

On the renewal of the war he was brought on full pay as a Lieutenant, which rank he held throughout the war. He served under Sir Robert Thomas Wilson on the Portuguese frontier in 1808-9 with the irregular force known as the Lusitanian Legion and was wounded.

When Wilson was defeated and left Portugal Grant joined the Portuguese army under Marshal William Carr Beresford, in which he became Major and afterwards Colonel.

Grant was much employed as a partisan leader and spy, in which capacity he assumed a variety of disguises, and underwent most extraordinary adventures. Wellington wrote to Beresford on the 19th Feb. 1811.

"I wish he had sent us the examination of some of his prisoners. He appears to be going on capitally and likely to save much valuable property in Estrada. I shall be much obliged if you will tell him how much gratified I have been at reading the accounts of his operations."

At the end of the war Grant was appointed Lieutenant in the 2nd Royal Veteran battalion, and was retired on full pay when that battalion was abolished. Grant died after a long and painful illness broken in health and circumstances at the age of sixty, at Kensington on 14th July 1842.

GOLD NAVAL MEDAL.

82221 Matthew Vezey. Boatswain. H.M.S. "Prometheus" 1809.

Unique gold medal, with rope border, and loop for riband.

Obv. Struck in relief — an anchor, above — H.M.S. PROMETHEUS. — Below, 7th JULY. 1809.

R. Engraved. — "Presented to Matthew Vezey Boatswain. By the officers of the ship a token of their regard for his intrepid conduct at the attack on the Russian Flotilla under Percola Point".

On the 7th July 1809, the boats of the Bellerophon, Implacable, Melpomene, and the Prometheus, seventeen in number containing about 270 officers and men, made a dashing attack on a Russian flotilla, of 8 gun-boats, and 12 merchantmen carrying altogether a double complement of men, lying at anchor under Percola Point, on the coast of Finland, and centred between two rocks, from the summit of which they were protected by a shower of grape. Notwithstanding this, six of the gun-boats were boarded and carried, another was sunk, and the whole convoy, with a large armed ship, captured. RRR. V. F. 100 » »

MEDAL TO THE MEMORY OF MAITRE EMILE LAUDE.

We have just received an interesting leaflet describing a proposal for the issue of a medal to the memory of Maitre Emile Laude of the Brussels Bar.

This eminent lawyer was murdered by the German troops at Francorchamps on the 8th August 1914 and it is felt by his fellow barristers that a monument should be erected to his memory on the spot where he fell. Subscribers for this purpose will receive a handsome medal with his portrait, executed by M. Armand Bonnetain, as a souvenir.

We are indebted for this information to M. Ch. Claro.

SILVER COINAGE.

DISUSE IMMINENT IN MANY COUNTRIES.

In their weekly bullion circular Messrs. Samuel Montagu and Co. state that the sale of a considerable amount of melted coin from abroad caused a sharp fall in the price of silver on January 16, but the parity with New York, owing to the weakness of the exchange, has been so much higher that the market has been buoyant.

During the week two significant indications have been given that the doom of silver as the material for subsidiary coin in many countries is imminent. The German Reichsbank is prepared to pay in paper currency for German silver coin six and a half times its face value; and a Bill, styled "McFadden," is being introduced into the United States Congress to authorize the issue of notes by Federal Reserve Banks in various denominations down to one and two dollars, the notes to be legal tender for amounts not exceeding 10 dollars. The Bill also provides for reducing the quality of silver coin to 800.

It has recently been announced that the silver in Canadian coins is to be reduced to a similar quality.

INDIA'S NICKEL COINAGE.

OUTCOME OF THE HIGH PRICE OF SILVER.

We have been able to secure for the purpose of illustration some of the earliest specimens of a new type of coin in India. They presage a revolution in the daily money transactions of over 300 million people, and the innovation may lead to far-reaching changes which ultimately may solve the silver question—a problem that is creating grave embarrassments for all who trade with the Far East and is adding heavily to the cost of living by imposing a tax upon commodities of vital importance to industry which have to be bought from Eastern markets.

The coins, mentioned by Messrs. Samuel Montagu and Co. in their circular, are nickel 4 and 8 anna pieces destined for circulation in the Indian Empire. They are of unique design, excellent workmanship, and the impression is so clear-cut that the possibility of successful forgery is slight.

The fact that a half-rupee, nominally worth 1 s. 2 d.—formerly coined in silver—should now be minted in material worth intrinsically less than a penny indicates a great divergence from those principles which hitherto have governed the currency systems of the world. If it be possible to circulate effectively a half-rupee, the natural query is, Why not a whole rupee? Such a coin, however, would be a great blow to Indian sentiment, accustomed for centuries to a unit formed of a tola (three-eighths of an ounce) of standard silver ($11/12$ fine).

Now that the silver price has exceeded all records and that no effective check seems to exist against further advances, the advisability of substituting nickel for silver in the coinage of the United Kingdom might be considered. The British public—which has taken so kindly to Treasury currency notes—is not likely to raise difficulties in circulating light, dainty coins like those illustrated, even though struck in nickel.

GREEK COINS.

PERGA.

That St. Paul on his first missionary journey did not stop at Perga to preach the gospel is probably explained by the illness from which he was suffering and to which he refers in his letter to the Galatians. The climate of the lower regions of Pamphylia was enervating and after the fatigue resulting from his journey through Cyprus and the voyage to Perga he was not in a fit state to bear the malarial air of the river Kestrus.

The natural treatment of such an illness was to depart to the higher ground of Pisidian Antioch which was 3600 feet above the sea. Dr W. M. Ramsay considers that recurrent malarial fever was the "thorn in the flesh" from which St. Paul suffered.

His first visit to Perga is related in Acts XIII, 13, his second visit is recorded in Acts XIV, 24 "and they passed through Pisidia and came to Pamphylia and when they had spoken the word in Perga they went down to Attalia and thence they sailed to Antioch". This journey was undertaken from March 47 to August 49 A.D. when Claudius was reigning. Under that Emperor Pamphylia was united to Lycia.

Perga is a city of Pamphylia. A narrow strip of coast bordered on the East by Cilicia, on the West by Lycia, on the north, by Pisidia. The plain is only about 18 geographical miles in length and only a few miles in depth from north to the sea, but the boundaries of the province varied at different times. The country is mountainous, the offshoots of the Taurus range rise at some points quite near the sea.

The inhabitants consisted of aborigines and Cilician immigrants and Greeks who settled there after the Trojan war, and of colonies settled in later times.

Stephanus says the name Pamphylia is derived from that of one Pamphyle, a daughter of Rhaceus and Manto, but Eustathius says from a man named Pamphylus. Others derive the name from $\pi\alpha\varsigma$ and $\varphi\acute{\upsilon}\lambda\lambda\omicron\nu$ because the country was rich in woods. The inhabitants were very like the Cilicians in character and took part in their piracies, and Perga was one of the places where the pirates disposed of their spoils. Their language was a mixture of Greek and barbarous dialects. Perga was situated between the rivers Kestros and Katarrhaktes but nearer to the former, which is represented on the coins.

Strabo (Bk. XIV, c. iv, Casaub. 667) says: "Next is the river Kestrus; on sailing up its stream 60 stadia we find the city Perga and near it upon an elevated place the temple of the Pergean Artemis where a general festival is celebrated every year". But the ruins of the city are not on the banks of the river as Strabo's account indicates. The walls are probably of Seleucid date though probably an earlier city existed.

No coinage of Perga is known earlier than that of the second century B.C. The earliest coins are Tetradrachms bearing a head of Artemis on the Obverse and that goddess and a stag on the Reverse; a similar type appears also on the drachms and hemidrachms. They belong to the time after the fall of Antiochus III, 188 B.C.

COIN TYPES.

The witness of the coin types to the religious ideas of the Pamphylians shews that the old meanings attached to the symbols of the stag and the figure of Artemis were very similar to those of the most ancient Ephesian natives. This may be inferred from the nature goddesses seen on coins of Aspendus which was only 10 or 12 miles to the east of Perga.

The old native religion is described in the chapter on the coins of Ephesus (Num. Cir., 1915, Vol. XXIII, p. 507).

In the days of St. Paul the ideas attached to the goddess Artemis were those held by the Greeks at that time, she was the vigorous, healthy, sound one, as her name implies, who gave vigour to her worshippers. Her association with Apollo was natural in Pamphylia where the more ancient idea of a female goddess was ingrained in the minds of the people; as Apollo was a slayer with his bow so Artemis also carried the bow. As he was both saviour and destroyer so Artemis is described in the Hymn of Callimachus.

Æschylus in Agamem. 142 speaks of the care of Artemis for wild animals "so kindly is the fair goddess to the cubs of fierce lions unable to follow their dams, and to the sucking whelps of all the wild-beasts that roam the field".

Her epithet $\epsilon\lambda\alpha\phi\eta\beta\omicron\lambda\omicron\varsigma$, the stag killer, is brought to our minds by the coins of Perga. The crescent moon on some of the coins bearing her image reminds us that as Apollo was connected with the power of the sun so his sister was also with that of the moon.

The Sphinx appearing on bronze coins of the late 11 cent. B.C. may have been copied from some statues in the temple of Artemis and may be evidence of Egyptian influence. In later times Aphrodite and Tyche appear on the coins of L. Verus and Sept. Severus. Asklepios appears on coins of Marc. Aurelius, and Apollo on those of Sept. Severus, Dionysos appears on coins of Philip Junior, and Nike on coins of Volusian.

SILVER OF THE SECOND CENTURY B.C.

Attic Standard.

I. Tetradrachm, weight about 257 grains. Size 1.2.

Obv. Head of Artemis to right, laureate, hair rolled: a quiver behind her neck: border of dots.

Rev. APTEMIDIOS

Artemis standing to left wearing chiton and wrap and hunting boots: a wreath in her right hand and with her left leaning on a sceptre; beside her a stag, in field to left a sphinx with basket on his head his wings recurved, seated to right: border of dots.

The drachms and hemidrachms have similar types. Imperial silver cistophori struck for Perga have been described by Pindar (Ueber die Cistophoren, p. 587 and 621) issued during the reigns of Nerva and Trajan.

No doubt the ordinary Roman denarii were also used.

BRONZE COINS OF THE SAME PERIOD.

II. Size .75. Obv. Head of Artemis similar to that on \mathcal{A} .

Rev. Similar but without the Sphinx.

ΠΕΡΓΑΙΑΣ

In one specimen in the B.Mus. no. 4 the ΠΕΡΓΑΙΑΣ is on the upper line.

III. Size .7. Obv. Similar to last.

Rev. Same legend, Artemis advancing to right wearing chiton, her left arm extended, and holding bow or arrow in her left hand.

IV. Size .6. Obv. Similar to above.

Rev. ΠΕΡΓΑΙΑΣ. A Sphinx seated to right with wings recurved.

V. Size .75. Obv. Distyle Ionic Temple, an eagle in pediment the wings displayed, within the temple a figure of the goddess.

Rev. APTEMIDIOS bow and quiver; at top of bow, stag's head.

Bronze of late second century to Imperial times bearing Pamphylian legend.

VI. Size .5. Sphinx with wings recurved wearing baskets or $\lambda\alpha\lambda\alpha\theta\omicron\varsigma$ on head, seated to right: border of dots.

Rev. Artemis standing to left wearing chiton and hunting boots, in right hand a wreath, her left leaning on a sceptre.

ΝΑΝΑΨ[ΑΣ] = Φανάσσης Περγείας.

ΠΡΕΙ[ΙΑΣ] The root of verb signifies to be ruler or lord.

No bronze coins of Augustus, Tiberius, Caius or Claudius or Nero issued in Perga are to be found in the British Museum. The earliest bronze of the Imperial coinage is that of Vespasian.

VII. Size .8. Obv. ΟΥΕΣΠΑCΙ ΑΝΟC ΚΑΙCΑΡ.

Rev. APTEMIDIO C ΠΕΡΓΑΙΑC.

Distyle Temple with Ionic columns, eagle in pediment. Image of goddess within, on either side of which a Sphinx on pedestal.

The reverse types of Septimius Severus are of Tyche, Apollo, the river god Kestros.

Julia Domna adopted the Tyche type.

Caracalla returned to the Artemis type.

Macrinus to the Tyche type.

Diadumenian adopted Nike as type.

Elagabalus returned to the Distyle temple type and Artemis standing. Julia Paula adopted the last mentioned type.

Severus Alexander, Julia Mamaea, Maximus and Tranquillina, Philip Senior and Otacilia all issued type of the goddess Artemis.

Philip Junior adopted types of Dionysos, Nike and Hephaistos. Herennius Etruscus returned to Artemis.

Volusian adopted a type of a three legged chest, upon it three purses, also a type of Nike flying.

Valerian returned to the Distyle Temple type and Artemis with Tyche.

Gallienus adopted the types of Asklepios, Elpis, Tyche, and Hephaistos, Artemis with Nike.

Salonina adopted Artemis in a biga of stags and Zeus seated on a throne.

Saloninus adopted Tyche wearing a Kalathos.

Aurelian returned to the Distyle Temple type.

Tacitus did the same and a Zeus type.

To the end we see the paramount influence of the cult of Artemis.

ed lines, a treble decoration of the same kind is traceable on the margins of the pans.

Pan-cords. — Stout-braided and green, with tassel below loop.

The plating on these pans is not the modern variety, but the much older and almost obsolete "rubbed in" class, producing a steel-like effect, and was known to the trade long before the introduction of electro plating in 1796.

Weights. — Two, for guinea and half-guinea of Wm. III, now rubbed down to sovereign weights, but still shewing the marginal dots of the original weight.

No. 19. — Beech-wood cut-out-of-solid round-ended case $5\frac{7}{8} \times 2\frac{1}{4} \times \frac{7}{8}$ in., two wells for $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea and 1 guinea round weights, with rectangular larger ditto for grain weights.

Scales. — Decorated, tapering, rectangular balance-beam, hollowed out under centre; gallows slender and plain, indicator to match, with perforated base.

Pans. — Brass $1\frac{3}{4}$ in. diameter with three concentric lines, stamped in centre "R. W.", dot and mullet below, in shield.

Weights. — Contemporary guinea and half guinea.

Weights bear the effigy of George II.

No. 20. — Rectangular mahogany case, $7\frac{3}{4} \times 3\frac{3}{8} \times 1\frac{1}{8}$ in., overlapping moulded-edge lid, bevel-edged bottom.

Inside lid is a contemporary printed label with fine black line-border divided into three panels; the centre one portraying a hand holding a pair of scales evenly balanced, below in two lines, Note 1 Grain of Gold is 2 d. at 4 £ p. Ounce.

The left hand panel reads. — Sewell and Young.

SECTION B.

Moulded and Plain-edged wood cases, chiefly rectangular in section; and of later date than those of Section A.

1695.

No. 18. — Oblong mahogany cut-out-of-the-solid book-shaped case, with end-slide lid, $7 \times 3\frac{1}{4} \times \frac{3}{4}$ in., sides decorated by parallel incised lines $\frac{3}{16}$ in. apart.

Body with two circular recesses for pans and continuation to accommodate balance beam, central notch for guard-link, opposing a shallow groove to receive indicator; in centre two shallow circular wells for guinea and half-guinea weights; bottom lined with green canvas.

Scales. — Rectangular, tapering, with underside slightly arcuate, balance-beam; extreme third keeled above, bordered by one transverse incised line; semi-lunar hollow under centre; body with arcuate top, shoulders acute and extended.

Indicator. — Plain, slender, tapering, rectangular in section, with circular perforated base.

Gallows. — Plain and slightly bowed with rounded crown and trowel-shaped ends, the tip cut lozenge-shape.

Pans. — Brass, shallow and plated, $2\frac{1}{4}$ in. diameter with central device in which can still be traced a pellet surmounted by rose, and portion of a quatrefoil with pellets in angles, enclosed in two incised

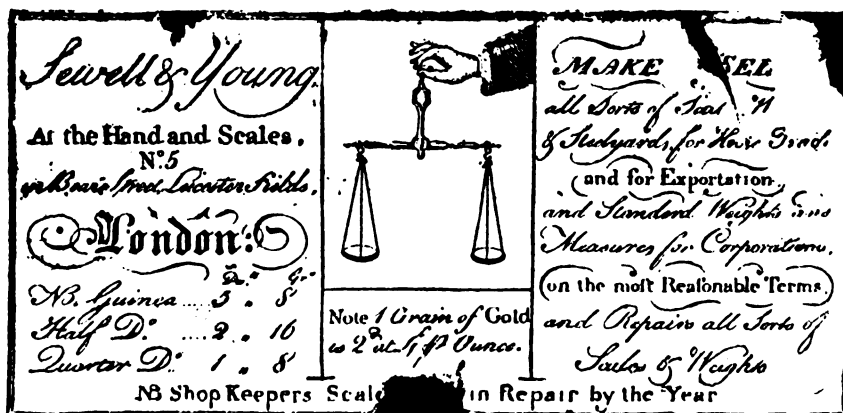

Fig. 29.

Label from Mahogany case c. 1762 (No 20).

Case fitted with two large lockers for weights, lined with green baize.

Scales. — A large set highly decorated and well finished. Pans brass $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. diameter.

Weights. — For guinea, $\frac{1}{2}$ ditto and $\frac{1}{4}$ ditto, with thin sheet weights for grains.

A double set of rectangular chemists' weights from 2 drams; one with the values in script. 1 "Dram"; the other in block letters. 2 "SCRUP", etc.

The larger size of the pans and the above chemists' weights, suggest that this set had a dual existence.

No. 21. — Mr. C. Dack had a label from a box of scales, very similar to that of Sewell and Young shown under 1762 (B. 20). The label is apparently from the same copper plate, except that the name etc. on the top left-hand corner is altered. The lower half of the column, and all the second and third columns are identical. The label reads: —

1765.

No. 22. — Mahogany cut-out-of-the-solid rectangular case, $4\frac{3}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{8} \times \frac{3}{4}$ in., chamfered corners, lid edge overlapping and moulded, nailed on bottom with projecting canted edges, inside lined purple velvet; press-button plate-catch, and two massive brass hinges, the upper flaps cupola-shaped.

Seven square cavities for weights, 4 and 3, the 4 interrupted by the plate catch, a series of corresponding circular recesses in the lid for the knobs of the same weights; brass lidded locker for grain weights, $1\frac{5}{16} \times 1\frac{1}{8}$ in., the lid engraved with a scroll border; across in two lines, also engraved; "Mercy Meymott, London, Fecit".

Scales. — Plain, contemporary with box, guard link plain, gallows tassel, large, blue and white.

Pans. — Brass, deeply dished, $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. diameter, cords green.

Weights. — All missing, of cubic shape and knobbed, probably for.

1765.

No. 23. — Mahogany cut-out-of-the-solid case, with rounded ends and edges and spring catch.

Inside. — Label reading:

Thos. Goulding
At the Angel & Scales
No. 15
in Queen Street, Cheapside
London.

Makes and Sells all sorts of Scales, Weights and Steelyards for export and House Use, at the lowest Prices.

The body of the case contains a brass lidded and knobbed rectangular pen for Weights, together with three wells holding weights for guinea, $\frac{1}{2}$ ditto and $\frac{1}{4}$ ditto; they are knobbed with crenulated margins.

No. 24. — Rectangular mahogany case $7\frac{3}{4} \times 3\frac{3}{4} \times 1\frac{1}{4}$ in., with single hasp to lid.

Scales. — A finely decorated set, pans. — Brass $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. diameter and of very thin metal.

Weights. — Various, comprising Wm. III guinea, Geo. III guinea and half-guinea, a $13/6$ d. weight, and 1 sovereign and $\frac{1}{2}$ ditto weight of George IV, together with 5 rectangular Troy weights for 1. 2. 3 and 5. dwts respectively, stamped "coffee pot", also 1 circular uniface weight, stamped in centre $\frac{1}{32}$ ($\frac{1}{32}$ of an ounce).

No. 25. — Round-ended mahogany case, $4\frac{5}{8} \times 2\frac{1}{8}$ in., cut-out-of-the-solid, including two circular wells for Weights, extended lid and bottom with rounded edges; 2 C-shaped brass hasps and brass wire hinges: lined with green baize, traces of a label apparent on underside of lid.

Scales. — Neat set with balance beam round, tapering, and decorated, cupid's bow under.

Indicator. — Slender short and knobbed, with sloping base and collar halfway up (much higher than usual).

Gallows. — Stout, with dished heads for beam-pivots, long slender and decorated hanging link. Brass S-hooks for cord suspension.

Pans. — Brass, with 5 concentric rings, 2 pairs and an odd one, large S-hook for holding scales, instead of tassel.

Weights. — 4; viz., 2 bronze for the moidore and 2 escudo piece, and 2 brass guinea weights.

No. 26. — Rectangular round ended bay-wood case $6 \times 1\frac{5}{8} \times \frac{7}{8}$ in., cut-out-of-the-solid, lid in centre inlet in a box-wood rectangular tablet reading "Brook Fecit, Norwich", in narrow linear border, lid inside with rectangular shallow recess, engaging a deeper one in body of case for rectangular weights, and a brass flat-sided arm or stud engaging on the scales and preventing their movement when the box is closed.

Body of case with cut-out recess for arm of standard (missing) which supports the scales when in use, also a special recess for guard link, together with lidded rectangular locker for grain weights, a deep open one for larger weights, and a round shouldered recess for centre pin. Spring plate catch, and safety studs, box lined with red linen.

Scales. — Round and straight balance beam, cupid's bow under, with stout shouldered indicator on bevel-edged base, guard link: Screw-studded (not hooked on), pans small, brass, with 3 pairs of concentric lines.

The recess as shewn for reception of guard link is a special feature, and in such a position that the scales can only be re-cased one way.

This set is provided with a green leather outer cover secured by end flaps and stud.

No. 27. — Oblong round-ended pear-wood case $5\frac{3}{4} \times 2 \times 1$ in. with one rectangular and two circular receptacles for the weights.

Scales. — A plated set similar to the earlier types, balance-beam rectangular in section.

Scale pans. — Stamped in centre. R.W. with a rose below,

1. There was a plate-worker in Gutter Lane name Richard Watts in 1720 (Gilda Aure fabrorum, p. 180).

each pan has three concentric lines, the cords are of green silk. The weights from the rectangular receptacles are missing, and the two circular ones are probably for the guinea and half-guinea weights. At present the case only contains a 36/- weight.

The lid is of different wood from the body and obviously later in date; is fastened with a crude iron hasp; the place for the original hasp is shown on the lower part of the box.

The set formerly belonged to Mr. Stephenson who issued one of the Bridlington silver shilling tokens. It was given to us by Mr. J. Beauvais.

1773.

No. 28. — A very fine well preserved Mid-Georgian set; in octagonal cut-out-of-the-solid mahogany case, with moulded edges to lid; fitted in pair of large brass scroll hasps, engaging when closed to iron-wire staples through holes in lid; pair of massive brass hinges secured by one brass rivet to lid, and two brass nails to the body of box.

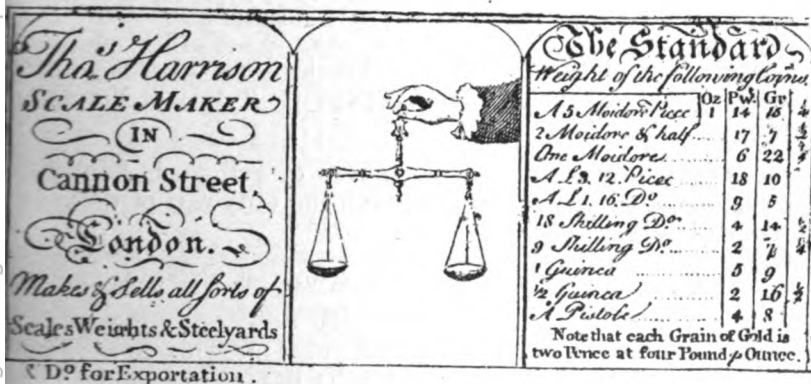

FIG. 32.
Label on scale-box c. 1773 (No 28).

Inside contemporary label (fig. 32) reading:

Thos. Harrison
Scale Maker
in Cannon Street,
London.

"Hand & Scales" in centre, with list of weights of the standard continental and British gold coins.

Circular wells for each weight: case lined flower embroidered pink silk; the usual lidded locker for grain weights, engaging a brass pin. When the case is closed, the locker lid is prevented from slipping out when the set is not in use.

Weights. — 20 various for the coins as set forth on the label; with extra weights for the light $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea and $\frac{1}{4}$ guinea: the number of grain weights, 6, their value being shown in sunk dots; all stamped "lion".

No. 29. — Rectangular mahogany case with overlapping lid and base; lid marked with four lines parallel to edges but some distance therefrom, connected by similar lines from angles to corners. Large brass hasp (broken) with outstanding lug for working same, inside manuscript label reading "One Sovereign = 5 dwts. $2\frac{1}{2}$ grains. Half-sovereign = 2. $13\frac{1}{8}$ grs." below, rectangular printed label reading:

"Saturday, June 25th. 1774".

By his Majesty's Proclamation issued in this Day's Gazette, it is ordered, that no Guineas, Half Guineas, or Quarter Guineas wanted more than is specified in the following Table, shall pass or be current after the 15th July next.

Half Guineas during the same period.	2	14
Quarter Guineas during the same period.	1	7

Case lined with green baize. I locker for weights (missing).

Scales. — Well finished balance beam, octagonal middle section, cupid's bow above and below, round and tapering for remainder of length, decorated bevel-edged gallows, brass pans, green cords, suspender-tassel pink and green.

No. 30. — Mahogany cut-out-of-the-solid case, with rounded ends; $4\frac{3}{4} \times 2\frac{3}{8} \times 1$ in. stout brass plate hinges and spring plate catch.

Inside Lid a copy of the Proclamation of Saturday June 25th 1774 relative to the value of guineas and parts of same coined since Dec. 31st 1771 and Jan. 1st 1772 (prior to).

Scales. — Of the usual type, with forked knob to the pendant or guard link, and black suspension tassel.

A well-fitted brass lidded knobbed locker for grain weights; and a locker for larger weights, the original ones being apparently knobbed, as the three perforations on underside of lid seem to prove.

1775.

No. 31. — Rectangular teak-wood cut-out-of-the-solid case $6 \times 2\frac{1}{2} \times 1$ in. with rounded off corners, lid edge plain and flush to sides, iron wire-loop hinges, brass wire hasp and staple.

Two oblong round-ended pens for weights.

The long recess for beam of scales at the front of box instead of at the back, bottom lined thick green baize (loose, not stuck down).

Scales. — Balance-beam, round, tapering and slender; body narrow and acute angled. No cupid's bow under.

Gallows. — Slender and plain, feet spatulate, guard link brass wire, tassel drab-coloured.

Indicator. — Round, very slender and pointed.

Pans. — Brass $1\frac{5}{8}$ in. diameter with raised central dot, cords thick, green and braided.

Weights. — 1 rectangular guinea, stamped anchor, reading.

dwt. Gr.
GUINEA.

1775.

No. 32. — Another in mahogany of similar design to the previous set only a little larger ($6\frac{1}{2} \times 2\frac{5}{8} \times 1\frac{1}{16}$ in.) and differing somewhat in detail as follows:

1. The recess for scale beam is at the back of box.

2. Brass wire hinges.

3. A Flat brass hasp of conventional shape on top of lid, with the addition of a short raised rectangular flange on its outer edge to facilitate opening.

Scales. — Of ordinary type, balance beam slender, round, tapering and plain, with small rectangular body moulded on upper edge, no Cupid's bow under.

Pans. — Brass 2 in. diameter stamped in centre in a serrated square I.T.¹, cords long, green and slender with green head tassels.

1. The initials are reminiscent of the stone mortar from Middleton in Teesdale

Both of these sets are from the north of England, and their similarity suggests the same maker.

No. 33. — The following copy of label from a box of scales in the Bury museum, has been given to us by Mr. C. Dack.

1775.

No. 34. — Rectangular blacked beech-wood casket-shaped case, cut-out-of-the-solid, $5\frac{3}{8} \times 3\frac{1}{8} \times 1\frac{1}{4}$ in. wire hinges and solid pierced brass staple engaging through hole in lid; inside, eleven rectangular recesses of varying size for the different weights, and one sloping grain-weight locker with brass knobbed sliding cover; 12 perforations in lid to receive the knobs of weights and locker.

Scales. — A rather small set for the case, probably not original; pens small with two incised lines, cords, slender and red. Balance-beam heads with keeled tops; gallows head pointed, minus swinging or guard link.

Weights. — 12 rectangular, tapering to base and knobbed, ranging from the £ 3. 12. to $\frac{1}{4}$ guinea, stamped block letters and figures.

1777.

No. 35. — Small, plain, beech-wood case $4\frac{1}{4} \times 1\frac{3}{8} \times \frac{3}{4}$ in. cut-out-of-the-solid; corners rounded off, hasp with staple through lid, wire-loop hinges.

Inside lid: — In script.

Abraham Lee

East Clandon Surry.

1777.

Scales. — Balance beam $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. long, very stout, curved and decorated; gallows. — A plain wire loop with hammered-out egg-shaped extremities through which the beam swings, tassel link, looped on direct, Pans. — Brass, rather deeply dished $1\frac{1}{8}$ in diameter decorated in pair of incised lines.

Two circular recesses for weights; $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea and $\frac{1}{4}$ guinea only; an unusual combination, and the first we have noted.

I.C. (Brit.). Engraver's initials on a Jubilee Medal of Queen Victoria, 1887, struck presumably at Birmingham.

I.H. (Brit.). These letters were countermarked on Portuguese gold coins circulating in Trinidad. They are probably the initials of General Hislop, Governor of the island.

IMBERT, MATHIEU (French). Mint-master at Montpellier, 1558: a rose.

INIGIAT-PASPORTAS, PAUL (French). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, born at Rome. At the Paris Salon 1913 he exhibited see Hull Museum Publication, no 102, p. 17: also one John Thompson of Sunderland, was a small-plate worker of the period, and probably made money scales.

several Plaquettes: Un singe à queue de cochon; — Un éléphant indien; — Un cerf; — Une lionne.

INGRAM, T.W. (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 26). By this Medallist are further: H.R.H. Frederick, duke of York, Memorial Medal, 1827; — George II., memorial medal, 1830 (Bust similar to that of the Pattern Crown, 1825), etc.

INOUE, K. (Jap.). Director of the Mint at Osaka, from September to November, 1869; again from May 1870 to January 1871, and March 1872 to June 1873.

INOUE, M. (Jap.). Director of the Mint at Osaka, from November 1869 to May 1870.

INSENGA, LEOPOLDO (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 27). By this Medallist are further: Accession of Umberto I., 1878; — Accession of Queen Margherita, 1878; — Homage to the Prince of Naples, 1878; — Agostino Magliani; — Medal of the Luigi Camoens Society 1880 (modelled by Leonardo de Candia).

INSWERT, WAUTHIER (Flem.). Mint-engraver at Louvain, 1489, under Maximilian.

INTERMINELLI, ALDRY D' (Flem.). Mint-master at Malines, 22. May 1382 to 28. February 1384; again in conjunction with JEAN THOMAS, from 28. February 1384 to 1. September 1385.

INTERMINELLI, JEAN D' (Flem.). Mint-master at Malines, 30. January 1380 to 7. August of same year.

IO.F. or IO.F.F. (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 29). The Plaques signed thus are ascribed by Dr Bode to Giovanni Francesco di Boggio (q.v.). The Φ also stands for the signature of GIOVANNI FALIER q.v.

I.O.P. (Brit.). On a brass check issued by Gregory Kane, 69. Dame Street, Dublin, and bearing a portrait of Queen Victoria on the obverse, I have seen these initials below the truncation of the neck.

IPPENTANZ (HÜPPENTANZ), TILLMANN (GILG) (Germ.) Mint-master; a native of Bein (Peina) near Hildesheim, was Mint-master at Lucerne from 1580 until his death on 10. December 1587. Cf. Brun, Schweizer. Künstler-Lexikon, II, p. 133; Revue suisse de num., 1889 (IX), 5-7.

J

J.A.A. Signature on a medal of Cervantes, commemorating the Centenary of the publication of Don Quixote, 1905.

JACKMAN, E.D. (Brit.). Cut the obverse and reverse dies for a medal presented to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, afterwards King Edward the Seventh, by the City and Guilds of London Institute in 1881.

JACKSON, JOHN (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 41). In the year 1749, this Engraver was making his most ingenious imitations of medals in wood, executed entirely on the lathe, a feat which even now seems marvellous, and a hundred and fifty years ago would surely be more wonderful. In this manner he produced a number of heads of personages of note, among them the Duke of Cumberland, Sir Isaac Newton, and Pope Alexander VIII. These were frequently bordered with an eccentric geometrical design, which belongs to the class of engine-turning. Jackson's process would scarcely have been applicable to the sinking of dies, as the details of the portraits in his medallions are not cut with precision or depth enough to produce a clear impression, but it may well be that he engraved the dies for the geometrical borders and engine-turned reverses.

JACOB, C. (Germ.). By this engraver is a medal in iron commemorating the Wars of 1813-15 (Bramsen, II, 1737).

JACOB, MEISTER (Austr.). Die-cutter at Prague, 1538-1542.

JACOBI (Belg.). Engraver at Liège, 1770.

JACOBSON (Dan.). Gem-engraver and Medallist to His Danish Majesty; probably ALFRED J. (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 45). Exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1815: A frame containing impressions from engravings in stone of King Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, Bonaparte, the present Queen of Sweden, Hercules and Antiope, Apollo, Hercules and Cacus, the late King of Prussia, Endymion, and the late Count Bernstoff (as described in the R.A. Cat., 1815).

JACOBSON, SALOMON ARON (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 46). By this engraver are also medals of Dr Heinrich Callison, 1805, and the British Museum owns an Intaglio of Endymion by him (Cat. n° 764). The gem is a copy of a statue by Thorwaldsen at Copenhagen. In the Eidlitz collection is a medal by him of Frederick VI. of Denmark, 1817; Æ 55, signed: S. JACOBSON.

Jacobson was a native of Hamburg, but he worked chiefly in Copenhagen.

JACOBY, MEINHARD (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 46). At the Berlin Kunst-Ausstellung, 1907, this artist exhibited a Christening Medal, and several Firemen's Badges.

JACOT-GUILLARMOD FRÈRES (B.D.M., Vol. III, 1907, p. 47). To commemorate the Calvin Jubilee at Geneva, 1909, this firm issued a series of medals and plaquettes of the famous Reformer. By them is also the Presentation medal to Burkhard Reber of the Geneva Cremation Society.

Also: 1909, 350th. Anniversary of institutions founded by Calvin, Æ 25 × 36; 1912, Second centenary of Jean-Jacques Rousseau, Æ 45 × 35, both signed: A.J.G. (R.J. Eidlitz).

JAEGER, CLAUS (Germ.). Mint-master at Lübeck, 1617-1618.

JAEGERS, ALBERT (Germ.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, born in Elberfeld, Germany, in 1868. Educated in Cincinnati, Ohio; practically self-taught; came to New York City in 1890; won several competitions inaugurated by the National Sculpture Society; modelled the State figure "Arkansas" and the portrait statue "Pestalozzi" for the St. Louis Exposition, executed commissions for the Fine Arts Building in St. Louis and the Custom House in New York, and commissioned by the Government to erect the Baron von Steuben Monument in Washington, which commission was won in competition.

He exhibited the following works at the New York International Medallion Exhibition, held in March, 1910:—

Portrait; — Model for an original research medal (Catalogue of the N.Y. Medallion Exhibition).

JAENNISCH, JOBST JAKOB (Germ.). Mint-master at Celle (Brunswick), 1687-1705; privy-mark, III or JJJ. A Pattern Ducat of Duke George William 1690 bears these initials JJ.J and also Thalers and subsidiary currency, of varied years.

JAHN, C. (Dutch). Cut the dies for the obverse and reverse of a medal commemorating an Industrial Exhibition in 1881, and for the reverse of a medal commemorating the explorations of Baron Nils Adolf Erik Nordenskiöld, which was struck for the Gothenburg Society of Science.

JETZL, IGNATZ (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 71). Born in 1731, died on 4. December 1781; Mint-engraver at Vienna, circa 1750-1781.

JEUFFROY, ROMAIN VINCENT (B.D.M., Vol. III, 71). From "La Chronique des Arts" we have extracted the following :

Né en 1749 à Rouen, il se rendit en 1770 à Naples, où il resta jusqu'en 1780. Rappelé à Paris, mais refusé à l'Académie des Beaux-Arts, malgré les promesses qu'on lui avait faites, il y resta jusque vers 1787. s'attacha ensuite à la cour princière des Lubomirski, séjourna environ vers 1790 à Varsovie, puis dans le domaine d'Opole, propriété des Lubomirski, jusque vers 1805, retourna à Paris, y devint directeur de l'Ecole de gravure en pierres et de la Monnaie, et mourut en 1826 à Saint-Germain-en-Laye.

Le château de la famille Lubomirski, à Przeworsk (peut-être aussi celui de Lancut, tous deux en Galicie), conserve certainement des œuvres inconnues du maître, dont on n'a décrit que trente à quarante environ.

Comme, d'autre part, on n'a jamais signalé les deux camées (il taillait très rarement des camées) que le collectionneur d'antiquités nommé Schmidt-Cionzynski, connu autrefois aussi à Paris, légua au Musée national de Cracovie, il n'est pas inutile d'en donner la description suivante que je dois à l'obligeance de M. Koperd, directeur de ce musée :

Invent. n° 1724. Camée. Jaspe à 2 couches, la couche supérieure couleur café, la couche inférieure foncée. Buste d'une jeune femme. Signé : Jeuffroy. Hauteur : 20 millimètres; largeur : 13 millimètres.

Invent. n° 1741. Camée. Agatonyx à 2 couches, la couche supérieure d'une blancheur lactée, la couche inférieure transparente. Buste d'un abbé, le regard tourné vers la droite. Signé : Jeuffroy. Sur le revers l'inscription suivante :

A. M. et M^{me} Dégérando

Paris, 1808.

The unique specimen in lead of the Descente en Angleterre medal by this artist was sold by Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson and Hodge on April 6, 1906 for £ 21 (now in the British Museum). It was thus described in the Sale Catalogue by Mr. W. J. Webster :

Lot 148. TRIAL PIECE IN LEAD, from the die of the original and very rare Napoleon medal relating to the intended Invasion of England; obv. Laureate and nude bust of Napoleon to right, below, JEUFFROY FECIT, and DENON DIREXIT in two lines; R. DESCENTE EN ANGLETERRE, Hercules standing, squeezing a Triton to death, and in the exergue, FRAPPÉE A LONDRES — EN 1804 in two lines, with plain edge, a fine medal of great historical interest.

* * The dies of this medal were engraved in Paris at the time when Napoleon was preparing his expedition against England, and after the taking of London (?) they were intended to have been used there. As the invasion did not take place, the medal was never struck. There is said to be only one impression in lead known : this was in the cabinet of Dr Burney, who sold this with other medals to Mr. Charles Stokes in 1846 or 47, from whom the present owner obtained it. Somewhat later, copies of this medal were struck in France and England, on which a head by Droz was substituted for that by Jeuffroy, and the former head was also used for several other medals of the Imperial series. The work on the reverse of these copies is, however, less delicately treated, the word FRAPPÉE in the exergue of the original is incorrectly written FRAPPÉ on the imitations, and the edge (on some) bears an inscription in raised letters, MEDAL | COPIED | FROM THE | FRENCH. The latter were struck at Birmingham.

J. M. Signature on a medal of Prince de la Paz, 1806 (Vives 197).

J.M.R. Signature on a coronation medal of Alfonso XIII, 1902.

JOBST, HEINRICH (Germ.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist of Nuremberg, now residing at Darmstadt. By him is a Plaquette commemorating the Jubilee of Giessen University, 1907 (struck by L.Ch. Lauer).

JOHANNEAUX, GERVAIS (French). Mint-master at La Rochelle, 1490: a crescent or two crescents.

JOHANNES (Flem.). Mint-master in Brabant, latter end of XIIIth century.

JOHN, Sir W. GOSCOMBE (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 71). At the Royal Academy 1907 this artist exhibited a wax impression of the Municipal Seal for the Borough of Merthyr Tydfil; — Portrait-medal of Thomas Edward Ellis; — Seals for the National Museum of Wales, etc., and in 1912, Model design for the Seal of the National Museum of Wales; — Portrait of H.R.H. The Prince of Wales; the Investiture medal; — 1918. Silver Medal, Cardiff School of Art.

Among his earlier medallic works we note: 1899. Medal for the National Eisteddfod Association; — 1902. Memorial to the late Sir Arthur Sullivan; bas-relief in bronze; — 1903. Two medals, obv. and rev.

JOHNSON (Brit.). Contemporary Die-sinker and Engraver, whose address is given on some tokens as 28 York St., London Rd., and on others 45 Old Bailey, London. I have seen by him Shilling and Sixpenny Tokens of Billingsgate Market, in Mr. L.L. Fletcher's Collection.

JOHNSON, ROBERT (Brit.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, residing in Putney, London. He exhibited at the Royal Academy, 1912, a Portrait-medallion of the late Sir Charles Lawes-Witte-wronge.

LE MONETE DI VENEZIA. Descritte ed illustrate da Nicolò Papadopoli Aldobrandini. Parte III. Da Leonardo Donà a Lodovico Manin, 1606-1797. U. Hoepli, Milano, 1919. 4to. Text: 1102 pages + Plates LII-CL.

This volume completes Conte Papadopoli's magnum opus on the Coinage of Venice. What we have said of the preceding volumes is equally true of the present. Not only is the work an exhaustive record of all types and varieties of the currency issued for many centuries by the Mistress of the Adriatic, but it is also a scientific survey of the financial and economic life of the famous Republic.

Conte Papadopoli's task has been an arduous one and we take this opportunity of offering him our respectful congratulations on this great achievement, which more than any others, in his long political career, or as a benefactor of his illustrious city, will hand down his name to posterity.

MEDALS OF THE RENAISSANCE. By G.F. Hill, Fellow of the British Academy. Oxford (Clarendon Press), 1920. Large Quarto, 203 pp. + xxx Plates. £ 2.10.0 net.

It would be hard to over-estimate the value and interest of Mr. Hill's latest contribution to the monumental work which he has in preparation on the Medals of the Renaissance. He tells us in his preface that the materials for this book have for over fifteen years been accumulating in his hands. To coordinate these materials was no easy task, but his mastery of the subject, his intimate expert knowledge, and sympathetic, clear and precise presentation of it, have never been better exemplified than in the beautiful volume before us. Mr. Hill is a systematic student of the Renaissance medal; he loves it; and his enthusiasm is contagious. No less perhaps than Greek coins, which appeal to the highest artistic sense, Renaissance medals, and particularly the Italian, exercise a fascination, which grows upon one. The ideal beauty of Greek coins and the realistic excellence of Renaissance medals alike delight the eye and the soul's inner vision. This affinity of charm, notwithstanding the differences of style and technique, is so real, that seldom do we find a collector of Greek coins who does not also collect Renaissance medals. Mr. Hill has divided his subject into eight chapters:

- I. Medallistic technique.
- II. Northern Italy in the fifteenth century.
- III. Rome and Florence in the fifteenth century.
- IV. The Italian Medal in the sixteenth century.
- V. German Medals.
- VI. Medals of the Netherlands.
- VII. French Medals.
- VIII. England and Scotland.

To these are added a select bibliography, key to the plates, and a copious Index. The medals, illustrated on thirty excellent collotype plates, are well selected among the finest productions of the different schools of Renaissance medallistic art; they embody in a tangible and visible shape the powers that have inspired them, and they bring even the uninitiated into contact with those glorious Masters whose works remain as imperishable witnesses of their skill and genius.

TWO MEDALS OF ENGLISHMEN. By G.F. Hill, 1919 (Plate). Reprinted from the Numismatic Chronicle, Vol. XIX.

The two medals described here turned up at about the same time in France. One of them, that of William Villiers, second Earl of Jersey, is now in the British Museum. It was made in 1703, and is a casting by the Florentine artist, Massimiliano Soldano-Benzi. The other medal, which is still owned by a Paris collector, depicts Tanfield Vachell (1668-1705), of Coley, Reading, High Sheriff for Berks and M.P. for Reading in 1701 and 1705. Mr. G.F. Hill ascribes it to Benedikt Richter, a Swedish medallist who visited England in 1703, in which year he made also the medals of Sir Jacob Bancks and Sir William Rich.

ADMIRAL VERNON MEDALS, 1639-1742. By Dr. M.H. Storer, Massachusetts Historical Society Magazine, April 1919, pp. 187-275.

This is by far the most exhaustive account and description of the Vernon medals that has as yet been published. These medals, which interest British as well as American students, were issued to commemorate the operations in the West Indies of Vice-Admiral Edward Vernon during the years 1739-1741, namely, the capture of Porto Bello, the fiasco at Cartagena and the contemplated attack upon Havana.

Dr. Storer has been able to give descriptions of no less than 339 varieties of these medals (Betts only gave 166); to these Lord Milford Haven added 38 in an article in the Numismatic Chronicle, describing 183 in all in his recent work on British Naval Medals (Murray, 1919). The medals fall into six main divisions: viz. (1) Vernon in general, (2) Porto Bello, (3) Fort-Chagre and Cartagena, (4) Cartagena alone, (5) Havana, (6) Vernon and others; and they consist of some forty main types, more or less modified. They are thought to have been struck in Ireland; two of them are signed I. K. DUBLIN. Silver specimens are rare; most of them are in Pinchbeck metal.

Dr. Storer, in his introduction to the description of the medals, has brought together a wealth of clearly arranged material which throws fresh light on the history of Vernon's expedition against the Spanish settlements in the West-Indies.

NUMISMATIQUE SAVOISIENNE. Supplément au 'Corpus Numorum Italorum', par Ch. Le Hardelay. Extrait de la Revue numismatique, 1916-17.

Mr. le Hardelay is to be congratulated in possessing so many unpublished varieties of Savoyard coins and in describing them he has rendered a public service. The series begins with Amadeus VI (1343-1383) and includes Victor Amadeus III (1773-1796), comprising in all 87 coins, chiefly small, and issued from the mints of Aosta, Asti, Bourg, Chambéry, Cornavin, Gex, Montluel, Nice, Nyon, Turin and Vercelli.

To the careful description of the coins is appended a table of the mint-and masters' marks, and a list of the Mint-masters responsible for the coinage of the Dukes of Savoy from 1343 to 1796.

Monnaies de cuivre émises par la Banque de Montréal. "The Copper Tokens of the Bank of Montreal". Eugène G. COURTEAU, M.-D. Saint-Jacques, Que. Canada, 1919. In French and English in parallel columns.

We have just received from Dr Eugene G. Courteau a copy of his work upon "The Copper Tokens of the Bank of Montreal", and an exceedingly interesting one it is, going into the history of the Bank as a commercial enterprise, and also into the reason for the issue of the tokens.

Having been at great pains to carefully compare the numerous specimens which passed through his hands, this eminent Canadian numismatist has published 88 distinct varieties many of which have not hitherto been noticed, and add greatly to our knowledge of this section of the coinage of our premier Colony.

Many thanks are due to the author for his clear descriptions of the differences in the varieties under notice, and this latest addition to the literature on the science of coins.

The illustrations are another attraction, and include two splendid views, one of the old Bank building and another of the new, in addition to the principal types of the tokens.

The book, crown 4to, cardboard covers, 25 pp. is published at 1.50 $ net and should find a ready sale.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MODEL COINS OF 1847 and 1848

Sir.

The idea of using two metals in a coin to prevent forgery originated in Stuart times but it was not I believe until 1847 that it was suggested that the size of the current coins might be reduced by this means.

The model penny and half penny intended to have a copper rim and a silver centre are well known and the following paragraph from the Art Union Journal for 1847 (Vol. IX, p. 390) is interesting as throwing some light upon the issue.

"New Penny Coinage. — Mr. Dowse whose name appears in the above notice has also forwarded to us a specimen of his new penny coinage, the adoption of which by the government would be an immense boon to the public in these days of two penny and three penny bus fares when the traveller's pockets groan beneath the weight of copper he is occasionally compelled to carry.

Mr. Dowse's penny is a beautiful little coin about the size of a sovereign the larger portion being copper in the centre of which is strongly inserted a piece of silver bearing on one side Her Majesty's profile and on the other "One Penny". The proportionate relative value of these two metals is seven eighths of silver and an eighth of copper; and a saving in bulk and weight is hereby effected on the penny piece in ordinary use of 700 %. We think the authorities of the mint might find it worth their consideration."

The preceding paragraph referred to an invention by Mr. Dowse of a patent vellum cloth.

The model penny was therefore issued in 1847 and a model crown intended to have a silver rim and a gold centre was issued in the following year. This model crown is dated 1848 and is stated on the reverse of some specimens to have been published by H. Hyams.

Mr. Montagu in his book on English Copper coins (2^d edition, p. 131) refers very briefly these model coins as being private speculations issued in 1848. He states that the penny and half penny have the centre of white metal and that they occur also wholly in silver.

Mr. Batty in his work on Copper coinage (p. 1156) describes a number of varieties with the centres of copper, brass, brass-plated or white metal. He does not mention any specimen wholly in silver or with a silver centre.

The designs of the obverse of the centres of the before mentioned crown penny and halfpenny were also used for models of a penny, halfpenny and farthing intended to be struck wholly in silver and for models of one half, one quarter, one eighth and one sixteenth of a farthing in copper.

Mr. Batty states (p. 1169) that, there was a model in copper for one thirty second of a farthing. This must have been very minute for the model one sixteenth has a diameter of only one quarter of an inch. Incidentally Mr. Batty mentions that he had two specimens but that they both disappeared from his collection. I have a small medal in gold of "Louis le Désiré" which measures only three sixteenths of an inch in diameter.

OBITUARY

DR. V. A. SMITH.

Mr. Vincent Arthur Smith C.I.E., D. Litt., a retired Indian Civil Servant, and a distinguished historian of India died on Friday, February 6th, 1920, at 6, Fyfield Road, Oxford. He was the son of Dr. Aquilla Smith and was born in Dublin in 1848. He had a remarkably successful academic career at Trinity College, Dublin, and entered the Indian Civil Service in 1871. He held a number of responsible positions in India, and retiring in 1900, he came to England first residing in Cheltenham and then in Oxford. While in the East he devoted most of his leisure to the study of Indian history, numismatics, art, and archaeology, and contributed many articles on these subjects to the principal Oriental journals, some of them dealing with the early coinage of India. In 1904 his "Early History of India" was published and it passed through several editions and is recognised as a standard work on the subject. An equally important place has been given to his "History of Fine Art in India and Ceylon". As a Sanscrit scholar Mr. Smith wrote on the Coinage of the early Gupta dynasty and the antiquities of Mathura. He also compiled the first volume of the "Catalogue of the Coins in the Indian Museum, Calcutta" and wrote the "Oxford Student's History of India" of which seven editions have been issued, "Akbar, the Great Mogul" and the "Oxford History of India". In recognition of his distinguished services in Oriental research the Royal Asiatic Society presented him, in 1918, with its Triennial Gold Medal.

ROMAN REPUBLICAN COINS.

PAPIA.

A plebeian family of consular rank, and originally belonging to Lanuvium. The Papii were tribunes of the people, who passed the law named Papiæ respecting vestals and strangers.

- 82854 Lucius Papius. Rome. B.C. 80. Α. Obv. Head of Juno Sospita r., wearing goat's skin tied under chin; behind, symbol, amphora. Ρ. Λ. ΠΑΠΙ (in exergue). Gryphon galloping r.; beneath, symbol, hydria; edge serrated. Bab., 1, B.M.C., 1. 372 (2978). V. F. " 5 "
- This moneyer is only known to us from his coins. The worship of Juno Sospita (or Caprotina) was introduced at Rome from Lanuvium, the birth-place of the Papiæ gens. She was the protecting genius of the female sex; she is always portrayed wearing a goat's skin. There is usually a relationship between the symbols on the obverse and reverse.
- 82855 — Α. Similar; symbols, bucket with handle and wine skin (B.M.C., 2988). V. F. " 9 "
- 82856 — Α. Similar; symbols, bucket or cauldron with handle, suspended to pot hook, and triple flesh hook (B.M.C., 2989). V. F. " 7 "
- 82857 — Α. Similar; symbols, clapper of three pieces of wood, and fan or fly-flap (B.M.C., 2997). V. F. " 9 "
- 82858 — Α. Similar; symbols, crowbar and pick (B.M.C., 3007). V. F. " 9 "
- 82859 — Α. Similar; symbols, disc and ring with cord (B.M.C., 3012). E. F. " 10 "

- 82860 — Α. Similar; symbols, dolphin and tunny fish (B.M.C., 3015). F. " 5 "
- 82861 — Α. Similar; symbols, plasterer's float and trowel (B.M.C., 3021). V. F. " 9 "
- 82862 — Α. Similar; symbols, helmet with long spike, and cup with handle (B.M.C., 3037). V. F. " 9 "
- 82863 — Α. Similar; symbols, scalpum, or tanner's knife, and scraper (B.M.C., 3061). F. " 6 6 "
- 82864 — Α. Similar; symbols, spear and saddle cloth (B.M.C., 3068). F. " 6 6 "
- 82865 — Α. Similar; symbols, standard and serpent (B.M.C., 3074). V. F. " 9 "
- 82866 — Α. Similar; symbols, staff with strap and ninepin (B.M.C., 3072). V. F. " 9 "
- 82867 — Α. Similar; symbols, vase with handle and spout, and lamp-feeder (B.M.C., 3085). V. F. " 9 "
- 82868 — Α. Similar; symbols, vase with two handles and a vase (ampulla), both with strings for suspension (B.M.C., 3086). F. " 6 6 "
- 82869 — Α. Similar; symbols, olive and another fruit. V. F. " 9 "
- 82870 — Α. Similar; symbols, altar on stand and lighted altar. V. F. " 8 "
- 82871 — Α. Similar; symbols, mouse and cock. E. F. 1 5 "
- This is a beautiful coin with the symbols struck very finely and clearly.
- 82872 — Α. Similar; symbols, ram's head and jug with handle. F. " 8 "
- 82873 — Α. Similar; symbols, fan or fly-flap and sprinkler. V. F. " 10 "

PETRONIA.

A Roman family, which although of the plebeian order, was of consular rank and of the most ancient date. All the coins are rare.

- 82874 Publius Petronius Turpilianus. Rome. B.C. 14. Α. Obv. Bust of Feronia r., draped, wearing diadem ornamented with pomegranate buds and necklace; below, FE[RO]; around, ΤΥΡΠΙΛΙΑΝΟΣ [III. VIR]. Ρ. A Parthian warrior with bare head, kneeling r. on r. knee, in attitude of submission, and holding standard in r. hand, his l. extended; he wears braccæ and cloak of skin; around CAESAR AVGVSTVS SIGN. RECE. Bab., 9. B.M.C., II, 64. Rare. F. D. C. 2 " "

PLAETORIA.

A plebeian family of Sabine origin. They had the surname of Cestianus.

- 82875 Marcus Plaetorius Marci f. Cestianus. Rome. B.C. 68. Female bust, Vacuna r., draped, winged and hair in ringlets; wearing crested helmet encircled with wreath of laurel, corn, poppy, and lotus; at her shoulders, quiver and bow; behind bust, CESTIANVS; before, s.c. Ρ. Μ. ΠΛΑΕΤΟΡΙΟΣ Μ. Φ. ΑΕΔ. CVR around Eagle standing front of thunderbolt; head to l. Bab., 4. B.M.C., I, 441. V. F. " 8 6 "
- M. Plaetorius was curule aedile in B.C. 68, so the reverse type probably refers to this office. Vacuna was a Sabine divinity, who combined in her person the attributes of Diana, Ceres, Venus, Victory and Minerva.
- 82876 — Α. Similar. V. F. " 6 "
- 82877 — Α. Obv. Young male head (Bonus Eventus) r., with long flowing hair; behind, symbol, hook or grappling iron. Ρ. Μ. ΠΛΑΕΤΟΡΙ CEST. EX. S.C. divided by a winged caduceus. Bab., 5. B.M.C., I, 438. F. " 3 "
- It is possible that this and the next few coins record a special largesse of corn, which may have occurred about the time of the celebration of the Ludi Cereales.
- 82878 — Α. Obv. Female bust (Ceres) r., draped, wearing circular earring and necklace; hair in a bag or net, and ornamented with poppy heads; behind, symbol, jug. Ρ. Similar. Bab., 6. B.M.C., I, 437. A beautiful coin. Rare. F. D. C. 2 " "
- 82879 — Α. Similar; symbol, shield. F. D. C. 1 15 "
- 82880 — Α. Similar; symbol, ladle. V. F. " 10 "
- 82881 — Α. Obv. Similar; symbol, bee (?). Ρ. Similar legend. Jug with handle and lighted torch. Bab., 7. B.M.C., I, 436. V. F. " 4 "
- 82882 — Α. Obv. Female bust (Fortuna) l., draped; behind, symbol (?). Ρ. Pediment of temple within which anguiped monster, with r. hand raised, and holding club in l.; on base of pediment and below Μ. ΠΛΑΕΤΟΡΙ CEST. S.C. Bab., 9. B.M.C., I, 434. Very rare. V. F. 1 10 "

PLANCIA.

A plebeian family very closely related to the Plautia gens.

- 82883 Cnaeus Plancius. Rome. B.C. 54. Α. Obv. Female head r., Diana Planciana, wearing petasus; hair in long locks; before, CN. PLANCIVS; behind, AED. CVR. S.C. Ρ. The Cretan goat standing r.; behind, bow and quiver. Bab., 1. B.M.C., I, 491. V. F. " 4 6 "
- The obv. type commemorates the military command of Plancius in Macedonia. The rev. type no doubt illustrates his connection with Crete.

PLAUTIA.

A plebeian family, as is indicated by the tribunes of the people elected therefrom, but some of its members enjoyed the highest honours of the republic.

- 82884 Aulus Plautius. Rome. B.C. 54. Æ. Obv. Head of Cybele r., turreted; before, A. PLAVTIVS; behind, AED. CVR. s.c. ℞. Bearded figure, Bacchius, in eastern dress, kneeling r., with camel at his side; he holds in extended r. hand an olive branch, and bridle of camel in l.; in exergue, BACCHIVS; on r. IVDAEVS. Bab., 13. B.M.C., 1, 490. E.F. » 10 »

The head of Cybele may refer to the Megalesian games which were under the direction of the curule aediles, and on the celebration of which these coins were probably struck. The rev. refers to the campaign of Pompey, in which Plautius took part as a commander.

- 82885 — Æ. Similar. F. » 4 »

PLUTIA.

- 82887 Calus Plutius. Italy. B.C. 150-125. Æ. Obv. Head of Roma r.; behind, X. ℞. ROMA on tablet. The Dioscuri on horseback charging r.; below, horses C. PLVTI. Bab., 1. B.M.C., II, 248. F. » 2 6

The moneyer is unknown and belongs to an unknown family.

POBLICIA.

A plebeian family, but of consular rank.

- 82888 Marcus Poblilius; Cnaeus [Pompeius] Magnus. Spain. B.C. 46-44. Æ. Obv. Head of Roma r., wearing crested helmet; around M. POBLICI. LEG. PRO. PR. ℞. Hispania or Baetica, draped, standing r., holding in l. hand two spears, to which a shield is attached, and with r. presenting a palm-branch to Cnaeus Pompey who stands l. on a prow; he is armed with a sword; below and on r., CN. MAGNVS. IMP. Bab., 10. B.M.C., 1, 394. Scarce. V.F. » 15 »

M. Poblilius was legatus pro praetore to Cn. Pompey in Spain, and it was in that capacity that he issued these coins for the use of the legions. Cn. Pompey was the eldest son of Pompey the Great.

- 82888a — — Scarce. F. » 12 6

POMPONIA.

This family, although it aspired to derive its origin from Numa, or from Pompo, the son of that king, was nevertheless of the plebeian order, as is shewn by the tribunes of the people, who belonged to it.

- 82889 Lucius Pomponius Molo. Italy. B.C. 89. Æ. Obv. Head of Apollo r., laureate; around, L. POMPON. MOLO. ℞. NVM. POMPII (in ex.). Numa Pompilius, diademed, holding lituus in l. hand, standing r. before a lighted altar, at which he is about to sacrifice a goat, which is led by a youth. Bab., 6. B.M.C., 2, 311. V.F. » 12 6

This type is an allusion to the supposed descent of the gens from Numa.

- 82890 Quintus Pomponius Musa. Rome. B.C. 67. Æ. Obv. Head of Apollo r., laureate; before ear, ornament in shape of flower; behind, two pipes (tibiae) crossed. ℞. Q. POMPONI—MVSA divided by the Muse, Euterpe, in long flowing tunic and peplum, standing r., supporting her head with her l. hand, her elbow resting on a pedestal, and holding two pipes (tibiae) in r. hand. Bab., 13. B.M.C., 1, 443. V.F. » 15 »

This moneyer had ten types of coins representing Hercules Musagetes and the nine Muses, which are no doubt intended as a punning allusion to his cognomen. It is possible we have in these representations a reproduction of the statues of Hercules and the nine Muses, which M. Fulvius Nobilior placed in the temple erected by him in the Circus Flaminius. The Muse represented on this coin is, Euterpe, the Muse of Lyric Poetry.

- 82891 — Æ. Similar. F. » 10 »
82892 — Æ. Obv. Similar; behind, wreath with fillet.

℞. Q. POMPONI MVSA. The Muse, Polymnia, in long flowing tunic and peplum, standing facing, her head bound with wreath. Bab., 15. B.M.C., 1, 444. F. » 7 6

This is the Muse of Rhetoric, she stands in a pensive mood.

- 82893 — Æ. Obv. Similar; behind, tortoise. ℞. Q. POMPONI MVSA divided by the Muse, Terpsichore, in long flowing tunic and peplum, standing towards r., holding lyre in l. hand and plectrum in r. Bab., 18. B.M.C., 1, 444. V.F. » 12 6

This is the Muse of Dancing holding the plectrum and lyre, which she is said to have invented.

- 82894 — Æ. Obv. Similar; behind, sandal. ℞. Q. POMPONI MVSA divided by the Muse, Thalia, in long flowing tunic and peplum, standing l., holding l. elbow on pedestal, and holding mask in outstretched r. hand. Bab., 19. B.M.C., 1, 445. V.F. » 15 »

Thalia is the Muse of Comedy.

- 82895 — Æ. Obv. Similar; behind, eight pointed star.

℞. Q. POMPONI MVSA divided by the Muse, Urania, in long flowing tunic and peplum, standing l., and touching with wand in r. hand, globe resting on a tripod. Bab., 22. B.M.C., 1, 445. E.F. » 1 » »

Urania is the Muse of Astronomy.

- 82896 — Æ. — — V.F. » 15 »

PORCIA.

- 82897 Publius Porcius Laeca. Italy. B.C. 90. Æ. Obv. Head of Roma r.; behind, P. LAECA; above, ROMA; below chin, X. ℞. PROVOCO (in exergue). A Roman warrior wearing cuirass and armed with sword, standing l. and placing his hand on the head of a togate figure; behind him, a lictor holding fasces. Bab., 4. B.M.C., 2, 301. Fouéré. F. » 2 6

The types refer to the passing of the 'Lex Porcia de provocatione', which gave to the Roman citizen residing outside the city the right of appeal in criminal cases against the decision of magistrates acting in their military capacity.

This is a cousin of the former moneyer.

POSTUMIA.

A patrician family, and as such always remained unadopted by any plebeian family. It was divided into many branches, the noblest of which was the 'Albini'.

- 82902 Aulus Postumius Auli f. Spurius Nepos Albinus. Rome. B.C. 82. Æ. Obv. The bust of Diana Aventina is again to commemorate the events connected with the battle of Lake Regillus. The hound was the constant companion of this goddess in her capacity as the Huntress.

- 82911 Decimus Postumus Albinus Brutus f. Rome. B.C. 49. Head of Pietas r.; behind PIETAS. ℞. Two right hands joined, holding winged caduceus; below, ALBINVS. BRVTI. F. Bab., 10. B.M.C., 1, 508. V.F. » 6 6

Decimus Brutus, who was one of the assassins of Julius Caesar, was adopted by a member of the gens. These coins were probably struck under Caesar's orders on his return to Rome; and the types denote the good feeling which existed between Caesar and the people, and in the caduceus may be seen a reference to the special distribution of corn in B.C. 49.

This includes a very fine series of first Brass.

MARCUS AURELIUS.

Marcus Annius Verus, son of Annius Verus and Domitia, born at Rome, A.D. 121. He was adopted by Antoninus Pius, A.D. 138, and was named in that year Caesar and Consul; and from that period was called M. Aelius Aurelius. He married Annia Faustina daughter of Antoninus Pius in A.D. 145. At the latter's death (A.D. 161) he succeeded to the Empire, being proclaimed by the Senators, in conjunction with Verus, his adopted brother, whom he generously took for his colleague. He then took the name M. Aurelius Antoninus. He died after a prosperous reign, beloved of most, in A.D. 80. His children were Commodus and Lucilla.

FAUSTINA JUNIOR.

Annia Faustina was the daughter of Antoninus Pius and Galeria Faustina (Senior). By the desire of Hadrian she was destined to become the wife of L. Verus, but after Hadrian's death, Antoninus gave her in marriage to M. Aurelius. She was decorated with the title of Augusta while her husband was merely Caesar. She died A. D. 175, whilst on the way to join her husband in Syria. She was the mother of Lucilla, Commodus and his twin Antoninus, Annus Verus, etc. She was a very beautiful woman, but lived a life of licentiousness and crime, unworthy of her father and husband, whose virtues have been the theme of eulogy in every age.

LUCIUS VERUS.

Lucius Verus, whose original name was Lucius Ceionius Commodus Cilius Aurelius, was born at Rome in A. D. 130. After the death of Antoninus Pius (A. D. 161) he received the titles of Caesar and Augustus, and was raised to the joint sovereignty by Marcus Aurelius his brother by adoption. He had many military triumphs. He married Lucilla, daughter of Aurelius in A. D. 64. He died of apoplexy in A. D. 169.

LUCILLA.

Annia Lucilla, daughter of Marcus Aurelius and of Faustina the younger. Handsome and at first virtuous she was married to Lucius Verus. Forsaken by him, she gave herself up to lewdness and excess. After Verus's death, to which Lucilla is accused of having been an accessory, she lived with Commodus as his mistress; abandoned by him she conspired against that tyrant, by whom she was exiled to Capreae, where she was shortly after put to death.

COMMODUS.

Marcus Lucius Aelius Aurelius Commodus Antoninus, was the son of M. Aurelius and of Faustina Junior; and was born at Lanuvium in A.D. 161. In 180 he succeeded Marcus Aurelius to the sole sovereignty. Many campaigns were carried out during his reign, including one in Britain. He perished in A.D. 192 at the age of 31, by a violent death. For cruelty and profligacy he is classed amongst the worst of the many bad princes who swayed the affairs of Rome.

CRISPINA.

Bruttia Crispina, daughter of Bruttius Praesens, a man of consular rank. She was a woman of great beauty, and was married to Commodus, in A.D. 177. On account of adultery she was divorced, a few years after his accession to the throne, by her infinitely more profligate and abandoned husband. Shortly afterward she was put to death by his orders (A.D. 183).

PERTINAX.

Publius Helvius Pertinax, son of a freedman and timber-merchant. Having adopted the military profession, he rose rapidly till he became a consul. On the death of Commodus he was selected to fill his place being an able, honest and sober minded man. He was, however, unfortunately assassinated after a reign of 87 days by those who did not like his reforms (A.D. 193). His coins are rare.

THE SHORT CROSS COINAGE OF HENRY II—HENRY III.

There would seem to be in the minds of many collectors some difficulty in distinguishing the coins belonging to the various classes into which the short cross issues are divided. The difficulties are perhaps more imaginary than real, and it requires but little attention to details to be able to arrange the coins chronologically in our cabinets to-day.

The short cross coinage was ordered in 1180 during the reign of Henry the second and it was replaced in 1248 by the long cross coinage of Henry the third. There was no alteration of type during all these years, nor of obverse legend, and we have abundant documentary proof that the names of Richard I and John could never have appeared on their English coinage. It is quite impossible to be sure which were the last coins of Henry II or the first coins of Richard I, nor can we say with certainty where the division is to be made between Richard I and John or between John and his son Henry the third. All that can be suggested is the class during which the change of occupancy of the throne occurred. The short cross coinage is now divided into eight well marked classes, some of which are further subdivided.

The first four classes can be separated at once from the later four because the coins are all larger in diameter. Let us take these four classes in order.

Class I. Large coins very well made. The king's bust usually appears not quite full-faced, due to a distinctly unequal number of curls representing side-locks; these are usually two on the right side and five on the left side. It is quite unimportant whether the engraver has added another little curl on either side. There are also usually five pearls representing the king's crown, here shall too an additional pearl is of no consequence. The lettering is distinct and well worked.

This first class is subdivided as follows.

Class Ia. Coins on which a Roman E or an open C or both occur.

Class Ib. Coins of careful work with the closed α and α.

A dot is almost invariably placed between the words of the obverse legend hENRIQVS REX.

Class Ic. Coins of the same type where the work has become coarse and the lettering indistinct. The dot is usually missing in the obverse legend. It is probable that all the coins of Class I belong to Henry II, and only these, for when Richard I came to the throne he granted a mint to Lichfield and restored the minting privileges to Canterbury. We have no coins of Canterbury which at all resemble the coins of Class I, but several which closely resemble the unique Lichfield coin, and there are coins of London and other places of this type, so that Class II must represent the first issue of Richard I.

Class IIa. The Lichfield type. Here we get a small round face with staring eyes due to these having been punched in with pellets and thus showing no pupils. The curls are many on each side of the head, and are small and do not stand out in two bunches on each side of the head. The dot is absent in the obverse legend and the work is coarse and untidy.

Class IIb. A bust of about the same size, fewer and more distinct curls; a colon is placed either side of the word ON on the reverse and this in the simplest way of distinguishing these coins as the colon only appears on class IIb.

Class III. Some improvement has here taken place. The King's head shows two bunches of side-locks each of many curls. These stand well away from the head. A well marked beard is also shown.

Class IV. A large degenerate class which shows perhaps sufficient variation to suggest further subdivision. The curls are equal on both sides of the head, sometimes two, sometimes one. All details are left out; thus the beard may be represented by a few scattered pellets, the crown by a line rather than by separate pearls. The latest members of the class have a reversed 2 wherever the letter occurs, thus, always in the king's name hENRIQVS and also on the reverse if there is an S in the name of the moneyer or the mint. The initial cross on a few of these late coins of class IV is a cross pommée instead of the regular cross pattée. This reversed 2 in connexion with a cross pommée gives us the clue to the class which followed these ill made coins of class IV which ended in 1205. In this year we are told that the money was changed. "Mutatio monetæ facta est" and again "moneta olim AD MCLVIII facta hoc anno est renovata". This new coinage is easily recognisable in the very well made small coins of class V.

Class V. Small coins, well struck and well designed but copied from class I. A few have the dot in the obverse legend which had been absent from all the coins after class Ib. A few also have an unequal number of curls. When the type had been definitely settled two or three curls on each side are shown.

Va. Cross pommée mint mark. Reversed 2 wherever the letter occurs ornamental Cs and Cs are sometimes present on this first variety of class V. The X of RXX is a square equal limbed cross placed saltire wise.

Vb. Ordinary cross as mint mark. Normal S no ornamental letters.

Vc as Vb but the X in RXX is now represented by four wedges meeting at their thinnest ends something like a St. Andrew's cross. The bust is not so well drawn, though of the same type. The X is the simplest test for class Vc. Many mints were occupied in the production of this large class but they began to fall off in class Vc which is represented by 10 mints as against 16 mints in class Vb. The duration of the whole of class V with its varieties was from 1205 until 1218. In this latter year we are told that the site of the Northampton mint was sold and that the mints of London, Canterbury, Bury St. Edmunds, Durham, Winchester and York were placed under the jurisdiction of William Marshall Jr.

The coins issued by these 6 mints constitute the next class.

Class VI. Very like class Vc as to the bust and the number of curls, two or three each side of the head. The letters however are much longer. The X in RXX is now a distinct quatrefoil. This distinguishes the class from class Vb and the dot which has always been present either side of ON in the name (except in class IIb with its colon) will distinguish it from the class which follows. In class VI ornamental letters are again found on the coins of London, Canterbury and Bury St. Edmunds. The α and α have flourishes, and straight letters may have their strokes in duplicate. This only occurs on some examples of class VI as on class Va, not on all. The end of class VI came in or about 1223 when we learn that the king told certain Low Country towns that in future London and Canterbury were to be the only minting places. We must suppose that the ecclesiastical mints of Durham and Bury were not mentioned as they had special privileges which they certainly exercised. York and Winchester disappeared.

SHORT-CROSS COINAGE: GENERAL TYPES.

Class VII. Little coins with a small head and small letters. The X in RÆX is a quatrefoil. There is never a dot either side of ON on the reverse. No ornamental letters. The coins were only issued by the four mints above mentioned. The issue was a long one and the coins are very commonly met with. They were struck by 10 moneyers at London, 16 at Canterbury, 3 at Bury St. Edmunds. This class VII was followed at some uncertain date (but probably about 1242) by a small class of very uncouth ill made coins class VIII. These like class V a were copied from class I but were very badly copied. The dot however appears on some of them between HENRIQVS and RÆX. The moneyers' names on those of London and Canterbury show us that they were coined by men who had been striking in class VII. The Bury St. Edmunds moneyer is a new one John. Durham appears to have been closed.

A word must be mentioned of Rhuddlan mint. In 1240 the town was taken by Henry III and this is the earliest date that can be given to the short cross coins struck there. It was not an English mint but the coins were copied from class VII and class VIII. It is this date of 1240 or thereabout that suggests the end of class VII and the beginning of class VIII. The latter class must have gone on until the issue of the long cross coinage in 1248, because we find the moneyer Nicholas of London and Canterbury of class VIII striking at the same places on the early long cross coins and that the same thing happened at Bury St. Edmunds, where the John of class VIII reappears on the early long cross coins of Bury.

SHORT CROSS PENNIES.

(See the article by Dr Lawrence, col. 318).

A collection of 159 short cross coins comprising all the mints except Rochester, Shrewsbury and Lichfield. All the classes and nearly all the subclasses are present and a reasonably large selection of moneyers. There are many varied busts and other minor varieties. The coins are mostly fine, some are extra fine, and a few are poor. Price £ 10.10.0.

THE LONG CROSS COINS OF HENRY III AND EDWARD I.

In the year 1247 it was decided to replace the old coins with the short cross by a new coinage of a different design. The chief reasons for this alteration were the disgraceful condition into which the old coins had fallen both from the careless manufacture and the attentions of clippers. The design of the new coins shows on the obverse a full-faced head of the king wearing a crown. Side locks are shown two on each side and the whole design for the head is quite conventional and make up of punch work with pellets and crescents. The beard consists of pellets, the curls of crescents with a pellet within each one.

There is an inner circle of dots completely surrounding the head; outside this is the legend of the king's name and title. The reverse shows a long double cross ending in small pellets and going to the extreme edge of the coin. There are groups of three pellets in each angle of the cross. A dotted inner circle is present which separates these pellets from the letters of the legend, the moneyer's name and that of the mint, and outside this is another dotted circle, often incomplete.

This general type is shown on the whole coinage and the slight alterations in it are the guide for the classification. The coinage was recalled in 1279, some years after Edward the first ascended the throne in succession to Henry III.

There is abundant documentary evidence during the period and the dates of the majority of the moneyers are known.

The coins fall naturally into two divisions, namely those without a hand holding a sceptre and those in which this symbol of royalty has been added to the design.

The former are the earlier, though the descriptions in our text books would lead to the opposite conclusion.

Division A without sceptre.

Class Ia. Obverse legend HENRIQVS RÆX, reverse legend ANGLIA TÆRRI with no mint name or moneyer's name, mint mark on obv. only star and crescent.

Class Ib. Obverse legend HENRIQVS RÆX ANG, reverse legend LIETÆRRI and the first three letters of the mint name LON, CAN AED for London Canterbury or Bury St. Edmunds. Mint mark star and crescent.

Class II. Obverse legend HENRIQVS RÆX TÆRRI, mint mark star. Reverse legend moneyer's name and that of the mint. The head on this class is a long thin one with a pointed chin or beard. Issued by all the chief mints and many of the smaller ones.

Class III. Coins reading HENRIQVS RÆX III, mint mark star. They are divided into Class IIIa. With the head as on class II and a pellet between RÆX and III.

Class IIIb. With a round head and the pellet between RÆX and III.

Class IIIc. With lines showing neck and with two pellets colonwise between RÆX and III and a pellet between the two curls on each side of the head. These coins were issued in great profusion all over the country. The only mint not issuing any of them was Durham.

Division B with sceptre.

Class IV. Sceptre hand between HENRIQVS and RÆX. The star mint mark, struck at London, Canterbury and Bury St. Edmunds. All the country mints were closed and Durham had not yet opened.

Class V. Sceptre hand between RÆX and III. The mint mark removed and the beginning of the legend shifted to the left (the king's right) side. This large class is subdivided into many varieties.

The first of these is the height of the central ornament of the crown; varieties a, b, c, all have this ornament almost cutting into the letters of the legend above, and it usually consists of three pellets on a stalk called a high crown. In a and b the king's eyes are round; a differs from b in the shapes of some of the letters notably the R which has a curved tail in a and a wedge shaped tail in b. Class Vc has oval eyes, little crescents occur on b and c round the curls but on c rows of little pellets often follow the lines of the head.

Class Vd. Here we see a complete alteration by the use of an entirely new set of punches. The crown is realistic instead of being a simple band with a large pellet at either end and the central ornament as above described. The new crown has a well marked fleur de lis by the band of the crown being double. A row of pellets is commonly found before the h of hENRIIVS.

Class Vg only differs in having a single thick band to the crown and on the absence as a rule of the row of pellets beginning the legend. This class is a large one and the workmanship became worse and worse as time went on. Its central ornament of the crown, first a well formed fleur de lis, degenerated in the late issues into 3 pellets trefoilwise. The late varieties group themselves together as Class Vh and they are probably the last coins issued in the reign of Henry III. Durham has now been reopened.

Class VI, consisting of two coins, one of Durham and one of Bury St. Edmunds, is extremely barbarous but is interesting as showing for the first time round N in place of the old square N. The general type of coin is adhered to but some attempt at making realistic curls instead of crescents and pellets is observable.

Class VII is the well known last type of the long cross coinage issued in 1278 under Edward I. The king's bust has the Edwardian sidelocks. The letters are punched in with a new set of irons. These coins are only known of the two mints of London and Bury and with the exception of the London coin struck by PhELIP are of the greatest rarity.

TYPES OF THE LONG CROSS COINAGE.

de lis in the centre and a half fleur de lis at each side. The letter punches are thick and clumsy and the N is usually barred reversely. Class Ve has a row of pearls inserted on the band of the crown. It is otherwise the same as class Vd. The Canterbury coins of these classes read hEN as the mint name and those of Bury St. Edmunds BERI. There is much muling between the varieties c, d and e.

Class Ve was very soon replaced by the first of a set of coins with a much lower central ornament to the crown. There are pellets filling the field where space is left between the bust and the inner circle and these pellets are frequently in lines following the outline of the neck of the king.

The first variety of these low crown coins is class Vf easily recog-

WILLIAM I.

ST. DAVIDS.

- 84238 Hks., 241. B.M.C., type VIII. Paxs. Blundered legend. Cf. B.M.C., Pl. XXIII, 16, and British Numismatic Journal, Vol. II, Plate illustrating "The Saxon, Norman and Plantagenet coinage of Wales", no. 17 on plate. RR. E. F. 2 5 »
- 84239 Another, also of the Paxs type. Blundered legend. Cross pommée on the King's right shoulder. Brit. Num. Journal, Vol. II, p. 50, no. 18 on plate. RR. E. F. 3 » »
-  Major P.W.P. Carlyon-Britton in his article in the British Numismatic Journal states that the cross pommée on the King's right shoulder is an unmistakeable sign of the ecclesiastical origin of the coin bearing this mark, and adds "St. Davids, in the remote west of Wales, the site of an ancient episcopal if not archiepiscopal See, the resting place of the patron Saint of Wales, a celebrated shrine of pilgrimage visited by William the Conqueror himself, seems to fulfil all the conditions required by the money under consideration".

GREEK COINS.

ATTALIA OF PAMPHYLIA.

The coins of the two seaport towns by which St. Paul entered and left Asia Minor are here placed together instead of taking the cities of that country in the order in which they were visited in that first Missionary journey. St. Paul would not be able to cross the mountain ranges between Pisidian Antioch and Perga much earlier than the latter part of May, and as he preached in Perga he was probably waiting for a ship there in June and being disappointed by some unknown difficulty in obtaining a passage thence, walked the 16 miles from Perga to Attalia. The population of these seaport towns consisted of such a mixture of races and were of such a fluctuating character that it did not appear a suitable field for missionary work, hence we only read of Paul's passing through. Attalia, now called Idalia must be distinguished from the Attalia in Lydia; both cities were named after Attalus II surnamed Philadelphus and founded about the middle of the second century B.C. The legends on the coins of these two cities help in distinguishing those belonging to each city. The coins of the Pamphilian city bear the legend ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ while those of the Lydian city bear ΑΤΤΑΛΕΑΤΩΝ. From Strabo (Bk XIV, 4) we gather that Attalus II enlarged an old city which had been called Corycus and when he had built a wall around it and improved it with new buildings he renamed it after himself.

The houses and walls of the modern Adalia contain many fragments of ancient columns and pieces of sculpture. Many more fragments belonging to the Roman period are found in the cemetery outside the city. Adalia is now the chief port along the coast of Pamphylia. A plan of the port and city from an Admiralty chart is given in Lewin's Life of St. Paul, p. 155.

Many of the types on the coins refer to cults brought from Pergamum by Attalus, those for instance of Zeus and Athena. May it not be possible that the rare type of two heads of Athena on the obverse of no. IV may refer to the goddess of Pergamum and the goddess of Attalia? We have two figures of Nemesis on coins of Smyrna n° 241, B.M.C., n° 408 also.

Other types refer to local cults as those of Artemis, Dionysus and Nike, especially that of Poseidon and the symbols connected with his cult, the steering oar and the dolphin.

BRONZE COINS CIRCA 150 B.C.

I. Size .6. Obv. Head of Poseidon wearing trænia, to right.

Rev. Poseidon standing to left, wearing himation over the left shoulder and lower limbs: his left hand resting on a trident, his right extended, and below it a dolphin.

Legend: ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Written in perpendicular line to right.

II. Size .65. Obv. Head of Athena to right wearing Corinthian helmet.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Nike advancing to left, a wreath in her extended right hand.

III. Size .45. Obv. Similar to n° II.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Artemis to right wearing short chiton; in her left hand a bow, her right hand draws an arrow from the quiver behind her shoulder.

The legend in perpendicular lines on each side of type.

IMPERIAL BRONZE WITHOUT HEAD OF EMPEROR.

IV. Size .7. Obv. Two heads of Athena side by side to right wearing crested Corinthian helmet; border of dots.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Nike advancing to left, a wreath in her extended right hand.

V. Size .6. Obv. Bust of Poseidon to left, in front a trident round which a dolphin twines: border of dots.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Nike advancing to right, a wreath in her right hand, a palm branch in her left: border of dots.

VI. Size .6. Obv. Similar to last, head to right.

Rev. Same legend, Apollo to right shooting with bow: border of dots.

VII. Size .55. Obv. Dolphin to right: border of dots.

Rev. Same legend, steering oar: border of dots.

BRONZE COINS BEARING HEAD OF EMPEROR.

VIII. Size .8. Obv. Bare head of Claudius to left: border of dots.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Head of Athena to right wearing crested Corinthian helmet: border of dots.

IX. Size .8. Obv. Head of Domitian to right laureate: border of dots.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Bust of Athena to right, wearing crested Corinthian helmet and aegis: border of dots.

X. Size .8. ΑΚ ΤΡΑΙΑΝΟΣ ΠΑΡΘΙΚΟΣ. Head of Trajan to right laureate (ἀρχαρχατορ καὶ αὐτὸς Τραιανὸς).

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Similar to n° IX.

XI. Size .8. Obv. ΑΝΤΩΝΙΝΟΣ ΚΑΙΣ. Head of Antoninus Pius, laureate, wearing paludamentum and cuirass.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Male figure clad in himation standing to right; in his left hand an uncertain object.

XII. Size .79. Obv. ΑΥΤΟ ΚΑΙΣΑΡ ΑΝΤΩΝΙΝΟΣ ΚΕ. Head of Antoninus Pius, to right, laureate.

Rev. ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ. Bust of Athena to right wearing crested Corinthian helmet and aegis.

The only new coin types of interest in the reigns of later Emperors are Nemesis on coins of Commodus and Gallienus; a bust of Serapis on coins of Commo lus; and Helios in a biga on coins of Caracalla.

In the reign of Valerianus a bronze coin size .125 bearing on the Reverse an agonistic prize vase on a table. The legend ΑΤΤΑΛΕΩΝ ΙΕΡΟΣ ΟΙΚΟΥ ΜΕ ΝΙ ΚΟC ἱερός (ἀλυμπία) οἴκου μενίζης (ἀγών).

The coin is presumed to refer to games mentioned in inscriptions as given every five years (Bull. Corr. Hell., X, pp. 149, 150).

Although these late coins do not illustrate the coinage of the days when St. Paul visited the city we sometimes find that an ancient cult was not represented on the coinage until the third or fourth century A.D.

The temples which St. Paul may have seen or passed by on his way to the quay where his ship was waiting were probably those of Artemis, Athena, Zeus, Nike and Dionysus.

A port from which ships passed to Egypt would probably have had a temple to Serapis and the cult of Nemesis was so common in Asia Minor that it is not unlikely a temple to that goddess also existed in those days.

The type of n° IV is not easily understood because the two heads are evidently masculine with strong jaws and developed throats and if only the usual pointed caps were on their heads they would at once be described as the Dioskuri. These coins however shew Corinthian helmets on the twin heads and probably they are unique if we regard the heads as those of the twin brethren. The type is described generally as Athena on whose head the Corinthian helmet so often occurs, not however because it was a headdress especially made for females, for there are numbers of examples of male heads wearing that form of helmet on the Greek vases especially heads of soldiers fighting Amazons, and the same helmet is seen on coins bearing the head of Leukippos of Metapontum.

Very similar to the type of n° IV is that found on silver coins of Bruttium struck between 282-203 B.C. but the helmets on those coins are the normal pointed caps. The Dioskuri are not often found as types on Greek coins and only on those of Bruttium and Istria do the two heads appear on the Obverse. On the Istrian coins the bare heads are very peculiarly treated being placed facing in two directions, one upwards the other downwards (B.M.C., Thrace, p. 25). The cult of the Dioskuri was prevalent on the coast of the Euxine. The difficulty raised by the Attalian coin consists in the fact that no one has proposed any suggestion as to the attribution of the heads if they are recognized as male, and the fact that no other instance is known of the heads of the Dioskuri wearing the Corinthian helmet. When we realize that Attalia was a sea port, and that maritime symbols are found on other Attalian coins, the probability that the two heads were meant to represent the Brethren is great.

Two heads of the Dioskuri occur also on coins of Mantinea in Arcadia but they also are wearing conical helmets and holding spears over their shoulders (400-385 B.C.). When we consider the late date of the Attalian type and the character of the mixed population of Attalia is it quite impossible that an unusual headdress should have been placed on the heads of the Brethren? Strabo (I, III, 2), "In like manner (i.e. that of the heroes) the Dioskuri gained the appellation of guardians of the sea, and the deliverers of seamen"; and again Strabo (V, III, 5) refers to the embassy of Demetrius to Rome to complain of the piracies allowed by the Romans, saying they who had a temple in Rome to the Dioskuri, called saviours by all, should put down the pirates.

The beautiful passage in the Helen of Euripides (1511) well illustrates the general idea of the character of the Dioskuri: "May you come upon the dark blue wave of the sea and the coerulean foam of the waves whitening on the sea sending to sailors gentle gales of winds from Zeus."

No. 36. — Part of a "Hydrostatical" set of scales, by James Jackson Birmingham, in lidded rectangular oak-case. $5 \times 3 \frac{3}{4} \times 1 \frac{1}{2}$ in. Label inside reading: —

"Directions how to use the Hydrostatical Scales".

Be careful to fix the reversed Bridge of the Scale-beam steady and even in the slit on the Top of the Frame, so that the Weight-scale may rest on the Table of the Frame; then fix your Piece of Money in the Pincers, and prove weight as with other Scales: then immerse the Money and Pincers in Water, and put a Water-Weight marked with the value of the Money into the Scale over the Pincers (without removing the Grains, if there be any in the Scale for short Weight of the Piece); and if the Piece of Money sinks in the water, 'tis Standard Gold; if not, for every Grain Weight requisite to make it sink, so many times Four Shillings are wanting in the Value of that Piece.

N.B. The Water-Weights are proportion'd to Pieces of Money that are of Full Weight; therefore, if any Piece be twenty Grains under Weight, take back one Grain before you Weigh in Water"; together with a contemporary label in manuscript reading: —

'F. Browning, Sept. 13th 1779', followed by table of allowances in pence for light gold coins.

Box bottom lined with green baize.

A long shallow lidded locker with sloping bottom is provided for the grain and water weights along the whole length of upper edge of the right-side of the case.

Back-edge of case pierced to carry "Frame".

JOHNSON, STABILIMENTO STEFANO (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 79).

This firm was established in 1836, but did not come into note until 1866, when the works were transferred to the present commodious buildings, which in late years have been greatly extended, under the able direction of Comm. Federigo Johnson and his son, Signor Stefano Johnson, who on one of my visits to Milan, in the spring of 1912, had the kindness to show me over the works and allowed me to inspect the Museum, which contains specimens of the coins, medals, plaques, bronzes, statuettes, etc., produced by the firm, as well as a collection of Roman coins and an extensive series of Portrait-medals connected with Italian history from the earliest times, a large section being devoted to the prolific mementoes of the Risorgimento.

From the Catalogue "delle Medaglie e Placchette coniate dal 1884 al 1906", issued on the occasion of the inauguration of the Milan International Exhibition, 1906, the following list of medals and plaquettes is compiled: Plaquettes and Medals commemorating the Milan Exhibition and Inauguration of the Simplon Tunnel, 1906; — Medal of the School of Applied Arts of Milan (modelled by Prof. Pogliaghi, dies engraved by Cappuccio); — Medal of the R. Mr. R. J. Eidlitz brings to my notice a medal of Giuseppe Sacconi, 1905; Æ 60 mill., in his collection, and adds a note, that the signatures of A. Cappucio, E. Fare, F. Sassone and A. Taddis appear on medals struck at S. Johnson's establishment.

This firm issued in 1914 under the title La Conquista della Libia nelle Medaglie MCMXI-MCMXIV a booklet describing not only all the numerous medals issued by them to commemorate the conquest of Tripoli, but the colonial wars of Venice in the eighteenth century.

JOINDY, FRANÇOIS JOSEPH (B.D.M., Vol III, p. 81). By this Medallist is a Medal of the Société d'océanographie du Golfe de Gascogne, created under the patronage of the Prince of Monaco.

JOLY, ANTOINE (French). Mint-master at Narbonne, 1591-94: letter I.

JOLY, CHARLES PAUL RENÉ (French). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, born at Courbevoie (Seine); pupil of Claudius Marioton and Amédée Delattre. At the Paris Salon, 1912, he exhibited a Portrait-plaquette in bronze of M^{me} Joly.

JONES, JOHN (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 82). Born about 1798, died about 1875. From Strickland Dictionary of Irish Artists, I, p. 556, we cull the following details: "He commenced his career in a subordinate capacity in the establishment of the younger Mossop, in Dublin, and there learned his art. After Mossop's death in 1827 he set up for himself, and from 1830 to 1838 was established at 78 Dame Street as a Die-sinker and Medallist. In 1839 and 1840 he was in America where he made some money; and returning to Dublin he resumed his former business, which he carried on at 45 Marlborough St. from 1841 to 1866, and afterwards until 1875 at 37 Summer Hill. Clever artist though he was he met with but little encouragement. Writing in 1843 the Rev. R. Dawson says: "His tools and presses are now rusting in his workshop, and a talented professional native educated in an excellent school has the mortification of finding himself neglected and English artists employed to record Irish events." (Transactions of R.I. Academy, Vol. XIX, 1843). "Besides executing several medals of merit, notably that for the Royal Agricultural Society, Jones struck some from Mossop's design and dies."

A full description of Jones's medals will be found in the Kilhenry Archaeological Society's Journal, Vol. XVIII, p. 320. One I have omitted in my preceding account is that of the Rev. James Rice's Academic Institute; an adaptation of Mossop's design for the Feinaglian Institute Medal.

JONES, C. (Brit.). Gem-engraver; exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1824 an impression from an intaglio with bust of Mr. Knight, comedian.

JONES Mrs (Brit.). Gem-engraver, exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1783 a sulphur cast from a head of Mercury; engraved on cornelian.

JONES, Col. J. (Brit.). Officiating mint-master at Bombay, under Col. J. A. Ballard, whose term of office extended from 1862 to 1879.

JONES, OWEN (Brit.). Designed the reverse of the Hong Kong dollar and half dollar dated 1866, 1867 and 1868, also the obverse and reverse of the Abyssinian war medal 1867-1868.

JONES, WILLIAM (Brit.). Mint-master at Madras, from March 1800 to February 1805.

JONGELINCK, PIERRE (Flem.). Mint-master at Antwerp, 1524-1542.

JONGELINCK, THOMAS (Flem.). Mint-master at Antwerp, 1542-1548.

MÉDAILLE « POUR LA FRANCE »
COMMÉMORANT LE CONCOURS MILITAIRE
DES INDIGÈNES COLONIAUX FRANÇAIS
A LA GRANDE GUERRE (1914-1918).

Les colonies françaises ont participé à la Grande Guerre par l'envoi de 545.000 indigènes qui ont combattu au front ou servi à l'arrière¹, par l'envoi aussi de produits variés et même par la souscription de sommes importantes aux emprunts nationaux.

Médaille commémorative de la participation militaire des indigènes coloniaux à la Grande Guerre (Face).

Médaille commémorative de la participation militaire des indigènes coloniaux à la Grande Guerre (Revers).

L'opinion allemande a bien senti le poids de cette collaboration; les artistes boches en ont donné la preuve par la frappe de plusieurs médailles sur lesquelles nos coloniaux ne paraissent qu'en tenue de sauvages². Sans doute ont-ils voulu par là les ridiculiser; ils leur ont plutôt rendu hommage en indiquant ainsi que leur rôle n'est pas passé inaperçu dans la grande mêlée mondiale.

Toutefois il était juste et digne qu'à ces médailles satiriques répondissent du côté français, des documents numismatiques d'un tout autre esprit. C'est ce qu'a senti l'éminent artiste J. P. Legastelois qui a tenu à commémorer cette aide des Francs d'outre-mer dans la galerie métallique qu'il consacre à la Grande Guerre.

La première des médailles envisagées vient de voir le jour, non sans de longs retards dus à la surcharge de travail de la Monnaie de Paris; elle est consacrée à la participation des indigènes aux combats. Deux autres médailles célébreront ensuite leur travail dans les arsenaux, usines, hôpitaux et d'un autre côté, le concours des populations elles-mêmes apportant les produits exotiques des rives lointaines vers la France attaquée, mais rayonnant dans le monde.

L'œuvre nouvelle de Legastelois est du module de 68 m/m.

Son avers représente une troupe pittoresque de soldats de toutes races, casqués ou en coiffure nationale, armés, en marche vers la gauche, portant leurs fanions bigarrés d'ancres, de croissants, de mains de Fatma, de dragons. Au centre, le drapeau national que décorent la fourragère et la croix et aussi les glorieuses inscriptions: Dahomey, Soudan, Madagascar, Maroc, est tenu haut par un officier métropolitain qu'entourent tout d'abord les recrues des vieilles colonies de la Martinique, la Guadeloupe, la Réunion. Plus bas, à tout seigneur, tout honneur: au premier plan un Sénégalais, sous-lieutenant, la poitrine ornée de la croix de guerre, de la médaille militaire et de la Légion d'honneur. Puis viennent un Algérien, un Annamite, un Tunisien, un Dahoméen, des Marocains, des Malgaches, des Tonkinois, des Cambodgiens, reconnaissables à leurs types, leurs coiffures ou leurs fanions; on aperçoit même un des Tahitiens de l'armée d'Orient qui a réussi à conserver une fleur de tiaré à l'oreille, et au loin des spahis, et dans le ciel l'avion du capitaine cochinchinois Do-huu.

Une légende plane au-dessus de cette armée, très simple, très compréhensive aussi: Pour la France. Et par une coïncidence heureuse, ces trois mots sont les trois derniers du discours de réception du général Lyautey à l'Académie française (8 juillet 1920), de la péroraison dans laquelle le grand colonial glorifie le petit soldat qui "quelle que soit sa couleur.... se fait casser la tête pour la France."

1. Chiffre donné par le général Mangin dans ses récents articles de la Revue des Deux Mondes.

2. Médaille par W. Eberbach: Verdun die Weltblutpumpe, 1916. — Médailles par K. Goetz: Kulturtrager, 1914; Im Siegestaumel, 1918; Circenses, 1919.

Le revers présente les noms de toutes nos possessions d'outre-mer groupées en Frances d'Afrique, d'Asie, d'Amérique et d'Océanie, autour d'un écusson central qui reste libre pour une inscription éventuelle en creux ou en relief. Sur cette sorte d'hémisphère, le grand groupe Maroc, Algérie, Tunisie, occupe une place éminente, alors que l'exiguïté de l'espace libre et les nécessités artistiques n'ont pas toujours permis de donner à chacune des autres colonies l'espace exact correspondant à son importance.

Cette belle médaille fait grand honneur à son auteur. D'autre part c'est un hommage mérité rendu à nos indigènes coloniaux qui pourront se reconnaître sous le casque et l'uniforme des poilus de France; ceux qui les ont commandés là-bas et ici, ceux qui les ont formés et se sont formés à leur tête pour les grandes victoires d'Europe, seront sans doute heureux de voir leurs modestes soldats à l'honneur d'un document numismatique de haute valeur d'art et d'une durée infinie. Ainsi sera-t-il dignement répondu aux lourdes satires des médailleurs d'Outre-Rhin.

BRITISH IMPERIAL BRONZE COINAGE. 1860-1918.

PART IX.

EDWARD VII. 1901-1910.

1. — FARTHING, 1902.

O. — Legend: — EDWARDVS VII DEI GRA: BRITT: OMN: REX FID: DEF: IND: IMP: Head and truncated neck of the King and Emperor in profile and looking to the right. Below the truncation of the neck: — DES (De Saulles). The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Legend: — FARTHING. The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the plumes on Britannia's helmet and the head of her trident. Emblem of Britannia looking to the right. The figure is wearing a helmet adorned with plumes. Some of her long, thick, wavy hair rests on her right shoulder. An ornament round her neck with each end terminating in a scroll. She is draped in a long flowing robe with an ornament on each shoulder and fastened on her breast with a clasp and at her waist by a garnished girdle. She is seated upon a rock with the sea in front and behind. Her right hand rests on a convex oval shield which leans against the rock, her thumb touching the space between the cross of Saint George and the cross of Saint Patrick in the first quarter of the shield. The shield bears the cross of Saint George and the saltires of Saint Andrew, and Saint Patrick, united but not heraldically coloured. Her left hand firmly grasps a plain trident. A sandal is fastened to her right foot with straps. The rock on which she is seated is cut off by a straight line, forming an exergue, containing the date, 1902. The whole within an ornamented rim.

NUMISMATA MISCELLANEA.

17. AUSTRALIAN NICKEL COINAGE.

A much esteemed Australian correspondent kindly writes to me as follows: —

I have been informed that Australian nickel pennies and half-pennies will probably be issued in the near future. For some time past the Mint officials have been engaged on the design of the coinage and other details. As a result, specimens of the proposed new coins bearing on the reverse a representation of the kookaburra as a distinctive Australian bird will shortly be submitted to the Treasury Officials for approval.

18. BRITISH INDIA COPPER QUARTER ANNAS DATED 1835.

In the year 1919 my friend Mr. Edward Stanley Gotch Robinson, B.A., of the Department of Coins and Medals, in the British Museum, London, kindly called my attention to certain variations in the design of the reverse of the British India Copper Quarter Annas dated 1835 in the National Collection. Subsequently through the kindness of my friends Messrs. Spink and Son, Limited, London, I had the privilege of examining a considerable number of these coins and have thus been enabled to supplement the observations made by Mr. Robinson by some of my own. The following is a description of all the varieties I have seen: —

1. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — The plain Shield of Arms, Crest and Supporters of the East India Company, with heraldic colouring, together with the abbreviated Motto: — AUSP: REG: & SEN: ANG. (Auspicio Regis et Senatus Angliae = Under the auspices of the Sovereign and Senate of England). The date, 1835, above the motto, the upper serif of the first numeral slanting. The whole within a plain rim.

R. — Legend: — EAST INDIA COMPANY. Inscription, in three lines: — ONE | QUARTER | ANNA. The value in Persian above the inscription. A branch of olive on the left, and another on the right of the inscription, the lower portions of the branches being crossed below it and tied together by ribbon formed into a bow, with hanging parts. The whole within a plain rim.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 26 millimetres.

2. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 26 millimetres.

3. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 25 millimetres.

4. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the inscription, ONE QUARTER ANNA, is in larger letters, with more space between them, and the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 25 millimetres.

Similar coins of this variety were minted with the relative position of the obverse and reverse design different.

5. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the letters of the inscription, ONE QUARTER ANNA, have more space between them, the leaves on the olive branches are arranged differently, there is a berry on the left, and another on the right, below the lower part of each branch, and the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 25 millimetres.

6. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the numerals of the date are thinner, and there is more space between them, and the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the inscription, ONE QUARTER ANNA, is in larger letters, with more space between them, the leaves and berries on the olive branches are arranged differently, there are two berries on the left, and two on the right, below the lower part of each branch, the ribbon bow is of a different design, and the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 25 millimetres.

7. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the first numeral of the date has a horizontal upper serif, and the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the letters of the inscription, ONE QUARTER ANNA have more space between them, the leaves and berries on the olive branches are arranged differently, there is a berry on the left, and another on the right, below the lower part of each branch, and the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 25 millimetres.

8. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the first numeral of the date has a horizontal upper serif, and the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the letters of the inscription, ONE QUARTER ANNA, have more space between them, the leaves and berries on the olive branches are arranged differently, there is a berry on the left, and another on the right, below the lower part of each branch, the ribbon bow is of a different design, and the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 25 millimetres.

Similar coins of this variety exist in which the relative position of the obverse and reverse design is different.

9. — QUARTER ANNA, 1835.

O. — Similar to the obverse of 1, but the first numeral of the date has a horizontal upper serif, and the rim is narrower.

R. — Similar to the reverse of 1, but the letters, of the inscription, ONE QUARTER ANNA have more space between them, the leaves and berries on the olive branches are arranged differently, there are two berries on the left, and two on the right, below the lower part of each branch, the ribbon bow is of a different design, and the rim is narrower.

E. — Plain.

Diameter. — 25 millimetres.

19. CHINESE CURRENCY.

A correspondent in China kindly writes as follows : —

The Chinese Government is endeavouring to establish a standardised silver dollar which they hope will supersede the present heterogeneous mixture of silver coins. Large quantities of silver have recently been imported into China much of which has been hoarded by the people instead of being sent to the banks.

21. NICKEL AND COPPER-NICKEL COINS OF THE WORLD.

In the year 1917 Messrs. The Mond Nickel Company, Limited, London, asked me to assist them in compiling a list of countries where nickel or copper-nickel money was in general circulation and also the denominations of the nickel and copper-nickel coins that had been minted for currency in each country, and I had much pleasure in complying with their request. Most of the information was subsequently printed in a book which was issued for business purposes in 1918.

Believing that many numismatists and others interested in the subject would like to know of all the denominations and dates of the nickel and copper-nickel coins of the world I hope by the kindness of my old and valued friend Mr. S.M. Spink to give this information in future parts of the "Numismatic Circular".

22. NORWEGIAN COINAGE.

A correspondent kindly writes to me as follows : —

The Norwegian Government are contemplating the issue of copper-nickel coins of the value of Fifty, Twenty-five, and Ten Ore, and the question of reducing the quantity of silver in the Two Kroner and Kroner is being considered.

23. WALES AND THE ROYAL ARMS, AND COINAGE.

Under date June 10th, 1920, a correspondent writes : —

It is obvious that Wales had an equal claim with other parts of the United Kingdom to be represented on the Royal Arms and the Imperial coinage and the continued omission of the Red Dragon from the second quarter of the shield is a grave affront to Welsh sentiment and racial pride.

REVIEWS.

MEDALHAS PORTUGUESAS e estrangeiras referentes a Portugal. Memoria historica e descritiva baseada na Coleção iniciada por José Lamas. By Arthur Lamas. Volume I. Parte II : Medalhas Commemorativas. 4to. 500 pp. text, Indices + 107 Plates. Adolfo de Mendonça, Lisboa, 1916.

I have known Mr. Arthur Lamas for a number of years and he has often helped me in my researches over Portuguese Coin- and Medal-engravers. Not only is he a keen collector of Portuguese coins and medals — the nucleus of his wonderfully rich collection having been left him by his father — but he is also an enthusiastic student. A friend of Julius Meili, who did so much in connection with Brazilian numismatics, of da Cunha, Grogan, de Campos and other writers on the Portuguese colonial coinage, he is peculiarly fitted for the task he has undertaken.

This first volume deals with the commemorative medals of Portugal. A full description is given of each medal with the history of its origin, manufacture, and issue; biographical notes of the issuers and engravers; and all the documentary evidence available — which make the work most exhaustive.

Mr. Lamas deserves the gratitude of Portuguese and all numismatists for the signal service he has rendered to science, and we trust he may be spared to see the completion of his labour of love.

AES SIGNATUM. By T. Louis Comparette. Ext. from The American Journal of Numismatics, Vol. LII, 4to, 61 pp. + VIII Plates. New York, 1919.

We regret that, owing to pressure of business, we have so long delayed to bring before the notice of the readers of the Numismatic Circular Mr. Comparette's extraordinarily interesting and important monograph on the Aes signatum.

He deals with the subject of the origin and use of the large bronze bars that have been found in various parts of Italy and usually designated as aes signatum. Although this subject has been thoroughly investigated by many of the most distinguished scholars, unsatisfactory explanation of these bars has as yet been given, and Mr. Comparette offers only suggestions without in any way claiming finality. Yet, his suggestions, based on argumentative evidence, are convincing enough to induce as to discard the old beliefs, accepted hitherto, faute de mieux.

In another field, that of the coinage of Augustus, we have had also to give up Prof. Mommsen's theories and accept Messrs. Mattingly and Sydenham's conclusions, that this coinage, with the exception of that of the moneyers of Augustus, was issued, not from the central mint of Rome, but from Lugdunum and from the East.

"The various theories," we are told by Mr. Comparette, that have been hitherto advanced to explain these bars may be comprehended under two general heads :

- A. State issues for monetary purposes :
 1. Legal coins.
 2. Bars of legal coin-metal ; for
 - a) various ceremonial and sacred uses ;
 - b) substitutes for legal coins ; and
 - c) use in large transactions.
- B. Private issues :
 1. Private coins.
 2. Bars of bronze for export.

The literary tradition, Mr. Comparette shows us, cannot be relied upon. He does not accept either Dr. Haeberlin's or Gneccchi's theories, which he examines and refutes with forceful argumentation. He concludes that these bars were most likely commercial ingots, "the products of private enterprise, and the types trademarks to identify the products of a manufacturer."

The bars may be classified into two groups on the basis of the artistic character of the types, Greek bars and Italian bars. The Greek bars are the work of Greek artists, and comprise nine types, six of which Mr. Comparette describes under the following headings :

1. Trident-caduceus bar.
The Commercial greatness of Tarentum.
2. The Tripod and Barleyhead bar.
Alliance between Croton and Metapontum.
3. Hog-Elephant bar.
The alliance between the Italian states and Pyrrhus for the War with Rome.
4. The Eagle-Pegasus bar.
Offensive and defensive League between Rome and Carthage.

The inscription on the bar, expanded, would read Foedus ROMANOM cum Carthaginiensibus.

5. The Tripod and Anchor bar.
Croton's participation in the first Punic War.
6. The Cocks and Rostra bar.
The Guard at the Straits during the First Punic War.

The Italian bars include all the types issued in central Italy and Etruria.

Mr. Comparette has plainly succeeded in presenting a case on behalf of his theory which will require an attentive study on the part of all scholars interested in the subject.

THE SILVER COINAGE OF CRETE. A metrological Note, by George Macdonald, C.B., Fellow of the British Academy. From the Proceedings of the British Academy, Vol. LX, 8vo., 30 pp. + 1 Plate. Milford, London. Price : 4/.

The acquisition by Prof. Macdonald for the Hunterian Museum of a coin of Itanus, of the remarkable weight of 225 grains, instead of the usual 182-157 grains recorded on the other sixteen known specimens, has led the author to look into the question of the metrology of Cretan coins, and he has come to the conclusion that the dominating standard was the Aeginetic, and that next to it the most important was the Rhodian, which came into use at Arcadia, Cnossus, Cydonia, Gortyna, Lappa, Lyttus, and Polyrrhenium. In a few towns of the north-western part of the island we find Aeginetic staters and drachms of debased weight. The Attic standard also occurs, due to Athenian influence or connected with particular developments of trade.

A postscript on the Cretan silver coinage under the Romans raises a few interesting problems of attribution and metrology which are of importance and will no doubt form the subject of further enquiry.

MANUALE PER IL RACCOLTITORE DI MONETE DEL REGNO D'ITALIA. By Memmo Cagiati. 8vo, 120 pp., with numerous illustrations in the text. Naples, 1918.

This useful Manual is intended as a pocket-companion for the use of collectors of the coins of the Italian Kingdom.

Each mint — Turin, Genoa, Milan, Bologna, Florence, Naples, Venice and Rome — is considered separately, with a concise survey of its activity from the beginning of the reign of Victor Emmanuel II to the present day. Under each mint we find a full list of its issues and illustrations of each type. All the dates known of each type are enumerated and approximative values given, except for Patterns and Proofs which always command high prices.

The issues of Italian coins at the mints of Paris, Brussels, Strassburg and Birmingham; the colonial coins of Eritrea; the coins of the Republic of San Marino; and the colonial coins of Italian Somaliland form separate divisions.

Such a Manual, dealing with the modern English coins from the beginning of the nineteenth century, might easily be compiled and would no doubt find a ready welcome.

LE MONETE DELL'ANTICA CATANA. By Salvatore Mirone. 8vo, 140 pp. + 11 Plates. Cogliati, Milano, 1918. Ext. from Rivista Italiana di Numismatica, 1917-1918.

This valuable monograph on the Coinage of ancient Catana is by the competent pen of Prof. Salvatore Mirone, of the Royal University of Catania.

In his work the author has embodied all the knowledge, both historical and archaeological, available only hitherto in scattered publications. He shows himself thoroughly acquainted with all the sources of information and his contribution to the subject is distinctly helpful.

One could have wished that the illustrations were better, as they do not do justice to the coins, which are among the finest productions of Greek monetary art.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

ROYAL NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

April 15. — Mr. Percy H. Webb, M.B.E., Treasurer, in the Chair. Commander H.N. Watson, R.N. was elected a Fellow of the Society. Mr. Henry Garside exhibited specimens of nickel 20 cent and bronze ten and one cent pieces of 1908 A.D. of Sultan Ali bin Hamud of Zanzibar.

Mr. Harold Mattingly exhibited a series of billon coins of Claudius Gothicus lent by Mr. F. W. Lincoln, to illustrate the five mints of Rome, Ticinum, Siscia, Cyzicus and Antioch.

Mr. Percy H. Webb showed a second brass of Claudius Gothicus. Obv. IMP C. CLAUDIVS AVG. R. MARS VLTOR. Mars advancing to r. Mr. L.G.P. Messenger exhibited a contorniate. Obv. Bust r. DIVO TRAJANO AVGVSTO. R. Plain.

Mr. G.F. Hill gave an account of a find of Anglo-Saxon coins at Chester in 1914. The bulk of the find had been recovered through the efforts of Prof. Robert Newstead, F.R.S. who had presented to the British Museum all the specimens required to fill gaps there. About 120 coins had been seen by Mr. Hill covering the reign of Eadgar, Eadweard II and Aethelred II. A large number of mints was represented and among the more remarkable coins was a penny of Eadweard II of Guildford, a mint not previously known earlier than the reign of Aethelred II and a Lincoln penny of Eadweard II with the title Rex Angliae instead of the usual Rex Anglorum. The find afforded confirmation of the usual classification of the small cross type as the last of Eadgar and the first of Aethelred, it being the only type present of Eadgar or Eadweard II.

Mr. Harold Mattingly read a paper on the 'Mints of Claudius Gothicus' in which he gave an account of Markl's distribution of the coins of this Emperor to the five mints of Rome, Ticinum, Siscia, Cyzicus and Antioch. He supported the attribution of the T coins to Ticinum rather than Tarraco but would assign Markl's Serdica group to Cyzicus as they could not be separated in style from the coins definitely of this mint. In conclusion Mr. Mattingly pointed out that the reforms of Diocletian had been largely anticipated by his predecessors to whose work full credit had not yet been given.

May 20. Prof. Sir Charles Oman, K.B.E., M.P., LL.D., President, in the Chair.

Messrs. W. Butcher, M. Holroyd, H.M. Last, and Mons. G. Empedocles were elected Fellows of the Society.

Miss Helen Farquhar exhibited a Medal of James I, a variety of Medallion Illustrations, I, p. 197, no. 17 of which only three examples are known and that exhibited differs from the others in having the full date, without day of the month, and a contemporary frame of twisted rope; Miss Farquhar also showed a silver Counter in the style of Passe of Elizabeth daughter of James I and her husband Frederick Count Palatine — afterwards King of Bohemia — probably engraved on their marriage in 1612 — no other specimen of which has so far been noted.

Mr. Bert A. Seaby, exhibited three silver pennies of Charles II with very blundered legends.

The President exhibited 2 aurei, ten denarii and 2 quinarii of Nero to illustrate his portraiture on the silver and gold.

Mr. F.A. Walters, F.S.A., showed a remarkably fine series of bronze coins of Nero, comprising 24 sestertii, 22 dupondii and asses and 19 smaller brass coins.

Mr. Percy H. Webb, M.B.E., showed a very fine selection of bronze coins of Nero.

Mr. L.A. Lawrence, F.S.A., showed a fine dupondius of Nero with laureate head. R. Temple of Janus, of the mint of Rome.

Mr. W. Lisle Savage showed a threepenny token of the Rathmines Association 1849 and another of Hogarth Erichsen and Co. 1858, and a 1/12 anna pattern of the E.I.C. 1835.

The Rev. E.A. Sydenham read a paper on 'the Bronze Coinage of Nero'. The main object of the paper was to consider the question of the mintage of Nero's bronze coins, i.e. (1) to show that Nero's bronze coins were struck at two mints, Rome and Lugdunum (2) to consider the status of the latter and its relation to the metropolitan mint (3) to tabulate, according to obv. legends and styles of portraiture, the coins that may be assigned to the two mints respectively.

The evidence for the existence and operation of the Lugdunum mint from A.D. 22 to 68 was given at length. The criteria for determining the mintage of Nero's coins are (1) style of portrait, (2) fabric, (3) style of lettering, (4) form of obverse legend. These four criteria were considered in detail. The most important, and at the same time the most complex, are (1) and (4). The 17 styles of portrait were illustrated and the forms of legend tabulated. Certain important deductions are made from the foregoing, e.g. as to the dating of the coins, and changes in the working of the mints. In a few cases the styles of the two mints appear to overlap. Explanations of this were suggested and considered.

It was hoped that the differentiation between the products of the mints of Rome and Lugdunum outlined in this article would lead to a more scientific classification of Nero's coins than has hitherto been attempted.

June 17th. Sir Charles Oman, M.P., K.B.E., President, in the Chair.

Messrs. A. Pearl Cross, Carl Edwards, C. S. Gifford, Richard Heming, A.M.T. Woodward, Arthur C. Wyman and Dr. Lloyd Woolcombe were elected Fellows of the Society.

The Society's Medal was presented to Mr. J. Shirley Shirley-Fox R.B.A. in recognition of the work done by him and his late brother Mr. H.B. Earle Fox in mediaeval English Numismatics.

The following were elected Office Bearers for 1920-1921: President, Sir Charles Oman, M.P., K.B.E., LL.D. Vice-President, Sir Arthur Evans, LL.D., F.R.S. and Sir Henry Howorth, F.R.S.; Secretaries, Messrs. J. Allan and F.A. Walters F.S.A.; Foreign Secretary, Mr. G.F. Hill, F.B.A.; Librarian, Dr. O. Codrington, F.S.A.; Council, Miss H. Farquhar, Messrs. G.C. Brooke, L.L. Fletcher, H. Garside, L.M. Hewlett, L.A. Lawrence, F.S.A. L.G.P. Messenger, H.W. Morrieson, F.S.A. E. Shepherd and E. Sydenham.

In the course of his Presidential Address Sir Charles Oman said that his first term of office would be remembered as the period in which our silver coinage had suffered a lamentable depreciation in purity for the first time since the reign of Henry VIII. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, over excited by the sudden rise in the price of silver during last winter, declared his intention of reducing the percentage of pure metal in our coins from 92 to 50 o/o. He was implored to take the more cautious policy of suspending coinage for a few months till the crisis should have passed. He proved deaf however to any argument historical, moral or economic. The recoinage has been ordered. It has now proved to be wholly unnecessary as the price of silver has fallen as rapidly as it rose and now allows a handsome profit on a coinage of the old purity. Meanwhile we have lost the old and proved boast that the quality of our silver coinage has remained unaltered since Queen Elizabeth redeemed and abolished the base groats and testoons of her father and brother. This was only another example of the unsympathetic policy of the authorities which never considers the moral any more than the artistic merits of the mint's issues. It was on a par with the Chancellor's refusal to listen to the Society's plea for a distinctive peace issue to commemorate the victorious end of the War and with the issue of a most hideous set of military medals and decorations for the Army and Navy. It was perhaps better to have a silver coinage only 50 o/o pure than to have a paper coinage as in so many countries. The ease and cheapness of production of the latter was a strong temptation to a government to pay its debts by the use of the printing press and so to inflate the currency and drive up prices. The way back to honest money would, he feared, be long and difficult.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

April 21st, 1920. Mr. F.A. Walters, F.S.A., President, in the Chair.

Miss Farquhar, Dr. Harold R. Cross, and the Royal Scottish Museum, Edinburgh, were elected, and Mr. Henry E. Miller and Mr. Frederick Heeley were nominated for membership.

The President spoke in feeling terms of the loss the Society and, indeed, the Numismatic World, had suffered in the death of Mr. H.B. Earle Fox. He was a student and a scholar, and his knowledge of classical and British numismatics was of the highest order. As a contributor to the Journal, and joint author of the Numismatic History of the Reigns of Edward I, II and III, he was well known to all present, and his technical skill as director of the Society's research work had been invaluable. During the years 1918 and 1919 he had acted as Honorary Secretary and Editor, performing his duties in spite of failing health with his invariable ability, and the charm of his personality had endeared him to all. The vote of condolence with his brother and Mrs. Shirley-Fox was passed in silence.

Exhibitions.

By the President: Pennies of Stephen. ✱ ALFPARD: ON: NORPI, Hawkins, 270; and another with two annulets in the crown and an unusually clear portrait, probably of Lincoln.

By Mr. E. H. Wheeler: The two coins of Truro and Christchurch described by Mr. Andrew in his address, and a penny of Henry Plantagenet.

By Mr. William C. Wells. Pennies of Stephen, a coin of the normal type of * LEFSI: ON STAN, Hawkins, 270, two from the same obverse die, but from a reverse with a pellet upon each arm of the cross, and two from the same dies after a bar had been cut across the sceptre in the obverse die.

By Mr. S. M. Spink. A coin of Lincoln to show the clear reading * PERERICM:

By Mr. Dale for Lady Mildmay. Impressions of an angel, used as a touchpiece by Charles I, bearing the star mint-mark for 1640, a variety not recorded by Kenyon.

By Mr. Henry Garside: The bronze cent and ten-cents, and the nickel twenty-cents of Zanzibar, dated 1908.

Papers.

Lord Grantley contributed a paper "On a Penny attributed to Patrick, Earl of Salisbury, in the Reign of Stephen". He explained that the coin, which was exhibited to the Meeting, was of the same type as that engraved in Ruding, Sup. II, 2, 21, now in the British Museum, and in equally fine condition. It was found in 1884, during excavations for the Bell Tower of East Tytherley Church, Hampshire, and within five miles of the site of the Winterslow hoard of 1804 which contained the other example. These two coins, bearing the half figure in armour with a drawn sword before the face, were the only coins of either the type or obverse legend yet discovered, but when read together it was now possible to deduce what was probably the name and title of the baronial issuer. From the lower portions of the letters visible on his coin behind the bust he thought that Mr. Andrew¹ had rightly assumed that the Museum piece read (* PAT)RICIUS COMES, with reverse, * ST[ANNIN]G ON: SA, for Patrick de Cadurc, Earl of Salisbury, and Stanning a moneyer of that mint on Stephen's last type, Hawkins, 268. The reverse of his coin, however, was from a different die and seemed to read * ST·AN·N ON: SA.

Reviewing other coins of the baronial series, he was of opinion that those bearing the name William should be attributed to William, Earl of Gloucester, as leader, after the death of his father in 1147, of the Angevin party; and that the obverse legend of Ruding, Sup. II, 2, 1 was really intended for * WILLELMVS like its fellows. But he agreed with Mr. Andrew's attribution of another of the same class, now in his collection, to the mint of Devises.

Mr. Andrew, speaking from notes for his "Numismatic History" of the reign, reminded Members that eight years ago² he had called attention to the fact that although Stephen's second type, Hawkins, 269, was represented by hundreds of coins from fifteen mints, if he excepted a cut halfpenny doubtfully attributed to York, not one of those mints was west of London. The currency from January, 1142, for the whole of the rest of England must be looked for in the ecclesiastical and baronial issues, whether by partisans for or against Stephen, or by neutrals. Such were Hawkins, 271 to 284 and 628 to 631, and many others. The moneyer's name, as spelt on Lord Grantley's coin, occurred at Salisbury on Stephen's first type, whereas that on the Museum example appeared on his last type, so the name was changed during the use of this obverse die. But as the Winterslow hoard yielded the latter, neither coin could have been issued later than about 1143. This synchronized with the advance of Stephen into Wiltshire when Salisbury held out against him until relieved by his crushing defeat at Wilton, July 1st, 1143. Patrick de Cadurc had been seneschal to Matilda, and as castellan of Sarum we may assume that it was he who defended the castle. The creation of his earldom is in doubt before 1149, but these two coins with their martial design seem to prove that he was already an earl in 1143.

Hawkins, 273, still unique, was issued at Exeter in 1141, for it was found at Watford, and its reverse design had features in common with this class. Mr. E. H. Wheeler had lent him for exhibition a coin entirely new to our text-books. It combined the obverse of Hawkins, 276 with the reverse of the 273 coin, and he believed that it was issued by Reginald, Earl of Cornwall, at Truro, then recently created a borough by him; obverse, * ST[IFNE], reverse, * ROGER ON TRE, Treuru. That the moneyer was Earl Reginald's is proved by a reference to him in the Pipe Roll for 1157 as "Roger Peck, moneyer of Cornwall"; because it was a palatinate. As the coin is "muled" with Hawkins, 273, buried in 1141, we have again evidence that these issues took the place of Stephen's second type of 1142.

That being the case, the series bearing the name William was too early for William, Earl of Gloucester, who did not succeed his father until November, 1147, and as his father, Earl Robert would be responsible for the issues which bore the name of his nephew, Henry Plantagenet, during his minority, for he was only nine years old in 1142, so Earl William would continue the same series.

On the other hand, he quoted a passage from the Gesta Stephani which referred to the Castle of Cristiciria and thus answered the objection to the coins reading CRST being attributed to Christchurch, on the plea that the place was still called Twynham. This brought all the six mints bearing the name William within the then boundaries of the earldom of William de Moion, Earl of Dorset and Somerset. One coin bears the name DE MOI, and another, kindly exhibited by Mr. E. H. Wheeler, the legends * WVILL·DN DV·O·, reverse, * WLEEM ON: CRST, Christchurch. The letters were quite clear, and as the coin was found at Winterslow it could not have been issued later than about 1143. He had extended the obverse legend to WILLElmus DomiNus DUrotrigum¹, because the inhabitants of Dorset and Somerset were still considered as one people or tribe, the Durotriges, and that was the very reason why De Moion received the dual title. Now, he was able to quote an exactly parallel and contemporary case. A coin in Mr. Spink's collection, struck at Carlisle, by Henry, Prince of Scotland and Earl of Northumberland read * HEN CM DNS WIDI: M: for HENricus Comes DomiNus NIDuarium, for Earl Henry was Lord of the Niduarians—the Picts and Galwegians, just as Earl William was Lord of the Durotriges.

Turning to the coins reading PERERIC and PERERICM, he remarked that as their dies were obviously official they could have been issued by Matilda's party only between February and June, 1141. The two legends were clearly variants of the same form, an accusative governed by per, which in the script would be written indifferently per eric or per ericm, and in view of the Plantagenet badge it was a remarkable coincidence that per ericam would evolve.

Major Carlyon-Britton, following on this last point, thought that per ericum would be a better reading, because Matilda claimed through her father Henry I, and Henry II's name appears as Enricus, and Henry IV's as Eric itself on some of their Anglo-Gallic money, this proving that the PERERIC legend was copied from Angevin script and spelling.

After the Meeting, Mr. Andrew said that he was quite prepared to accept this construction, and it was even possible that a rebus for both was intended.

Coins of Charles I.

By Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson: The remarkable series of coins struck at the Oxford mint referred to in the report of his paper.

By the President: Half-crown, mint-mark plume, 1642, ground below the horse and reading HIBER. Shilling, 1643, obverse of the usual Oxford type, mint-mark plume; reverse, mint-mark B—R in monogram, and legend commencing at the top of the coin; two others, varied, of 1646. Threepence from an Aberystwyth obverse die but reverse "the declaration", 1644. Threepence, obverse of the Oxford type with R below the bust, mint-mark trefoil; reverse from an Aberystwyth die with plumed shield, and mint-mark open book. Threepence, mint-mark lys on the obverse; reverse, "the declaration" and date 1646, the 6 punched in the die over 4. Two half-groats from the same obverse die, but with reverses of "the declaration" in one case and a large plume with mint-mark lys in the other. Penny, mint-mark on the obverse, only, lys; reverse, a plume in the centre.

By Miss Helen Farquhar: A series of the Oxford issues, including the following: Unite, 1644, with the declaration in three lines. Silver pound-pieces, 1643, Hawkins, type 5; and 1644, type 7. The pattern crown by Rawlins, 1644, signed R; from the Rashleigh, Russell and Wigan collections. Half-crown, 1642, without the ground below the horse, the hoofs breaking the inner circle. Half-crown, 1643, small horse with the ground beneath; reverse reading PK^o; Snelling, XII, 5. Pattern shilling by Rawlins, R under the bust. Pattern shilling with bust to right, Hawkins, fig. 524. Curious shilling from an obverse die of 1643 and a reverse of 1644, reading LIBERT, but with the open R; double struck. Groat with R under the bust, 1646. Threepences, R under bust; reverse, 1644, normal, Hawkins, fig. 542. Similar obverse but with the Aberystwyth reverse. Half-groats, obverse, the Oxford bust, mint-mark mullet, with the Aberystwyth reverse. Mint-mark lys on both sides. Oxford, 1644, Ruding, XXIV, 12. Pennies, "the declaration", mint-mark pellet. Obverse bust by Rawlins, reverse the Oxford plume. Curious penny of the Oxford obverse and Aberystwyth reverse with mint-mark ∴. Obverse of the Aberystwyth type with reverse the Oxford plume.

By Mr. H. A. Parsons: Shilling of Charles I of the Lundy Island mint, 1646; obverse mint-mark a plume punched over the B—R monogram. "Evidently", he said, "a Bristol shilling of 1645 obverse overstruck with the Lundy Island mint-mark, and used with a Lundy Island reverse".

By Mr. Lionel L. Fletcher: Three interesting silver jettons of Charles I and Henrietta Maria dated 1625 and 1628.

By the President: Anglo-Gallic hardit of Henry IV on which his name read GRIG, illustrative of the discussion on the PERERIC legend at the last Meeting.

Paper.

Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson, F.S.A., read a paper on "The Silver Coins of the Oxford Mint, 1642-1646". The mint, he said, was removed from Shrewsbury to Oxford in January, 1642-3, and two days after its arrival at New Inn Hall, which had been allotted to its use, Charles I sent letters to the various College authorities asking for the loan of their plate and promising to repay the value when he was able to do so. They responded most loyally, and so long as this supply of bullion lasted there was a large output of money, both in gold and silver. The gold denominations issued were treble-, single- and half-unites, and those of silver, pounds, half-pounds, crowns and the smaller pieces, probably to the half-penny. The chief distinctions from the Shrewsbury issues were the plume, which now had bands added to it, and the figure of the King, which was of much better design and execution.

The mint was continued in operation until the surrender of Oxford to the Parliamentary forces in June, 1646, and the time might be divided numismatically into three periods: 1, January, 1642-3, to the autumn of the same year, when Thomas Bushell, the mint-master, left for Bristol; 2, during the autumn and winter 1643-4; 3, from the spring of 1644 to June, 1646.

1. British Numismatic Journal, XI, p. 198, Plate II, 5.

No description of the gold coins was at present necessary as they had been recently described by Dr. Philip Nelson in vol. XI of the Society's Journal. Of the silver there were eight varieties known of the pound-piece issued between 1642 and 1644; three of the half-pound and six of the crown, for it was the half-crown that formed the bulk of the money struck. Amongst these half-crowns were found examples of the custom of the promiscuous use of odd dies carried to the extreme, as exemplified by an obverse of 1644 being muled with no fewer than ten different reverses; and ninety-six varieties were enumerated. The shillings were not so numerous, and, like the half-crowns, were coined every year. Sixpences were not plentiful and appear only of the years 1642 to 1644. Previous to 1644 the lower denominations appear to have been struck from the dies brought from Aberystwyth, as the earliest dated are of 1644. The groats were dated 1644, 45, and 46, the threepences 1644 and 46, but the half-groats and pennies only 1644, although they must have been issued in the other years because the majority bear a reverse of the Aberystwyth type, but of different workmanship. Colonel Morrieson gave reasons for attributing these pennies to the Oxford mint, instead of to that at Aberystwyth as hitherto assumed, and demonstrated that the same obverse die was used with both the reverses.

In illustration of his subject Colonel Morrieson exhibited the following remarkable series of varieties extant of the Oxford issues in silver alone: Pound-pieces, 8; half-pounds, 3; crowns, 5; half-crowns, 74; shillings, 24; sixpences, 7; groats, 8; threepences, 5; half-groats, 3; pennies, 2.

KENT NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The usual monthly meeting was held at the Kent Friendly Society Offices on Thursday April 15th with a good attendance and Mr. W. Savage F.R.N.S. in the chair. Joseph Tomlin Esq. J.P. (the present Mayor) was welcomed as a Vice-President and the Election took place of Mr. J.W. Clark of Maidstone and Mr. Coppen was nominated. The cessation of business at the hour of eight has already proved very successful in allowing more time for the interesting side of Numismatics and upon this occasion the evening was devoted to the Paper by Mr. Savage on "The Harrington and Rose Farthings" which proved to be a most thorough research into the history of these interesting coins and was received with marked appreciation. A discussion took place on the varieties of the mint marks and the wording of the legends and Mr. Savage had on view some twenty varieties which added greatly to the interest of the paper and which we understand from him will be continued at a future meeting.

Among other exhibits there was a beautiful little gold piece peculiarly interesting to Kent as it was unearthed recently at Dover and has been submitted to this Society for examination and report through the instrumentality of Mr. H. Risch who exhibited it as a Tremissis of Constantine 913-1067 A.D. and was in splendid preservation; he also shewed a number of interesting war issues of German Bank Notes from 1 pfennig upwards.

Three rare and interesting shillings were shewn by the Hon. Sec. viz. Jas. I second issue M.M. Trefoil. Chas. I Bristol Declaration M.M. BR in monogram; and Chas. II milled shilling 1671 with the rare silver mark of Plume under the bust; and a sixpence of the present year 1920.

The usual votes of thanks to the chairman and the contributors of papers and exhibits closed the proceedings.

The customary monthly meeting was held on Thursday, May 13th at the Kent Friendly Society Office, Maidstone, when the chair was occupied by Mr. H. Risch. The election of Mr. W. Alan Coppen took place and Mr. F.K. Lock was nominated. A letter was read by the chairman from J. Shirley-Fox Esq. R.B.A. in the course of which he acquainted the Society of the death of his brother H.B. Earle Fox Esq.; the news was received with profound regret and a special message of condolence was sent to the surviving brother. Mr. W. Savage F.R.N.S. was then called upon for his promised Paper, being the second portion of his production on the Rose and Harrington Farthings. This was given to a highly appreciative audience and proved a very thorough account of the history of the coins and the varieties in which they are to be found and was illustrated by many specimens. An exhibition followed in which Mr. Savage again entertained the meeting with a number of ancient and interesting seals in red wax, which were from various sources and had formed part of an exhibit in the Great Exhibition of 1851, some of them being dated 1072, 1170, 1509, &c. A large collection of silver shilling tokens of the XIX cy. was exhibited by the Hon. Secretary, with a short account of the same, together with an old coin balance of Geo. II period recently acquired by the Society.

The monthly meeting was held on Thursday, June 10th. This being the last meeting of the present session an attractive programme had been arranged and Mr. W. Savage F.R.N.S. presided over a good attendance. The preliminary business was concluded and Mr. F.K. Lock of Maidstone was admitted to membership. A resolution was passed that a council meeting should be called to deal with various Society matters, Banking of Society Property, etc., during the Summer vacation.

A Paper was read by the Hon. Secretary, Mr. E.T. Clark, on the "Comparative value of the Penny from the Anglo-Saxon to the present day" which served to throw light on the value of labour and food, materials, clothing, etc., from many important places in Kent including the mints first set up by Aethelstan, the interesting Pains and Penalties spoken of in the Sandwich Customal were recorded, and the expenditure incurred at the Corpus Christi Hall in Maidstone on the feast day of Corpus Christi 1474-1497 when three pigs were bought for 1 s., a quarter of wheat 5 s. 8 d., twelve chickens 1 s. 6 d., twenty bushels of malt 11 s. 8 d., two hundred eggs 1 s., etc. St. Andrews Canterbury also furnished many interesting items, one Henry Okeman supplying twenty one quarts of oil for 5 s. 3 d., and a lamp glass for 1 d., one hundred of tiling lath for 7 d., etc., and one instinctively wonders if he was a forerunner of Henry Ockman of the 17th. Century Canterbury Token. Gravesend "Tipplers and Innholders" we find "amerced" for selling beer in pots of stone, or cans not being full measure and fined variously from 2 s. to 6 d., and for light weight bread from 2 s. to 10 s., "the Penny loaf to be 21 ozs", and "beer 8 s. the barrell and 4 s. for small". The origin of the coin and its name of Penny was made clear and the instance recorded of the tax of Peter's Pence, being one penny per year on all whose annual value amounted to 30 pence as established by Ina and Offa in the eighth century; the importance of its correct weight was also a great feature. King John issuing a "Penny Poise wanting one eighth of a penny to anyone who would have it". At the close of the paper a short discussion was held and a special vote of thanks accorded to Mr. Clark for his interesting contribution. The exhibition comprised a denarius of Tiberius Caesar, being the Scriptural penny, an early British Quinarius, some early Anglo-Saxon pennies, some of William I, Henry II-III, and Edward I-II-III by Mr. E.T. Clark. Mr. Savage shewed six very fine silver War Medals of the early West Kent Regt., and Mr. J. Copland sent a remarkable gold coin, a dinar of Ahmad, struck at Marrakush 1587 and found in a Grave in the Medway saltings and was therefore a most interesting Kentish item. The usual votes of thanks concluded the proceedings and the meetings will be resumed in October.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

A meeting of the Society was held in the Museum, York on April 17th, 1920, by the kind permission of the Council of the Yorkshire Philosophical Society.

Mr. J.F. Musham, F.E.S. (Selby) (President) occupied the chair.

Specimens of the Society's Peace medal were passed round for inspection.

It was decided that the Society issue a medal to be presented at the annual meeting each year to some member, who, in the opinion of the Council had done service to further the interests of the Society or the study of Numismatics generally.

Mr. Geo. Benson, F.R.I.B.A., showed on behalf of the Yorkshire Philosophical Society a fine and extensive series of Indian Coins in gold, silver and copper. Mr. Barstow (York), a gentleman who had lived in India for many years, gave a most interesting description of many of the coins.

The President described a small collection — mainly 1797 pence — which had been used as Carpenters' marks, together with other engraved memorial pieces, etc.

Mr. T. Sheppard, M.Sc., showed and described a number of Yorkshire commemorative medals struck in white metal, bronze, etc., of York, Leeds, Hull, Bradford, Ripon and other places in the county, being recent additions to the Hull Museum collection.

Mr. T. Pickersgill showed a selection from his cabinets of coins and tokens having reference to the city of York. These included Roman coins of Severus, Constantine the Great and Helena; Saxon coins of Cunetti, Canute and Edward the Confessor; English pennies of William I, Henry II, III, IV, V, VI, VII and VIII., Edward IV and VI., halfgroat of Edward III and threepence of Charles I.

Mr. W. Horne (Leyburn), showed a number of photographs which he claimed as the first photographs of coins ever produced. He had himself taken these over 60 years ago when connected with the Manchester Numismatic Society, an organisation which is now extinct. Mr. Horne showed a set of the publications issued by the Manchester Society also a Scottish groat of David II., Edinburgh mint, which had recently been unearthed at Leyburn.

Mr. A. Rider showed the Hudson-Fulton celebration medal and a series of war service badges.

There were also exhibits by Mr. F. Varley and the Hon. Sec.

At the close of the meeting the members were entertained by Mr. Benson who was thanked for his hospitality and the trouble he had taken in connexion with the local arrangements for the meeting.

J.D.F.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The February Meeting of the above Society was held in the Society's room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 26th of the month, the President, Dr. G. H. Abbott being in the Chair.

The Numismatic Proceedings commenced with the reading of the first portion of a paper on "The Coinage and Heraldry" by Mr. Henry E. Parkes.

The author divided the subject as follows:

- Part I. Coins in Heraldry
- Part II. Heraldry on Coins

The paper, which was intended to shew the direct relation of the coinage to heraldry, was illustrated by 42 coloured shields of arms of early date blazoned by the author, chiefly ranging from the time of Henry III to Edward III and shewing the manner in which the 'bezant' and 'plate' (heraldic representations of the gold bezant and silver denier or penny, the universal gold and silver denominations in Europe of the period of the rise of historical heraldry) were charged upon the shields and ordinaries, etc. As showing the extensive circulation and favour with which the 'bezant' was regarded in England in Crusading times the following note by Tindal in Rapin de Thoyras History of England (Tindal's 2nd Ed. 1732 fol. vol. I p. 244) is apposite.

"There appears to be in this reign (Henry II) a foreign coin called a bezant of the value of two shillings. For Cressalin, the Jew of Winchester, was amerced one hundred marks and he paid instead thereof one hundred bezants which were accepted by the King. Mag. Rot. Hy. II. Rot. 10. a. Sudbantesira."

An appendix to the paper was a list of the arms of the Sheriffs of England bearing 'bezants' and 'plates' compiled by the author from Thomas Fuller's Worthies of England first printed A. D. 1662.

"As a corollary to the undoubted fact, for it is thus regarded by all authorities, that the heraldic bezant is actually the heraldic equivalent of the current gold coin of the Middle Ages, conventionally thus delineated (the age that saw the rise and development of historical heraldry which occupied so large and important a space in the social and military life of that period of gorgeous pageantry and military pomp and which found its full development and splendour in the days of our third Edward and its delineation par excellence in the stirring pages of Froissart), it is interesting and important to trace the etymology of the 'plate' of English Heraldry. This word, it is evident, is directly derived from the Romance languages where in the Spanish and allied tongues plata, plato, platta, etc. means silver; but also, as in the case of the French argent, silver money, and in this sense 'plate' is used in English heraldry; for when silver shields, ordinaries and charges occur the fact is indicated by the word argent (from the Latin 'argentum' through the French) which word or its contraction Arg. is invariably used. Finally as the 'bezant' and 'plate' are the only circular disk-like charges employed in early mediaeval heraldry the circle of proof is complete; for of the seven roundels (all that were known in early heraldry) the fountain, a flat circular charge barry-wavy Arg. & Az. represents a pool of water; and as regards the red 'torteau', the azure 'hurte', the black 'pellet', and the green 'pomme', according to the author of the Notitia Anglicana they signify little bread cakes (or buns) used in the Crusades of variety of colours like our modern wafers (vide Clarke's Heraldry 9th Ed. 1818) but the 'pellet' probably represented the bolt-heads or ornamental bosses found on ancient shields the correct delineation of these four being as semi-spheres."

Exhibits of special interest were as follows:

By Dr. G. H. Abbott:

I. A beautiful ancient British gold stater. Obverse, Leaf between V E and R I (Verica). Reverse, Armed Horseman; above, O O (off the flan) (for Commii) and below F (for Filius).

Dr. Abbott referred to Caesar's account of the exploits of Com-mius, king of the Atrebatas and remarked that Tincommius and Verica, who are supposed to be his sons, were probably contemporary rulers in Hampshire and Sussex.

The illustration of a similar coin in "Coins of the Ancients" was pointed out.

II. Gold. Three very fine touch pieces of Charles II, James II, and Anne.

The Annual General Meeting was held at the Rooms, Education Buildings, on Thursday, 25th March, 1920, Dr. G. H. Abbott, President, in the Chair.

The Secretary read the minutes of the last meeting which were adopted, and then read the Annual Report of the Council. A vote of thanks to the Secretary, Mr. Priestley, for the Report.

Mr. J. Lane Mullins then proposed a vote of thanks to Messrs. Priestley and Parkes, the retiring Secretaries, and expressed much regret that they did not see their way to continue in their office. It was resolved to record it in the Minutes. Messrs. Priestley and Parkes returned thanks for the expressions of regret, etc.

The election of Officers was then proceeded with and Dr. G. H. Abbott, the retiring President, who alone had been nominated for the position as President, expressed a strong wish to retire from the position in favour of Dr. Andrews who had been asked by the Council to take the office but had declined. Mr. Gullick strongly supported, and also Messrs. Parkes and Marks, and Dr. Andrews then agreed to accept the position with some diffidence in attempting to follow in the footsteps of the retiring President.

The proposal was put as a motion and carried. Dr. Andrews returned thanks for his election.

The retiring President then thanked the members and officers for the hearty support he had always experienced while in the chair.

He then read Notes on "Countermarked Coins both Ancient and Modern." Originally marks of value, then Bankers, marks, or to make foreign coins current and legal. He showed many specimens from ancient Greek staters, and tetradrachms, coins of Palestine, Rome, Switzerland, France, Germany, Portugal, Spain, Great Britain and her Colonies, China, and eastern states, South American countries, and pointed out the almost universal use of them at some period of the history of every country.

At the close of the paper some discussion took place and a vote of thanks was passed to the author.

Dr. Abbott then left the Chair which was taken by the new President.

The Hon. J. L. Mullins then proposed a special vote of thanks to the retiring President for his services while holding the chair, this was seconded by Mr. Gullick and supported by several and was carried by acclamation.

Dr. Abbott returned thanks.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY OF VICTORIA.

The sixth Annual Meeting of the above Society was held at the Society's room, Detmold Chambers, 237 Collins Street, Melbourne, on Tuesday 16th March 1920; Mr. Wm. Howat, President, in the chair.

After the formal business had been transacted, the election of Officers took place and resulted as follows:

President — Mr. E. S. Anthony.

Vice Pres. — Messrs. W. Howat and H. A. Fisher.

Hon. Sec. — Mr. W. A. Hall, 518 Flinders St. Melbourne.

Treasurer — Mr. F. Gardner.

Council — Messrs. P. C. Clements, H. A. Schafer and D. Raymond.

The members present then formed themselves into a Committee to consider the matter deferred from last meeting, of holding an Exhibition of Coins and Medals, the first of its kind in Melbourne. As the matter had been gone into at the last meeting it was unanimously resolved that the Exhibition take place at the Temperance Hall, Russell Street, on Tuesday 23rd March 1920.

The Exhibition of the above Society was held on 23rd March, and was opened by Professor Ernest Scott, Chair of History at Melbourne University. The public was largely represented and took a keen interest in all the Exhibits, which were divided into sections in charge of the gentlemen whose names are mentioned:

British: W. A. Hall; Australian Tokens and Paper Money: Dr. Yelland (this was a unique collection); Roman and Greek: W. Howat; European: F. H. Schafer; Oriental: F. Gardner; Tokens &c. Messrs. Anthony, Fisher, Dunne, Mills and Walters.

A striking feature of the Exhibition was a fine display of Medals decorative and commemorative, by Mr. A. M. Le Souef.

It is the intention of the Society to make this Exhibition an annual fixture.

ROMAN REPUBLICAN COINS.

ROSCIA.

A plebeian family, having for its surname Fabatius, of Lanuvian origin.

- 84751 Lucii Roscii Fabati. Rome. B.C. 70. AR. Obv. Head of Juno Sospita r.; wearing goat's skin tied under the chin; below, L. ROSCI; behind, symbol, block. R. FABATI (in ex.). Female figure standing r., and feeding from her dress a serpent, erect before her; behind figure, symbol, hammer. B.M.C., 1, 424 (no. 3398). V. F. » 3 »
- 84752 — AR. Similar but symbols, curule chair and seat (no. 3429). V. F. » 3 6
- 84753 — AR. Similar but symbols, urn with cover and jug with handle, prochous (no. 3499). F. » 2 »
- 84754 — AR. Similar but symbols, cushion with two tassels and kylix. V. F. » 2 6
- 84755 — AR. Similar but symbols, sandal and shoe. V. F. » 3 6
- The obv. type suggests that the Roscia gens came from Lanuvium, the most ancient and principal sanctuary of Juno Sospita. The rev. type depicts the scene which occurred at Lanuvium at the annual festival in honour of the goddess, when a young girl descended into the grotto under her temple with food for the sacred serpent that dwelt there. If the girl was chaste she returned in safety to her home where she was greeted with much rejoicing. Crowds from Rome witnessed the ceremony and it is possible that a member of the Roscia gens may on one occasion have been selected to perform this rite. B.M.C., 1, 422.

SCRIBONIA.

A plebeian family, surnamed Libo.

- 84756 Lucius Scribonius Libo. Rome. B.C. 71. AR. Obv. Head of Bonus Eventus r., wearing diadem; before, BON. EVENT; behind, LIBO. R. A well-head or puteal, ornamented with a festoon between two lyres; below, a hammer; above, PVTEAL; ex., SCRIBON. B., 8. B.M.C., 1, 419. F. » 2 »
- The worship of Bonus Eventus, the god of 'Good Fortune' had its origin at the time that Rome became a colonizing state; he was looked upon as the divinity who favoured Agriculture. The reverse type shows the puteal Scribonianum which was erected in the Forum near the arch of Fabius. The puteal was a stone enclosure placed at the mouth of a well.
- 84757 Paulus Aemilius Lepidus; Lucius Scribonius Libo. Rome. B.C. 71. AR. Obv. Head of Concordia r., veiled and diademed; before, CONCORD; behind, PAVLLVS LEPIDVS. R. LIBO (in ex.); PVTEAL. SCRIBON (around). Similar without the hammer. B., 9 (and Aemilia, 11). B.M.C., 1, 420. F. » 2 6

SEMPRONIA.

The surnames of this family are Atratinus, Gracchus and Pitio. Of these the first were patricians, the Gracchi plebeians and the other uncertain.

- 84758 Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus. Italy. B.C. 217-197. AR. Obv. Head of Roma, helmeted, r. R. ROMA (in ex.). The Dioscuri on horseback r., below, GR. B., 1. B.M.C., 11, 223. F. » 10 »

SEPULLIA.

A family surnamed Macer, only known from its coins, struck by moneyers of J. Caesar and M. Antony.

- 84759 Publius Sepullius Macer. Rome. B.C. 44. AR. Obv. Head of Julius Caesar r., laureate, and veiled; before, CAESAR; behind, DICT. PERPETVO. R. Venus Victrix standing l., holding Victory and a sceptre, resting on a shield; behind, P. SEPVLLIVS; before, MACER (both downwards). B., 5 (also Julia, 50). Cohen, Julius Caesar, 39. B.M.C., 1, 549. S. F. 1 5 »
- 84760 — AR. Similar. V. F. 1 10 »
- 84761 — AR. Similar; but PERPETV. V. F. 1 10 »
- 84762 — AR. Sestertius Brockage. Obv. Bust of Mercury r., draped, and wearing winged petasus; behind, winged caduceus. R. (cf. B., 11. B.M.C., 1, 550). F. » 10 »
- L. Sepullius Macer was one of the four moneyers of J. Caesar at the Roman mint, for the year B.C. 44. The veiled head shows Caesar in the character of Pontifex Maximus. The reverse type of Venus Victrix refers to the claim of the Julia gens to be descended from Anchises and Venus. J. Caesar's signet ring bore this figure and his watchword at the battles of Pharsalus and Munda was 'Venus Victrix'.

SERVILIA.

An Alban family, transferred to Rome, after the destruction of Alba, by king Tullus, and elected into the patrician order. It was divided into many branches amongst which were Abala, Caespio, Casca and Rullus; the two last being plebeian.

- 84763 Calus Servedius M. f. Augur. Italy. B.C. 93-92. AR. Obv. Head of Roma r., wearing winged helmet, etc.; behind, laurel-wreath; below, X and ROMA. R. C. SERVEILI. M. F. The Dioscuri on horseback, galloping in contrary directions; above each head a star. B., 1. B.M.C., 11, 279. F. » 2 6
- 84764 Calus Servedius. Rome. B.C. 94. AR. Obv. Head of Roma r., wearing winged helmet, etc.; under chin; X; behind, lituus; below, ROMA. R. C. SERVEIL. Horseman (M. Servilius Pulex Geminus) in armour and with shield inscribed M (Marcus) galloping l., piercing with his spear another horseman, who flies before him, and is armed with sword and shield. B., 5. B.M.C., 1, 179. F. » 2 »
- The warrior here represented was elected augur in B.C. 211, filling that office for about 40 years. He is said to have received wounds in twenty-three single combats and to have been victorious in all.
- 84765 Publius Servilius Marci f. Rullus. Rome. B.C. 89. AR. Obv. Bust of Minerva l., wearing crested helmet and aegis; behind, RVLLI. R. P. SERVILI. M. F. Victory in biga r., horses galloping; she holds reins and palm; below horses' feet, P. B., 14. B.M.C., 1, 230. V. F. » 3 »
- 84766 — AR. Similar. F. » 1 6
- 84767 Calus Servedius Cal f. Rome. B.C. 63. AR. Obv. Head of Flora r., bound with wreath of flowers, etc.; behind, lituus; before, FLORA. FRIMS. R. C. SERVEIL C. F. Two warriors armed with shields, standing facing each other. B., 15. B.M.C., 1, 469. V. F. » 3 6
- Flora, a goddess of Sabine origin, who presided over flowers and gardens. Floral games were celebrated annually in her honour, at which obscenity and libertinism were carried to the highest pitch. The reverse type is again probably a reference to M. Servilius Pulex Geminus.
- 84768 — AR. Similar. F. » 2 6
- 84769 Publius (or Calus) Servilius Casca Longus and Marcus Junius Brutus. In the East. B.C. 43-42. AR. Obv. Head of Neptune r., bearded and laureate; below, trident; behind, CASCA; before, LONGVS. R. Victory walking l., holding wreath and palm-branch; behind, BRVTVS; before, IMP. B., 35. B.M.C., 11, 478. R. E. F. 2 15 »
- This coin symbolizes the recent victories of Brutus at Xanthos and Patara.

SICINIA.

A plebeian, but formerly also a patrician family.

- 84770 Quintus Sicinius and Calus Coponius. In the East. B.C. 49. AR. Obv. Head of Apollo r., diademed; below, star; around, Q. SICINIVS III. VIR. R. The club of Hercules, supporting lion's skin; on r., strung bow; on l., arrow; around, C. COPONIVS. PR. S. C. B., 1 (and Coponia, 1). B.M.C., 11, 468. E. F. » 10 »
- This coinage, which was evidently intended for the use of the fleet commanded by Coponius in the East, is of a very exceptional nature, for we have an ordinary moneyer of the Roman mint still using his official title and striking money for a praetor urbanus who has vacated his office. To justify this action the formula S. C. is added, in order that it might appear as if the coins were struck under senatorial authority. This instance is quite unique in the whole series of military coinages of the Roman republic.

SPURILIA.

- 84771 Aulus Spurilius. Rome. B.C. 150-125. AR. Obv. Head of Roma r., wearing winged helmet, etc.; behind, X. R. ROMA (on tablet). Diana in biga r.; below horses, A. SPWIL. B., 1. B.M.C., 1, 127. F. » 2 »

SULPICIA.

This house, which possessed a very ancient and illustrious name, came originally from Camera. Amongst its surnames are those of Galba and Rufus, the former being patrician and the latter plebeian.

- 84772 P. Sulpicius Galba. Rome. B.C. 69. AR. Obv. Head of Vesta r., veiled; behind, S. C. R. P. GALB (in exergue). Sacrificial implements: simpulum between knife and axe ornamented with lion's head; on l., AED; on r., CVR. B., 7. B.M.C., 1, 433. E. F. » 8 6
- This type of Galba's coins relates to his priestly functions as curule aedile, and it was in virtue of that office that he issued this special coinage, probably to meet some extraordinary expenditure.
- 84773 L. Servius Sulpicius Rufus. Rome. B.C. 43-44. AR. Obv. Head of tribune Servius Sulpicius Rufus r., bare, and bearded; around L. SERVIVS RVFVS. R. The Dioscuri standing facing, each armed with spear and parazonium, wearing pileus surmounted by star. B., 10. B.M.C., 1, 566. RR. V. F. 4 » »
- The type relates to the relief of Tusculum B.C. 374, by the Roman military tribune, Servius Sulpicius Rufus, on which occasion the Latins having captured the city forced the inhabitants to take refuge in the citadel, where the Temple of the Dioscuri was situated.

- 84774 C. Sulpicius Platorinus. Rome. B.C. 8. Æ. Obv. Head of Augustus r., bare; around, CAESAR AVGVSTVS. ℞. Augustus and Agrippa togate, seated side by side towards l. on a bisellium placed on a platform, which is ornamented with three rostra; on l. of bisellium, an apparitor's staff; around, D. SVLPICIVS. PLATORIN. B., 11. B.M.C., 11, 97. R. V. F. 3 » » Attributed to B.C. 8, the rev. type referring to the joint investment of Augustus and Agrippa with the tribunician power in B.C. 18 and to their joint-presidentship of the Ludi Saeculares in the following year.

THORIA.

A plebeian family.

- 84775 Lucius Thorius Balbus. Rome. B.C. 90. Æ. Obv. Head of Juno of Lanuvium r., wearing goat's skin tied under the chin; behind, I.S.M.R (Juno Sispes Mater Regina). ℞. Bull charging r.; below, L. THORIVS; ex., BALBVS; above bull, D. B., 1. B.M.C., 1, 225. F. » 1 6
Lucius Thorius Balbus was a native of Lanuvium. He is described by Cicero as a man who lived in such a manner that there was not a single pleasure, however refined or rare, that he did not enjoy. The most ancient cult of Juno was at Lanuvium, where the goddess was worshipped as the protectress of women not only in general but especially at the time of marriage and during pregnancy. The rushing bull is a type parlant of the moneyer's name, Thorius.

TITIA.

A plebeian family.

- 84776 Quintus Titius. Rome. B.C. 87. Æ. Obv. Male head (? Mutinus Titinus) r., with pointed beard. ℞. Q. TITI on tablet from which springs Pegasus r. B., 1. B.M.C., 1, 286. F. » 3 »
 84777 — Æ. Obv. Head of young Bacchus r., beardless; bound with ivy-wreath; lock of hair falling down the neck. ℞. Similar. B., 2. F. » 3 »
 84778 — Æ. Similar. F. » 2 6
 84779 — Æ. Coarser work. F. » 3 »

VALERIA.

A patrician and afterwards a plebeian family, one of the oldest and most celebrated at Rome.

- 84781 Calus Valeria Flaccus. Gaul. B.C. 82. Æ. Obv. Bust of Victory r., draped, hair dressed extravagantly; before, caduceus. ℞. C. VAL. FLA IMPERAT in the field. A legionary eagle between two standards, inscribed H (Haslati) and P (Principes); between them, EX. S. C. B., 12. B.M.C., 11, 388. RR. F. 1 10 »
 84782 — Æ. Similar but letter C behind as symbol instead of caduceus before. R. F. » 12 6
This moneyer was propraetor of Gaul at this time. He had previously received the title of Imperator. The obverse type was adopted from the denarii of L. Valerius Flaccus issued in Italy B.C. 90. The reverse records the services of the cohorts which accompanied Flaccus to Spain and Gaul and which earned for him his victories.

- 84783 Valerius Messalla R. (circ. B.C. 53). Æ. Obv. Bust, undraped, of Roma, turned from the spectator, head r., wearing crested helmet, ornamented at the side with feather; hair long; over l. shoulder, spear; before head, MESSAL.F (AL joined). ℞. Curule chair between the letters S.C., below, sceptre with royal diadem; above PATRE. COS (TR joined). B., 1. B.M.C., 1, 493. RRR. From the Ramon Sale. E. F. 5 10 »
Babelon thinks that the curule chair on rev. shows that Messalla was quaestor with Faustus Cornelius Sulla and that he struck money by order of the Senate; the sceptre recalling the circumstance that one of his ancestors P. Valerius Publicola, assisted in banishing the kings from Rome and was consul with Brutus during the first year of the Republic.

There is considerable controversy on the identity of Messalla, as the coins are absent from nearly all the finds of the period and are very rare.

VETURIA.

An ancient and patrician family. According to tradition one of the family lived at the time of Numa and was the armourer who made the eleven Ancilia or sacred shields like the one sent from heaven.

ROMAN IMPERIAL COINS.

ALBINUS.

A.D. 193-7 Decimus Clodius Septimius Albinus born at Hadrumetum, in Africa, of well-to-do parents. Highly educated and clever he became one of the most successful generals of the day. Governor of Britain and Gaul, at the time of Pertinax's death, he made pretension to the sovereignty and was elected Emperor by the legions he commanded in the year 193. He succeeded in causing himself to be declared Caesar by Septimius Severus; and later had him a colleague in the consulship. But no sooner was Pescennius destroyed than Severus led his army against his rival in the west; and after many sanguinary engagements Albinus was defeated and lost his life.

SEVERUS.

A.D. 193-211. Septimius Severus born of a senatorial family in Africa A.D. 146. At the death of Pertinax he was governor of Pannonia and Illyria and he was proclaimed by the legions there as Emperor. After a rapid march to Rome he caused himself to be acknowledged by the Senate. He then proceeded to the East to defeat Pescennius Niger and that was followed by the defeat of Albinus in Gaul. It was through his talents, judgment and courage that the Empire was restored to that stability which it lost under Commodus. His coins are numerous.

JULIA DOMNA.

Julia Domna, second wife of Septimius Severus, was the offspring of a plebeian family, of Emesa, in Sicily. She possessed beauty, wit, learning, eloquence. What she lacked in nobility of birth was supplied by the planet of her nativity. Her horoscope was of such a kind that she professed a perfect assurance of being at some time or other the wife of a king. Severus hearing of this circumstance, whilst still a private citizen married her on the death of his first wife. Her children were Geta and Caracalla, both of whom she outlived, and some daughters.

CARACALLA.

A.D. 211-217. M. Aurel Antoninus (called Bassianus, and nicknamed Caracalla) was the eldest son of Sept. Severus and of Julia Domna, born at Lugdunum (Lyons) in 188 whilst his father was governor of Gaul. In 202 he married Plautilla. On the death of his father he endeavoured to induce the army to acknowledge him as sole emperor to the exclusion of his brother Geta. Failing in this attempt he feigned amity towards him; but in the midst of negotiations commenced for peaceably dividing the empire between them, Caracalla murdered Geta in the very arms of his mother. He then proceeded to put to death all suspected of having favoured his brother. After this he carried on many wars till he was assassinated by a soldier of his own body-guard.

MAURICIUS TIBERIUS.

A.D. 582-602. A few days before Tiberius II died, he elected as his successor Mauricius, Count of the Foederati (barbarian auxiliaries). A good general who had just returned from the campaign in Persia. He had a reputation for piety and moderation, but his unsympathetic treatment of the army led to the revolt of the centurion Phocas, and his capture and death.

PHOCAS and his wife LEONTIA.

A.D. 602-610. Phocas who had been crowned Emperor shortly after the death of Mauricius Tiberius (see above) was an ignorant and brutal soldier, regarded by his contemporaries as a sort of monster. His reign afflicted Europe with ignominious peace and Asia with devastating war. The many conspiracies of the reign were successfully repressed by him but finally a new rival, Heraclius, defeated the tyrant's fleet and he was put to death.

HERACLIUS and family.

A.D. 610-641. Heraclius, son of the venerated Exarch of Africa, having defeated Phocas's fleet and killed that monarch, was at once proclaimed Emperor. During the earlier years of the reign, Persia captured much of the Empire including Egypt but in 622 the king decreed a national crusade which was welcomed with enthusiasm and by 628 the power of Persia was shattered. This was however followed by an Arab invasion of Egypt and Palestine which was more successful. Heraclius Constantine and Heraclonas were his sons; Martina, his wife.

 * "On October 14th 1858 at a village of Baroun near Lucknow, a party of sepoys — seventy in number — had fortified themselves in a strong brick building the only approach to which was through a very narrow street, commanded by the enemy's fire. Lieutenant Jarrett called on the men of his regiment to follow him and four responded. With only these he made a dash for the entrance, and through a shower of bullets pushed his way up to the walls.
 Beating up the bayonets of the rebels with his sword, he endeavoured to force his way in, but unfortunately, his support being so feeble, he was not successful, and under a hail of lead was forced to rejoin the main body. This brave officer died in India some years ago whilst holding the post of Conservator of Forest."

PISIDIAN ANTIOCH

St Luke relates in the Acts of the Apostles (XIII, 14) that St Paul "passing through from Perga came to Antioch of Pisidia, and (v. 49) that the word of the Lord was spread abroad throughout the region". He also attributes the persecution which St Paul suffered to "the devout women of honourable estate and the chief men of the city". This visit to Antioch took place in the year 47 A.D., the sixth of Claudius. For the events of this year confer Tacitus Annals (Bk XI). This Emperor was continuing the policy of Augustus in Asia Minor, and the old extortions and misdoings of the earlier Roman rule were no longer allowed, the result being the gradual pacification of the natives. The very roads St Paul travelled over were built by these early Emperors for the movement of the troops necessary for this work of progress. The expression "the region", used by St Luke, signifies the neighbouring lands under the authority of the rulers of Antioch, and his reference to the fact that women took part in the expulsion of St Paul is in harmony with what we know of the influence of women at that time in Asia Minor.

The inhabitants of the city and its region were men of mixed origin: Pisidians, Galatians, Greeks, Romans and Jews, the common language was Greek, but the influence of the Roman master was everywhere seen and helped to lift them from the triviality and slavishness of the Asian Hellenism.

Strabo (XII, viii, 14, Casaub. 577), the geographer of the days of Augustus gives the following description of the site and history of the city.

"The Parareia has a mountainous ridge extending from east to west. Below it on either side stretches a large plain; cities are situated near the ridge, on the north side Philomelium, on the south Antiocheia, surnamed "Near Pisidia". The former lies entirely in the plain, the other is on a hill, and occupied by a Roman Colony. This city was founded by the Magnetes who live near the Maeander. The Romans liberated them from the dominion of the kings when they delivered up the rest of Asia within the Taurus to Eumenes. In this city was established a priesthood of Men Arcaeus, having attached to it a multitude of sacred attendants, and tracts of sacred territory. It was abolished after the death of Amyntas by those who were sent to settle the succession to his kingdom."

The Colony from Magnesia appears to have been part of the work of Seleucus Nicator in pacifying the native tribes, and spreading Greek culture. The name of his father Antiochus was given to the new city.

Seleucus died in 280 B. C. In the year after, the Gauls or Galatians began their invasion of Asia Minor; Livy (xxxviii, 15) says they conquered all the land to the West of the Taurus and that even the Syrian kings were obliged to consent to humiliating terms.

Attalus of Pergamum defeated them, but they held Pessinus and Ancyra. After the defeat of Antiochus IV at Magnesia by the Romans Antioch was given in 190 B. C. to Eumenes II of Pergamum who died 159 B. C. The Gauls were conquered by the Roman consul Manlius in 189 B. C., but still they were allowed to be ruled by their own princes among whom was Amyntas (Strabo, 567, XII, vi) the successor of Deiotarus, one of the Galatian princes who succeeded Eumenes. Mark Antony allowed Amyntas to rule (Appian, V, 45) and at his death in 25 B. C. Pisidia was made a Roman Province called Galatia. Pliny (V, 24) tells us Antioch was called Colonia Antiochia Cæsarea. During the war between Mithradates and the Romans, which raged from 88 to 84 B. C., the province was over run by Mithradates and revenge for the extortions of the corrupt Roman officials was cruelly executed.

THE TYPES OF THE COINAGE.

The deities represented on the types are ten in number viz Men, Tyche, Nike, Anthios the river god, Kybele, Mars, Aphrodite, Helios, Pax and Hermes.

Besides these there are the types of the Roman Emperors, the usual Roman symbols, the eagle, the vexillum, the wolf and twins and the implements of sacrifice. The type of the River god Anthios is interesting as an example of a piece of information as to the name of the river which is only preserved to us by these coins. The mint of this city continued to issue money until the days of Claudius II, that is for a period of two hundred and ninety five years.

In recent finds at Antioch coins of neighbouring cities are found, apparently shewing that they were current in a larger sphere than the city in which they were minted. Coins for instance of Attaleia, Apollonia, Sagalassus, Apamea, Philomelium, Iconium, Parlais, Adana and Seleucia ad Calycadnum were all found at Antioch, and are described on p. 310, 311 of Num. Chron., 1914, part IV.

THE TYPE OF MEN.

An account of the cult of this deity will be found in the chapter on the coins of Laodicea.

Although it has been said the great religious establishment of this cult mentioned by Strabo was broken up in 25 B. C., when Augustus established the Colonia Cæsarea Antiochia with the Jus Italicum, it is evident from the coinage of this city that the religion of Men was practised for two hundred and sixty three years after that date. Men's image is represented on the coins struck in Antioch of the following Emperors.

Antoninus Pius	B. M. C. No. 5.
Sept. Severus	B. M. C. No. 19.
Geta	B. M. C. No. 52.
Gordian III	B. M. C. No. 68.

THE TYPE OF HERMES.

Hermes as the messenger of the gods and protector of travellers would naturally be revered in a city situated on roads notoriously dangerous to travellers. Moreover he was a protector of commerce and of colonization, and therefore his cult was to be expected in a new colony, and especially one in which the Greek element was prominent. The coins of Amasia in Pontus shew that he was regarded as the oekist or founder of that city. On coins of Amasia of the time of Sept. Severus we find the legend ΕΡΜΗC ΚΤΙCΑC ΤΗΝ ΠΟΛΙΝ. At Ancyra in the time of Gallienus bronze coins were issued with the Reverse type of Hermes, nude, walking to left; in his right hand a purse, in his left a caduceus and chlamys (B. M. C., 43). On Galatian coins of Amyntas between 36 and 25 B. C. small bronze coins size .6 bear on the Obverse a bust of Hermes wearing chlamys and petasos, with caduceus on his shoulder: border of dots. They were struck at Cromna in Pisidia (B. M. C., No. 16). The coinage of Amyntas consists chiefly of silver tetradrachms struck at Side in Pamphilia. At Heliopolis, in Coele Syria, Mercury standing facing draped, with purse in left and caduceus in right hand, appears on coins of Philip Junior.

On a stater of Patara are the heads of Athena and Hermes (B. M. C., 113, p. 25) and (B. M. C., 119, p. 27, Patara). Also stater of Patara (B. M. C., No. 111, p. 284). On bronze coins of Cragus in Lycia on the Obverse is a bust of Hermes to left wearing petasos (B. M. C., No. 24, p. 54).

On bronze coins of Masicytes in Lycia circa 81 B. C. is a head of Hermes wearing petasos: caduceus behind his shoulder (B. M. C., No. 25, p. 66).

On bronze of Telmessus in Lycia about 81 B. C. is a head of Hermes wearing petasos in the obverse (B. M. C., No. 2, p. 86).

On bronze of Sagalassus of 1st cent. B. C. is a head of Hermes bare to right, in front a caduceus (B. M. C., No. 8, p. 241).

On bronze of Termessus Major in Pisidia in the time of Caracalla we find on the obverse Τ ΕΡΜΗC ΚΕΩΝ. Bust of Hermes to right bare headed, caduceus behind his shoulder (B. M. C., No. 29, p. 271).

On bronze of Termessus Minor on Obverse is a bust of Hermes in petasos, with caduceus behind his shoulder (B. M. C., No. 1, p. 276).

On bronze of Perga in Pamphilia Hermes is represented advancing to left with Heracles; Hermes is carrying his purse and caduceus. Hermes does not appear among the types of Magnesia, the mother city of Antioch.

More than twelve cities of Asia Minor witness to the popularity of this cult of Hermes.

THE CADUCEUS.

On the obverse of the early bronze coins of Antioch we find a caduceus on the shoulder of Hermes, and on the Reverse of others a winged caduceus. The caduceus appears to have been a solar emblem in the east, and as such is found on Hittite monuments in Asia Minor (Perrot et Chipiez, vol. IV).

At Carthage the Phoenicians associated the caduceus with the sacred cone, as on stelai dedicated to Tanit (the face of Baal), and it was used as an emblem of the solar heat of Baal Hamman.

On stelai found in Lybia two caducei flank the cone, and these are sometimes replaced by wheels which are also solar emblems.

Maury in his Histoire des religions de la Grèce antique (vol. III, p. 265) suggests that the Phoenician caduceus was placed in the hand of the Greek Hermes by the Greek colonists of Cyrenaica, and that these men passed on this use of the symbol to Greece through Phoenician traders.

These suggestions make it easy for us to see how easily the ancient symbols of eastern cults could be received by the Greeks, and the symbols made to mean something different and more in harmony with Hellenic thought.

THE TYPE OF THE COCK.

On the Reverse of No. V the cock appears at the feet of the god Men, and therefore we are led to look upon this bird as a symbol of that god.

But as the cock appears on the Reverse of coins bearing a bust of Hermes on the Obverse we naturally ask what connection a cock can have had with that god.

May it be a reference to the Homeric Hymn to Hermes in which his birth at the dawn is mentioned (Ἠώς γέγονώς).

Pliny tells us that cock-fighting was a popular amusement in Asia Minor. In his Nat. Hist., Bk X, c. xxi he says: "In Pergamum every year there is a solemn show exhibited to the people of cock-fighting". As this bird is now the symbol of the French people, the question arises as to whether there may not be an original connection between the Gauls and the cock, apart from the symbolism of the Phrygian cult. M. Gobley d'Alviella in his work on the Migration of Symbols shews that in Lycia the cock was a solar emblem. There are Lycian coins bearing a triskeles with the arms ending in cocks' heads issued at Thibani circa 480 B.C. (No. 41, p. 9, B. M. C.). On a coin of Aspendus a Triskeles, behind it a lion at bay to right, all in an incuse square (B. M. C., No. 9, p. 94). The lion is as much a solar symbol as the cock. On a coin of Aspendus in the Hunter Coll. (pl. VII, no. 15) we find the type of a Triskeles with a cock underneath.

We must always remember that some symbols are made to do duty in regard to more than one god.

COINS OF THE COLONY IN ITS EARLY DAYS.

These first three are probably the only coins which it is probable that St Paul and his companions used, with the exception of the denarii of Augustus and Tiberius.

I. Size .5. Obv. ANTIOCH. Bust of Hermes to left; with caduceus behind his shoulders: border of dots.

Rev. COLON. A cock to right: border of dots.

II. Size .6. Obv. Similar legend and type to n° I.

Rev. COLONIAE A lighted altar: border of dots.

III. Size .5. Obv. ANTIOCH. Bust of the god Men to right, wearing Phrygian cap: a crescent behind his shoulders.

Rev. COLONIAE A cock to right; border of dots. In the British Museum these are no bronze coins of Antioch issued by Augustus or Tiberius.

TITUS 79 — 81 AD.

IV. Size .85. Obv. T. CAES IMP PONT. Head of Titus to right, laureate.

Rev. AN COL. A priest with Yoke of oxen to right; he carries vexillum; above, a crescent.

As on Denarii of Titus we read PONTIF MAXIM the word PONT in the legend will express PONTIFEX. Perhaps the addition of the crescent may refer to the cult of Men.

Weights. — 7 all plain, stamped block letter and figures from £ 3. 12/. to 6/9 d.

1782.

No. 47. — Narrow rectangular mahogany case, $5\frac{1}{8} \times 1\frac{1}{2} \times 1$ in. with sliding lid and moulded upper edges, bearing contemporary printed label reading: —

GOODBHERE WIGAN & CO.

No. 86 (Late Mr STAMPS) Cheapside

WORKING GOLDSMITHS.

Box bottom padded and lined with yellow corded silk.

Scales. — Balance beam round in section and straight, with raised eyed-heads and suspended lower than usual from a deeper boss.

Indicator. — Spring-jointed at base for turning down when not in use, style long and slender with arrow-headed tip.

Standards. — Flat-brass, plain, heads with prominent round edged steel bushes, bases hinged to box end for lowering when not in use, flat steel stay bar between concave on upper and lower edges; top of near standard produced and shaped like the indicator, which lines to it when evenly balanced.

Standard stamped below in a narrow rectangular band "G. W. & Co. 86 Cheapside London" and "PICKETT".

Pans. — Small, round, one for weights suspended from short thin green and blue cords; swinging step-shaped pan for coins.

Weights. — 1 for $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea reading 2 P. 16 G. obverse and reverse.

In Chaffers' "Gilda Aurifabrorum", page 189, line 25, second column, Sam. Godbehere and Ed. Wigan are quoted as being in business together at the above period. 'Pickett' suggests apparently the name of the original maker and incidentally the name of the set.

A William Pickett, Ludgate Hill, is quoted in the above work in the Parliamentary return for 1773, page 196, line 31, first column. (In the collection of Messrs Spink & Son, London).

Scales and Weights Cleaned and Repair'd by the Year. R d/i.

The number of this set, 111 in black decorated oval on the label, is interesting.

Body of box lined with green baize, the usual 2 rectangular pens for weights.

Scales. — A plain set of conventional design, differing in a large brass knob or drop to wire guard-link, instead of the usual small iron one.

Pan-cords stout; originally pink or red, the usual decorative tassel under loops, composed of a roll of fringed-edging, secured by a stitch, its colour matching the cords, an uncommon combination.

Pans. — 2 inches diameter in brass and nearly flat, with four incised circles, placed concentrically 3 and 1.

Weights. — Rectangular polished brass with rounded edges for guinea, $\frac{1}{2}$ ditto, and $\frac{1}{4}$ ditto, the first stamped "GUINEA Wt." in two lines, crown between (latter 2 missing). A part troy set of similar design consisting of 5 dwts, 3, two 2-dwts, and 1, 1-dwt. suggesting the equivalents for the foreign coins quoted on label, the sheet grain weights to match all missing.

No. 49. — Black rectangular cut-out-of-the-solid beech-wood case $7\frac{5}{16} \times 3\frac{11}{16} \times 1$ in., lid edge moulded, embellished on top with tooled gilded border, enclosing tooled scroll centre and end decoration fitted with two flat brass crane's-bill decorated hasps, engaging round-headed brass eyes through perforations in lower centre of lid; inside-contemporary cut-out leaf-bordered printed label.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES OF MEDALLISTS

Coin, Gem, and Seal Engravers, Ancient and Modern.
with References to their Works.

Most of the previous articles have been revised and republished in the "Biographical Dictionary of Medallists". The references to that work in these supplementary articles will be indicated by the letters "B.D.M." together with the number of the volume and its page.

JOUENNE, ALEXANDRE (French). Contemporary Sculptor, born at Paris. Salon of 1907, two medals: Vierge à l'Hostie, after Ingres; — Virgin, after Andrea Solari.

JOUENNE, PIERRE (French). Mint-master at Rouen, 1562.

JOURDAIN, JULES (Belg.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist; born at Namur, December, 1873. After having studied law at the University of Louvain he began drawing in the studio of the painter A. Lefèvre, in Brussels, and later worked for some time in the studio of the decorative painter, Privat-Livemont. His next step was in sculpture, which had attracted him for a long time, and he became the pupil of Julien Dillens at the end of 1899. During three years and a half he was under the direction of this great artist, and after that worked alone.

First exhibited at the Salon d'Art chrétien, opened in Brussels in 1899, a "Saint Michel" and a "Tête du Christ". Exhibited in 1900 a "Combat de coqs" at the Libre Esthétique at Brussels, and then at different exhibitions and salons. Obtained the first prize at the contest organised in 1905 by the Academy of Belgium for the medallion commemorative of Her Majesty Marie Henriette, Queen of Belgium.

His most important work is the statue of Justus Lipsius at Louvain, 1909.

He exhibited the following works at the New York International Medallion Exhibition in March 1910: Médaille de la Commission Royale d'Histoire. Obverse and reverse; — Médaille à la mémoire de S.M. la Reine Marie Henriette; — Médaille St. Louis; — Plaque de la Société Hollandaise-Belge des Amis de la Médaille. Small, two copies; — Grand modèle de la plaque de la Société Hollandaise-Belge des Amis de la Médaille (Cat. of N. Y. Medallion Exhibition).

By this Medallist is the jeton de présence of the "Société hollandaise-belge des Amis de la médaille d'art", a very successful work. He also executed a Memorial-medal of Queen Marie-Henriette, which is excellent; Jeton of the Jubilee of St. Louis Institute, Brussels; — Julian van der Linden, 1911, etc.; — also Commemorative Plaque on the Inauguration of the Brothers Van Eyck Monument at Ghent, 1913, 55 × 84 mill. (Fonson & Co); — Presentation medal to Count A. Visart de Bocarmé, 1913; 65 mill.; — 75th Anniversary of the Foundation of the Commission royale des Monuments, 1835-1910; 65 mill.; — Badge of the International Congress for the Protection of Infants, held at Brussels in July 1913; 30 mill. (Fonson & Co); — Medal for the Société Hollandaise-Belge, 1910, Æ 65 mill. (R.J. Eidlitz collection) (cf. Laloire, Médailles de Belgique, III, 1911).

JOUE (French). Contemporary Sculptor, who was entrusted in 1907 with the execution of a Plaque, for the Société des Amis de la Médaille, the subject of which is Monkeys.

JOY, ALBERT BRUCE. (B. D. M., Vol. III, p. 91). Has exhibited at the Royal Academy the following medallion works: 1868. Medallion of a Lady; — Medallion of a young Lady; — Oscar Browning, Esq.; medallion; — Frederick Locker; — Frederic W. Burton; bronze medallion; — Archibald Edward Joy; medallion; — 1871. W. Bruce Joy; Esq.; medallion; — Portrait of a young Lady; medallion; — Miss Graves; medallion; — 1872. Miss Evelyn Farrar; medallion; — Miss L. Graves; medallion, wax; — The Rev. F. W. Farrar, B.D.; medallion; — 1872. A.P. Graves; medallion, wax; — Mrs. Scott Siddons; medallion, wax; — Joaquim Miller; medallion; — 1875. Medallion of a young Lady; — 1876. Portrait of a Lady; medallion; — R. W. Raper; — Rev. Dr. Romney Robinson; — Sir Humphrey Davy; — 1878. The Rev. Joseph H. Hamilton, M.A., Canon of Rochester; — 1881. Dr. Longstaff; executed for the Chemical Society; medallion, bronze; — The viscountess Monck; — 1882. H.R.H. Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, K.G.; — 1883. Mrs. Hickman; — H.S.H. Prince Herman de Solms-Braunfels; medallion, bronze; — The late Provost of Oriel College; medallion, bronze; — 1884. Lord Frederick Cavendish; — 1885. Frank Griffin; — 1886. Percy Fitzgerald, M.A., F.S.A.; — 1888. Miss Elspeth Campbell; — Prof. Stokes, M.P., President of the Royal Society; medallion; — 1896. The Hon. Chauncey Depew; — J.M. Horsburgh; — 1897. Frank Griffin; — 1899. Miss Elspeth Campbell, aged 13 years; medallion, silver; — 1901. T. Cyril Bruce Joy, son of G.W. Joy, Esq.; plaque, silver; — 1903. Major General Sir Edward Hutton, K.C.M.G.; medallion, silver; — Mrs. Leake; medallion, silver; — 1904. Aubyn Trevor Battye, Esq.; medallion, silver; — Sir George Gabriel Stokes, Bart., F.R.S.; medallion, silver, etc.

J.S.D. Signature on a medal commemorating the erection of a Monument to Columbus at Cárdenas (Cuba), 1862.

JUBANY, MIGUEL (B. D. M., Vol. III, p. 92). Assistant-engraver at the Mint of Barcelona, 1850; Chief-engraver in 1864. By him is also a medal on the Inauguration of the Mataro Railway, 1848.

I.V.N. (Vide I.U.N.). Dr Bousfield possesses a cliché with head of George III, thus signed; this cliché was evidently the top of a box.

JUNG, JOHANN (Austr.). Mint-engraver at Vienna, 1802-1811.

JUNGH, REYNOLDT (or REINHOLD) (Germ.). Mint-master at Roskilde, 1535; and Flensburg, 1547, in which year he died.

JÜNGER, L. (Dutch) (B. D. M., Vol. III, 1907, p. 79). 1893, T.M.C. Asser. Æ 66.

JUSKO, JENŐ (Amer.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist in New York City, born at Ungvar, Hungary, in 1880. He studied in Vienna under Professor Hellmer and later in Paris in the Atelier of Thomas. In 1906, he came to New York City, where he has since resided. His work has been exhibited at the Mücsarnok in Budapest; at the Salon in Paris, 1904; at the International Exhibition in Milan in 1905; at the Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, 1913-1914; and at the Academy of Design in New York, 1909-14 inclusive. He is a member of the National Sculpture Society. Among his more important works are: 1911, the Family of G.A. Weisz, four heads; — Rudy Schmidt; — 1912. Dr. Eben Foksett; — Louis Oesterle, the pianist; — 1913, M. Isidor, Æ 38; — 1914, Marc Eidlitz (1826-1892) master builder, Æ 70

(illustrated); — Two figure compositions; — 1915, Herman Rosenthal, head of the Slavonic Department in the New York Public Library.

He has also modelled a series of portrait-medals of famous men, and a monument to Archbishop J.B. Lamy, erected at Santa Fé, New Mexico.

Artist signs: J.J. or J. JUSKO.

KARL, HEINRICH ERNST (Austr.). Born in 1781 at Vienna; Mint-engraver at Kremnitz, circ. 1800-1813.

KARL, HEINRICH junior (Austr.). Mint-engraver at Carlsburg, 1848-1850.

KARL, HEINRICH (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 118). By this Medallist are also : Alexander I. of Russia visits the Vienna Mint, 1814; — Frederick William III. of Prussia visits the Vienna Mint, 1814; — Battle of Leipzig, 1813, etc.

KARLSTEEN, ARFVID (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 118). Additional productions : Portrait-medal in gold of Duke George William of Brunswick and Lüneburg, 1690: R. QVO FAS ET GLORIA DVCENT (several varieties; one with obv. by Brabandt, signed Brabandt); — Medal of the same, 1691; R. FAVENT CONSTANTIBVS O ASTRA (sev. varieties); — Portrait-medals of Duke Ernest Augustus, 1684, 1691; — Portrait-medal of Sophie Charlotte, 1691; — Memorial medal of Duke Charles Philip, 1690, etc.

KARRESS, M. (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 122). The medal in question is dated 1869.

KASSIN, JOSEF (Austr.). Contemporary Sculptor and Medallist, by whom is a Portrait-plaquette on the Silver wedding of Dr Josef Neumayer.

KASSY NATH DASS (Ind.). A native Engraver at the Calcutta Mint, appointed 1st July 1834, and in office until 1863 (Vide KASI, Vol. III).

KAUFMANN, HUGO (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 124). At the Berlin Kunst-Ausstellung, 1907, this artist exhibited a series of 5 medals : Schiller; — Prince Regent Luitpold; — Prince Louis; — Böcklin; — Pallas; — Max Liebermann, etc.; and 9 plaquettes : Max Liebermann; — Sailor; — Science; — Goethe; — Pallas; — Prince-Regent Luitpold; — Prince Louis; — Pisciculture.

A number of medals and plaquettes were exhibited by Kaufmann at the New York International Medallic Exhibition, March 1910 : Prince Regent of Bavaria; — Goethe medal of the city of Frankfurt; — Böcklin; — Medal of the Geographical Society of Munich; — 25 Pfennig piece (II. Prize of the German Empire); — Pallas Athena medal of the School of Modelling in Frankfurt-on-M.; — Medal of the Bavarian Society of Pisciculture; — Unterrichts-medaille; — Numismatikmedaille; — Liebermann Plaquette; — Frau Rath Goethe; — Geheimrat Zweifel; — Luitpold Prince Regent of Bavaria; — Der Sämann (bronze original); — The World War; — Bust of William II., 1914; R. 59 × 46 mill.; — Alfred Lohmann, Founder of the Submarine Commercial Fleet, 1916; iron, 108 mill., signed H. K.

KAUFMANN, JEAN (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 123). Medallist, Engraver, Wood Carver, Sculptor, Painter, etc.; born on 28 November 1866 at Lucerne; educated at the Lucerne School of Decorative Arts; worked from 1883 to 1888 at Bossard's Goldsmith's works; 1888-1889 studied in Geneva at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts, etc., and visited later Chaux-de-Fonds, Stuttgart, Hamburg and Paris, returning to Lucerne in 1893. He has exhibited at the Paris Salon since 1893.

Among his most recent works are : Portrait-medal of Prof. Joh. Rud. Rahn, 1911 (illustrated); — Rudolf Virchow, 1912; — German Messina medal, 1909, etc.

J. R. Rahn.

KAUFMANN, JOHANN JACOB (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 123). By this Medallist are further : 1905. Schiller Commemoration Medal; — Th. von Liebenau, 1906; — Medal Plaquette, exhibited at the Paris Salon, 1907.

KAUTSCH, H. (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 126). D. J. H. de Dompierre de Chauffepié reproduced in Liv. XVII of his work the following plaquettes by this artist : Emanuel Kautsch; — Cornelius Chyzer, Hungarian doctor of medicine; — F. von Lenbach; — Charles Freund Deschamps; — Margot Lenbach; — A. Bartolomé; — Golden Wedding of M. Alfred Koerner; — A. M. Mucha; — Alfonso XIII., King of Spain; — Chambre syndicale de l'Automobile; — Prize Medal for Hunting, with bust of St. Hubert; — Silver Wedding of the Artist; — School Prize Medal, and Plaquette; — Medal of the Mozart Jubilee Exhibitions at Vienna, 1908; — Congress of French Physicians of N. A., Quebec, 1908; — Augsburg Exhibition, 1910.

At the New York International Medallic Exhibition, March 1910, the following works by this Medallist were exhibited : A. Bartholomé; — Alexander Friedrich, Landgrave of Hesse; — Kaiser Francis Joseph; — Emil Sauer; — Lenbach; — J. P. Reininghaus; — Alfred Koerner; — Pauline Viardot; — Amélie Radis de Radis (M^{me} Kautsch); — Marriage anniversary medal; — Paris receiving Bosnia-Herzegovina; — Alfonso XIII.; — Workman; — The three Arts; — Baron and Baroness Rosenthal; — Muse with crown; — Heinrich Heine; — Automobiles, chambre syndicale; — M. et M^{me} Paule; — Henry Vignaud; — Hotchkiss medal to Henri Fournier; — Margot Lenbach; — Emanuel Kautsch, the artist's father; — A. Mucha; — Charles Freund Deschamps; — P. W. Janssen; — Prince Roland Bonaparte; — Graf Wolkenstein-Trostburg; — Laura; — A. Lenbach (several).

Kautsch further exhibited at the Salon of the Société nationale des Beaux-Arts 1912 the following Plaquettes : Amiral de Jonquières; — Léonce Bénédict; — H. E. V. Mataja; — M^{me} C. Dacraigne; — George Raphael Levy; — 150th. Anniversary of Schiller; — Jan Kubelik; — M. May Biach Alphonse Mucha, painter; — M^{me} Viardot; — Count A. Wolkenstein, ambassador; — and 14 Allegorical Subjects, including a bronze relief, Amor et Labor; — 1913. Portrait-plaquette of Professeur Henri Bergson; — Léonce Bénédite, keeper of the Luxembourg Museum; — Bacchante, bronze relief, 200 × 280 mill.; — Dr Victor Mataja, 1911; and by him are also: Haldigung's plaquette, Æ. 85 × 55; — Marriage Plaquette; 55 × 75; — The Favarger and consort, 1902; — Madame Kautsch, 1910, etc.

Dr H. R. Storer has brought to my notice a medal by this artist, struck in Aid of Infirm Soldiers, Austria, 1914. Obv. Bust of Francis Joseph I (A., Æ. and Æ).

Among medals issued by Kautsch in connection with the war, we have noticed: Protection against the distress of Winter; 33 × 19 mill.; — Archduke Francis Joseph; Æ. lozenge-shaped Plaquette, 56 mill.; — Accession of Emperor Charles I., 30. Dec. 1916; Æ. 65 mill.; — Plaquette on the same event; Æ. 75 × 56 mill.; — Francis Joseph Otto, Hereditary Prince, 1917; Æ. 65 mill.; — Obsequies of Emperor Francis Joseph I; plaquette Æ. 75 × 48 mill., etc.

KAWACYNski, PROF. MAX VON (B. D. M., Vol. III, p. 192). By him is the official medal on the Marriage of Duke Charles Edward of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha with Princess Victoria Adelaide of Schleswig-Holstein, 1905; also the dies for the coins of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha (20, 10, 5 and 2 Marks) with bust of Duke Charles Edward, 1906; also various Orders issued in 1903 (described by von Heyden).

Further medallion productions by him are: 1907, Carl Lindenberg; — Marriage Medal of the Prince and Princess of Schaumburg-Lippe, etc. Prof. Kawaczynski was born at Eisenach, 5. November 1860.

KECK, CHARLES (Amer.). Born September 9th., 1875. Received public school education in New York City and studied at the National Academy of Design and the Art Students League of New York City, during which time he worked under Philip Martiny and Augustus St. Gaudens. In 1900 won the Prix de Rome and spent five years at the American Academy in Rome, during which time he also studied in Greece and France.

Has had many large architectural and monumental commissions, portraits and bas-reliefs and has executed the following medallion work: —

Louis Stephen Pilcher, the surgeon, to commemorate the 50th. year of his practice. Æ. 57.

Alumni Association, School of Architecture, Columbia University. Æ. 50.

Memorial medal, Class of 1891, Columbia University (elliptical). Æ. 49 × 65.

1916, Medal of Massachusetts Institute of Technology in memory of its founder, William Barton Rogers. Æ. 70.

Seal for the N. Y. State Workmen's Compensation Commission, mm. 66.

Seal for the American Academy in Rome, mm. 37.

Gold dollar for Panama Pacific Exposition, 1916. Æ. 15 (issue limited to 25000 pieces; dies engraved by Charles E. Barber).

PORTRAITS ON COINS.

BY HORACE W. MONCKTON F.R.N.S.

In his paper on the Lark Hill Find (Numismatic Chronicle for 1919, p. 51), Mr. L. A. Lawrence makes some interesting remarks on "what the French call immobilisation of type". The subject is of considerable numismatic importance and I have no doubt that the conventional King's Bust, or King seated, which was so often adopted during the Middle Ages in the place of a true portrait was due to immobilisation of type.

In England, for example, we have a conventional King's Head on our silver coins from Henry II to Henry VII and on the silver of Naples we find a conventional King seated for a long period.

It is probable that some of the heads on coins of the ninth and subsequent centuries were intended to be portraits but failed from want of skill in execution; but in Italy at any rate they could produce good coins if they liked. There is a beautiful gold piece of Frederick II Hohenstaufen (1198-1250) struck at the Brindisi mint.

Obv. Bust laureate to right CESAR AVG IMP ROM.

Rev. An Eagle + FRIDERICVS.

It is obviously an imitation of a Roman Imperial coin and whether a good likeness or not it is very unlike the conventional types of the period.

In the middle of the fifteenth century the conventional head began to be replaced by true portraits. The coins are not as a rule dated and it is consequently not easy to ascertain the exact order in which they were issued; but about 1463-65 Ferdinand I of Aragon at Naples, and Francesco I Sforza at Milan, placed good portraits of themselves on their coins. There are both gold and silver of Ferdinand. The gold Ducat has

Obv. Shield with Arms, crowned + FERDINANDVS : D : G : R : S : I : V.

Rev. Bust crowned to r. + RECORDATVS : MISERICORDIE : SVE.

The gold Ducat of Milan has the Bust bareheaded to right on the obverse with a Knight riding to r. on the reverse. I do not know of a silver coin with a portrait of Francesco Sforza but there are excellent examples in that metal with the portrait of his successor Galeazzo Maria Sforza (1466-76).

A rare gold Franc of Jean II of Dombes-Trévoux (1459-82) must be one of the early portrait coins. It has

Obv. Bust to left with a band round the hair + IOHES : DVX : BORBONII : TREVORCII : DNS.

Rev. Knight riding to r. DEXTRA : DNI : EXALTAVIT : ME : A.

Obv. Bust to left : SIXTVS : IIII : PONT : MAX : VRBE : REST.

Rev. Arms surmounted by the cross keys and tiara PVBLICAE VTILITATI. The example of Sixtus IV was not followed by his successors until Julius II (1503-1513), who placed his portrait on both gold and silver, and from that date there is an excellent series of Papal portraits.

The House of Este soon followed the example of Sforza. There are both gold and silver coins with portraits of Hercules I (1471-1505) and I believe there is a gold coin with portrait of his predecessor Borso d'Este (1450-71). Ferdinand the Catholic, of Spain (1480-1516) struck silver coins with his portrait at the Messina Mint in Sicily, and there are gold Ducats of Castile with the Busts of Ferdinand and Isabella (1504-16) facing one another.

In Savoy Charles I issued both gold and silver with his bust, wearing a cap and holding a sword (1482-90) and his successor Charles John Amadeus (1490-96) issued Testoons with the same bust of Charles I suggesting immobilisation of type. Indeed I am inclined to consider this merely a conventional bust. I have not seen portrait coins of Philip II (1496-97) but Philip II (1497-1504) and his successors issued good portrait pieces.

The Archduke Sigismund issued a Thaler and Halftaler for the Tyrol with his portrait, and dated 1484; and Maximilian I of Austria issued the well-known Marriage Thaler with his bust on the obverse and that of his wife Mary of Burgundy on the reverse. It is dated 1479 but I am not sure what was the date of its issue. There are other coins Maximilian with his figure half-length in armour crowned with sword and sceptre. He was King of the Romans from 1486 to 1493 and Emperor from that date until his death in 1519.

The House of Gonzaga in Mantua began to issue portrait coins at about the end of the 15th century; and there is a fine Testoon of Francesco II (1484-1519) with his portrait on the obverse. The House of Bentivoglio struck portrait coins at about the same time. The gold coins with the portrait of John II (1494-1509) struck at Antignate are believed by Mr. Forrer to have been the work of Francesco Raibolini.

I believe that the first French coins with portraits were struck by Louis XII (1498-1515) and in any case his bust appears on his coins struck in Italy for Milan and also for Naples. Portrait coins were issued in France by his successor Francis I of the Field of the Cloth of Gold (1515-1547) and from that date the series continues.

The conventional King's Head appeared on the silver coins in England until 1504; when Henry VII issued Shillings, Groats, and Halfgroats with his Bust crowned to right on the obverse.

In Scotland James V. issued silver with his portrait in 1525 and the celebrated gold Bonnet piece in 1539. There is no doubt that portrait coins were established in Scotland from this time but there is an interesting question as to some earlier coins which have the Bust three-quarter face and which are very unlike the conventional bust of either Scotland or England. My impression certainly is that they were intended as portraits. The first series are a Groat and Halfgroat (Burns, 577 to 583 and 585, 586) and he assigns it to James III and to the year 1471; rather early for a portrait coin. Mr. Grueber in his Handbook gives the type to James V. 1514 which is in the portrait period. These coins have the bust turned towards the right, and the other type of which I spoke is a Groat with the Bust three-quarters to left. Burns makes it the last issue of James III in which case the portrait should be of a man of 37 years of age. Mr. Grueber gives the coins to James IV. as his first coinage in which case the portrait should be that of a boy of 15. I am not myself sufficiently well acquainted with the genuine portraits of the Scottish kings to venture on an opinion but my inclination is in favour of James V. in the first case and James IV. in the second.

PART X.

My original intention was to finish the catalogue with a description of the coins dated 1918, but in order to bring the subject to date I have included all the denominations and varieties with which I am acquainted, bearing the dates 1919 and 1920.

GEORGE V. 1910.

1. — PENNY, 1911.

O. — Legend: — GEORGIUS V DEI GRA : BRITT : OMN : REX : FID : DEF : IND : IMP : Head and truncated neck of the King and Emperor in profile and looking to the left. On the truncation of the neck: — B.M. (Bertram Mackennal). The hair on the head is parted. The whole within an ornamented rim.

R. — Legend: — ONE PENNY. The continuity of the legend is interrupted by the plumes on Britannia's helmet and the head of her trident. Emblem of Britannia looking to the right. The figure is wearing a helmet adorned with plumes. Some of her long thick wavy hair rests on her right shoulder. An ornament round her neck with each end terminating in a scroll. She is draped in a long flowing robe with an ornament on each shoulder, and fastened on her breast with a clasp and at her waist by a garnished girdle. She is seated upon a rock with the sea in front and behind. Her right hand rests on a convex oval shield which leans against the rock, her thumb touching the space between the cross of Saint George and the cross of Saint Patrick in the first quarter of the shield. The shield bears the cross of Saint George and the saltires of Saint Andrew and Saint Patrick, united, but not heraldically coloured. The cross of Saint George is fimbriated but the cross of Saint Patrick is not. Her left hand firmly grasps a plain trident. A sandal is fastened to her right foot with straps. The rock on which she is seated is cut off by a straight line, forming an exergue, containing the date, 1911. The whole within an ornamented rim.

THE MEDALLIC PORTRAITS OF CHRIST THE FALSE SHEKELS THE THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER

The essays included in this volume have been partly published in the Reliquary and Illustrated Archaeologist (1902, 1904 and 1905), and partly in Archaeologia, vol. LIX. They are of such universal interest that the author was well advised to bring them out in book form. In doing so he has furnished scholars with a work, handy for reference, that will help them to answer the inquiries so persistently cropping up on the various subjects that form the title of the book.

The head of Christ is first represented on coins in the reign of Justinian II (A.D. 685-95). The type is familiar to numismatists. Our Lord is shown full-face, with long flowing hair, moustache and beard, with a cross behind. This type continued in use on the Byzantine coinage down to its end, in 1448. Under Manuel I. (A.D. 1143-80) a beardless bust, also facing, occurs on some of the currency. But the first medal of Christ, of which we have any knowledge, is that by Matteo de' Pasti, of Verona, and dates from about the middle of the fifteenth century. Another medallion of the Quattrocento is that representing on one side the head of Christ and on the other that of St. Paul. This is supposed to have been copied from a Byzantine original, and possibly from the famous emerald said to have been sent to Pope Innocent VIII by the great sultan Bajazet II.

The sixteenth century medallion type of Christ was inspired by Leonardo de Vinci, though the filiation with him is not direct. A fine example of this type is shewn on p. 45, from the collection of Mr. Maurice Rosenheim.

During that century originated the Hebrew medals, cast and struck, and copied down to the present day, which have formed the subject of considerable controversy. Readers of the Num. Circ. will remember our notes on the so-called "Holy Coin" (1899, col. 3352, and 3447-8) exposing the error of Boyer d'Agén who published in 1898 one of these medals as a Messianic coin, in use among the Jewish Christians in Jerusalem during the first century after the death of Christ. Numerous varieties exist, with inscriptions in Hebrew on rev., which translated read: "Messiah-King has come in peace, and Man-God, exalted, made living"; or also: "Jesus of Nazareth, Messiah, God and Man in one," etc. Mr. G.F. Hill is inclined to favour M. Germain's suggestion that these medals were made and used as charms, and to reject the theory that they were meant for distribution to new converts, connecting them with the conversion of Jews in 1571-72. That the medallist Giovan' Antonio de Rossi was the originator of the portrait of Christ on this group of medals is also, to say the least, very doubtful.

There is in the British Museum a very fine medal of Christ, attributed to Leone Leoni (see p. 60-61) with obv. legend EGO SVM VIA VERITAS ET VITA. The medals by Casino are better known, and so also are those by Antonio Abondio. Among German productions we find those of F. Hagenauer, Peter Flötner, and the later medals of Valentin Maler.

With the exception of a very few works of art of good quality, the study of the medals of Christ, says Mr. Hill, has introduced us to a great crowd of mediocrities, showing that the influence of the devotional spirit is not actively favourable to good art (p. 77).

Mr. Hill's essay on the False Shekels will be especially useful to convince the incredulous who chance to have in their possession spurious specimens or modern imitations of the genuine Jewish Shekels and Half-Shekels. One of the counterfeits, the so-called censer-shekel existed as early as 1552 (letter of Philip Melanchthon to George III, Prince of Anhalt).

The vexed question as to what kind of coins were the "Thirty pieces of silver" for which Judas betrayed Our Lord forms the subject of the next chapter of Mr. Hill's book. The most extraordinary legends, of mediaeval origin, exist in connection with these coins. Supposed originals have been treasured as relics at The Visandines at Aix, Notre Dame du Puy, The Abbey of St. Denis, Montserrat in Catalonia, Sta Croce, The Annunziata, and the now no longer existing Church of S. Maria dei Candeli, in Florence; the Abbey of the Trinity and St. Sergius in Moscow; the monastery of Souprast near Bielostock; Rhodes, in the castle of the Knights of St. John; Rome, in S. Croce in Gerusalemme; Rosas in Catalonia; Oviedo, in the Camera Santa of S. Salvatore; Paris, Church of St. John Lateran; Paris, Temple; Vincennes; Enghien, Capuchin Convent; Church of S. Francesco dei Riformati at Spezia; Bethlehem (seen by Hans Tucher); Cathedral of Sens, etc. These 'Judas-Pennies' consist of varied kinds of coins; more than thirty such pieces have been recorded, some which are still extant; but as Mr. Hill remarks, it is probable that no single one of the professed relics was actually a coin of the kind that was in circulation in Judaea in the time of Christ. Some are counterfeits; a number are Rhodian coins, of the fifth-fourth century B.C.; others comprise a Syracusan dekadrachm, an ancient barbarous imitation of a silver tetradrachm of Philip II. of Macedon, a silver dirhem of the Egyptian sultan El-Ashraf Salah-at-din Khalil, of the Bahri Mamluks (A.D. 1290-3), a solidus of the Emperor Zeno (A.D. 474-91), etc.

It is possible that the 'thirty pieces of Silver' may have been Roman Denarii, but more probably Staters of Tyre and Antioch, corresponding in weight to the Shekel, and in common circulation at the time. The Tyrian coin has on obv. a laureate head of the Phoenician god Melkarth, and on rev. an eagle standing on the prow of a vessel, with a palm-branch over its shoulder. The coin of Antioch bears a fine laureate head of Augustus on the obv., and represents on the rev. the famous personification of the City of Antioch by the sculptor Eutychedes.

"To one of these two classes, Tyrian or Antiochian", says Mr. Hill, "belonged, not only the stater which was taken out of the mouth of the fish, and which, being equivalent in weight to a shekel, was sufficient to pay the tax for two people; but also probably the thirty pieces of silver, which altogether must have been equivalent to something between £ 4. 10 s. and £ 5 in our money" (p. 116).

Mr. Hill's volume should appeal to a wide circle of students and bibliophiles; it combines serious documentation and evidence with artistic elegance, and should be in the hands of all those interested in the medallic iconography of Christ.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

June 16th, 1920. Mr. F. A. Walters, F.S.A., President, in the Chair.

The President voiced the pleasure of the Meeting at the presence from New York of Mr. J. Sanford Saltus, Officier de la Légion d'Honneur, a Vice-President of the Society; and read the list of Officers and Council nominated by the present Council for the Session 1921.

Exhibitions.

By Mr. L. A. Lawrence: The numerous and varied series of early brass and latten counters that formed the subject of his paper.

By Major Carlyon-Britton: Plantagenet counters of brass or similar metal:

1. Head of Edward I, similar to that upon his silver pennies, within an inner circle; around, a bordure of large pellets and groups of three pellets conjoined, placed alternately. Reverse, a long cross fleury, in each angle a group of five pellets; inner circle; in the outer circle a crown within each division of the cross.

2. Within an inner circle the badge of the crescent and star; around, a bordure of large pellets and the letter X, placed alternately. Reverse, similar to that of No. 1, except that in the outer circle are mullets of six points and the letter I, placed alternately.

3. Head of Edward I within a double tressure of eight arches; inner circle; around, a bordure of rosettes and the letter I, placed alternately. Reverse, the arms of England with a label of three points on a spade-shaped shield; in the outer circle, a bordure similar to that on the obverse.

4. On a thick flan, octagonally shaped, a large crown within a circle composed of groups of two large pellets and one mullet, placed alternately. Reverse, similar.

By Miss Helen Farquhar, with the following note: Silver counter engraved with portraits of Elizabeth, daughter of James I of England and her husband Frederic, Count Palatine. Legends: obverse, ELISABETHA D.G. COMITISSA PALATINA RHENI; reverse, FRIDERICVS D.G. COMES PALATINVS RHENI ELECTOR. Elizabeth, in plaited ruff and plumed head-dress, wears no insignia of royalty and at first thought the absence of her title of Queen of Bohemia is also suggestive that the portrait was engraved prior to 1619, when Frederic assumed the crown; and the same argument applies to the latter's representation. But comparison with other pictures and medals, executed between the time of the marriage in 1612-13 and the year 1623, proves that the last-mentioned date is the earliest to which the portraits can be assigned. The prototypes of both may be found in a print by Willem de Passe, who had recently replaced his brother Simon in England, and had not long before drawn the Prince and Princess from life in Holland, whither they had retired on the loss of their crown. It is not unlikely that this beautifully engraved counter itself is the work of Willem de Passe.

By Mr. L. L. Fletcher: Sixty-three specimens of municipal tramway tokens, mostly of celluloid, issued for various towns in England and Scotland during recent years.

By Mr. Henry Garside: Bronze cent dated 1919, coined in the Calcutta mint for general circulation in the Straits Settlements. The coin is square with rounded corners.

Paper.

Mr. L. A. Lawrence, F.S.A., read a paper on some early English brass or latten counters which he thought from design and workmanship might be dated with some certainty. They bear heads which agree accurately with the king's head as shown on some of the pennies of Edward I and Edward II. Some of these counters were by this means attributed to Edward I, of groups IV and VII of the classification now in vogue. The counters of Edward II's time were represented by groups XI and XV of the same classification. In some cases the same crown-iron had been used to punch in the crown on the penny and on the counter. These counters were used for reckoning purposes. They are usually without legends and are generally wholly or partially pierced. He showed a particularly interesting example attributed to Edmund Plantagenet, brother to Edward I, and Earl of Lancaster, for it bore his arms : namely, the lions of England differenced with a label of three points, each point charged with three fleurs-de-lys. This design occurs on the reverse of the counter which shows on the obverse the head of Edward I of group IV, issued between A. D. 1282 and 1289.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

An ordinary meeting of the Society was held in the Leeds Institute, June 19th 1920.

The President (Mr. J. F. Musham, F.E.S.) occupied the chair. Messrs Houghton (Huddersfield) and Thornton (Leeds) were admitted members of the Society.

Mr. Frank Varley read the first part of a paper on the Copper Coinage of France embracing the issues up to the beginning of the Revolution.

In his introductory remarks Mr. Varley said that probably no other European country was more interesting numismatically than our nearest neighbour. He drew attention to the romantic history of the country and the great variety and beauty of design in the Coinage; he further recommended the study of the Copper Coinage of France particularly to young numismatists not only on account of its particular interest but from the fact that owing to extensive issues specimens could be cheaply procured, there being comparatively few varieties of type.

Mention was made of the early debased silver or billon coins probably first issued in the reign of Charles VI (1380-1422), later by the English kings Henry V and VI and down to the time of Charles IX.

The first pure copper coinage was probably in the reign of Henry III (1574-86) who issued Denier Tournois and Double Tournois similar types continuing down to the reign of Louis XIV (1643-1715) when other types appear such as the liard, 4 and 6 denier pieces, etc., to be augmented in the next reign (Louis XV) by $\frac{1}{2}$ sou and sou.

In describing the various coins of which he showed a nice collection, Mr. Varley touched on many interesting points in connexion with French history and gave information with reference to the engravers of the various periods. The paper was much appreciated by those present and Mr. Varley was thanked for his contribution on the notion of the President seconded by Mr. Pickersgill.

Mr. Thornton exhibited and described his very fine collection of Yorkshire tokens in gold, silver and copper of the 18th and 19th centuries. The pieces were mostly in the finest state of preservation and the collection included many of the seldom seen tokens such as the Barnsley shilling, Sheffield $\frac{1}{2}$ sovereign, four varieties of the Bedale $\frac{1}{2}$ penny. Penny and $\frac{1}{2}$ penny of the Sheffield Constitutional Society, Pennies of Fountains Abbey, Malton and Bowes Castle.

Mr. Thornton was congratulated on his most interesting exhibit and thanked for giving the Society an opportunity of viewing the same.

The President exhibited a National Reserve Badge of the West Riding of Yorkshire, now out of issue.

Mr. E. Croft exhibited a beautiful artist's silver proof medal by T. W. Ingram of the Shakespearean Club, Stratford-upon-Avon, established April 23rd 1824.

Mr. T. Sheppard, M.Sc. sent for exhibition a well-designed silver medal of the Halifax Recreative Evening Classes being an award for regular and punctual attendance.

Mr. Alfred Rider showed a series of French portrait medals from Louis VI to Napoleon III together with other French Commemorative medals.

Mr. Carl Edwards, F.R.N.S. showed and described an interesting series of French war medals and decorations; among others being the médaille militaire 1870, Cross of the Legion of Honour (in enamels) 1870, Napoleon Veteran's St. Helena medal, 1824, General's decoration for Cambodia and Officer's decoration for Amaine; also bronze Croix de Guerre, 1914-15.

Mr. T. Pickersgill showed and ably described a complete series of types of English copper and bronze farthings and halfpence from the reign of Charles II to 1920.

The Hon. Sec. gave a brief account of the iron and pewter money issued by the Germans during their temporary occupation of Belgium, Luxemburg and Poland illustrated by a series of pieces emanating from the Berlin, Hamburg and Munich mints.

AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The April Meeting was held in the Society's Room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 22nd of the month, the President, Dr. A. Andrews, being in the chair.

He proposed issue of square shaped coins by the Commonwealth.

After discussion the following resolution was passed : —

"That the members of the Australian Numismatic Society strongly protest against the proposal to introduce square shaped coinage into the currency of Australia."

In opening the Numismatic Proceedings, Dr. A. Andrews read the following note on the Cut Dollars current in Tasmania in 1826.

That there was still a dearth of small change in Tasmania is shown by the following, in the "Colonial Times and Tasmanian Advertiser" of August 21th. 1826 : —

"During the present week a number of Spanish dollars cut into five parts, have made their appearance, each being considered worth one shilling. We know not whether they have been cut by sanction of the Government or by some private individual but we are convinced that Governor Macquarie's plan of stamping the dollar is infinitely much better than the present system of cutting, which in our opinion, opens the door to fraud. There is machinery in this Colony capable of performing the operation of stamping; and there are persons fully competent to make the dies. We would therefore again recommend the Government to issue a money which could not be taken out of the Island in order that people may benefit by it."

The President, Dr. Andrews, then read his paper entitled "Notes on the collection of coins and tokens of the Mitchell Library". (See page.)

The Doctor exhibited a selected number of rarities from his own Cabinet including a William Allen penny — a New Zealand penny by Moore, only 12 struck and dies destroyed in 1879 — the rare Bell and Gardner token — pattern Levy and Lipman (R. Taylor) and James Dixon of Wangaratta token, etc.

The May Meeting was held at the Society's Room, Education Building, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday, the 27th of the month, the President, Dr. Andrews, being in the Chair.

Correspondence included a Communication from Mr. A. Chitty, enclosing rubbings and requesting information regarding surcharged $\frac{1}{4}$ dollars.

Before entering on the Numismatic proceedings, the President read to the Meeting a draft of the letter transmitted to the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth in accordance with the Society's resolution at last meeting protesting against the proposed issue of Coinage of square shape.

Mr. H. E. Parkes was then called on to give his paper entitled "Modern Sources of History". Sect. II Coins.

A number of coins of South American States were exhibited by the President, Dr. Andrews, and Mr. Henry E. Parkes exhibited a Series of Copper Coins of the Argentine 1823-1854. These last included the interesting issues of Buenos Ayres (the copper 1 and 2 real, etc.), also early and modern Copper of Brazil, 1803 to 1911 to illustrate the sequence of types and fabric.

Special Exhibits.

By Mr. E. Wills :

I. A fine Charles II Halfpenny of the type illustrated in Montagu's Copper Coins of England, p. 38, the Britannia bearing the features of the beautiful Frances Stewart, afterwards Duchess of Richmond.

II. The pattern halfpenny of Charles II of the QVATVOR. MARIA. VINDICO (I claim the four seas) type illustrated in Montagu on p. 47, and which giving offence to Louis XIV. was not issued as a current coin.

By Mr. H. Priestley :

I. A fine specimen of the knife money of China.

The June meeting was held in the Society's Room, Education Buildings, Loftus Street, Sydney, on Thursday 24th, the President, Dr. A. Andrews, being in the Chair. Apologies were received from Dr. Abbott and Mr. Herbert Priestley.

Correspondence having been received the President, Dr. Andrews, read a paper on the "ENGLISH PENNIES" commencing with the reign of George III.

A short paper on "EARLY FRENCH COINAGE" was then read by Mr. W. A. Gullick.

The paper was illustrated by specimens of early deniers of Souigny and dates up to that of Phillip le Bel and by two excellent examples by Mr. Wills of Raimond of Toulouse 1222-1249 and a very beautiful example of the "gros Tournais" of Phillip II from Mr. Selwyn Mort's Collection.

The request for an exhibition of American Cents brought forward an interesting exhibit.

From the cabinets of Dr. Andrews, E. Wills and Henry E. Parkes, were included some interesting types such as the 'Nova Constellatio' Cent of 1783 (Parkes) in which the sun of American freedom arises with great éclat followed by the 'Washington' Cents (Andrews) on which the American eagle has a decidedly 'made in Germany' appearance. Then follow the 'Liberty' cents with flowing hair (Wills) in the earliest of which the lady has a decidedly wild appearance. Following these came the fine series (Parkes coll.) in which she wears the diadem and is altogether quite sedate as becomes a nation who has adopted the 'strict neutrality and look after the dollars' policy. The latter part of the policy becoming increasingly paramount: aggressive neutrality' is signalled by the introduction of the 'Eagle on the war path' (1856-58) and 'Red Indian' (1858-1909) type. These are followed by the new 'commemorative' type ushered in by the rather plain Lincoln cent of 1909. Possibly we may see much more ornate productions in the future.

For instance we may see one for President Wilson.

Special Exhibits.

By Dr. Andrews :

A Queen pattern $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Rose and Crown (No 5. Montagu) and Pattern Queen Mary II farthing with legend 'Ex candore decus' (Montagu No. 18) Copper.

POM. FOSTVLVS. B., Pompeia, 1. V. F. » 5 »
- This is possibly the grandfather of Pompey the Great. The type tells us that the gens claimed their descent from Faustulus, the royal shepherd of Amulius, who found the twins suckled by the wolf at the foot of the Palatine, the cradle in which they had been borne down the Tiber having been overturned under a fig-tree. The jug and birds in the tree are also connected with the myth. B.M.C., 1, 131.

- 86532 — Marcus Serueilius C. f. Obv. Head of Roma r.; behind head, x. R. M. SERVEILI. C. F (in exergue). Two warriors, a Roman and a barbarian, each armed with sword and shield fighting on foot; near each is his horse; below moneyer's name, letter c. B., Serueilia, 13. F. » 2 »
- The reverse type commemorates the heroic deeds of M. Serueilius Pulex Geminus, the consul B.C. 202.
- 86533 B.C. 88. Decimus Junius Silanus L. f. Head of Roma r.; behind, letter m. R. D. SILANVS. L. F. ROMA (in exergue). Victory in galloping biga r.; above, number xvi. B., Junia, 15. F. » 2 »
- 86534 — L. Calpurnius Piso L. f. Frugi. Obv. Head of Apollo r., laureate; hair in ringlets; behind, symbol, double-headed axe; bead and reel border. R. L. PISO. FRVG. ROMA below naked horseman galloping l., bearing palm-branch, directed over his shoulder, and holding reins; no symbol above. This type, without a symbol on rev., is not given in the B.M.C. B., Calpurnia, 8. E. F. » 15 »
- The type refers to the Ludi Apollinares which were established in B.C. 212 and the annual celebrating of which was proposed by an ancestor of the moneyer.
- 86535 — Quintus Varius. Obv. Head of Apollo similar; before, letter g. R. Victory walking r. and holding wreath dividing legend L. PI SO; in ex., FRVGI. B., Calpurnia, 13. V. F. » 8 »
- The Victory refers to his father's and grandfather's successes in the war against the slaves in B.C. 133.
- 86536 B.C. 87. L. Titurius L. f. Sabinus. Obv. Bearded head r., of the Sabine king, Tatius; behind, SABIN; below chin, palm-branch. R. L. TITVRI. Two soldiers facing each other, each bearing a Sabine woman in his arms. B., Tituria, 2. V. F. » 3 »
- The family evidently traced its descent from the Sabines and perhaps from king Tatius himself; the reverse refers to the rape of the Sabines, and the death of Tarpeia.
- 86537 B.C. 86. L. Rubrius Dossenus. Head of Jupiter laureate; behind, sceptre and DOSSEN. R. L. RVBRI (in ex.). Triumphal chariot r., on it Victory. B., Rubria, 1. F. » 1 6
- The reverse type recalls the solemn entry of the chariots of the chief divinities on the occurrence of the public games.
- 86538 B.C. 85. C. Licinius L. f. Macer. Obv. Youthful head of Veiovis, turned towards the spectator; head looking l., and diademed; cloak over l. shoulder; with r. hand he hurls thunderbolt. R. C. LICINIUS. L. F. MACER (in ex.). Minerva armed with spear and shield in galloping quadriga r. B., Licinia, 16. E. F. » 6 »
- Veiovis, 'the little Jupiter' appears to have been a Latin divinity of a destructive nature, whose lightning produced deafness.*
- 86539 — Lucius Julius Bursia. Obv. Bust of Genius r., slightly draped; head laureate and with wing, hair in ringlets; behind, trident and symbol, flower. R. L. IVLII. BVRSIO (in exergue). Victory galloping r. in quadriga. B., Julia, 5. F. » 2 6
- 86540 B.C. 84. Gargilius, Ogulnius and Vergilius. Obv. Head of young Jupiter r., wearing oak-wreath; hair arranged in ringlets. R. Jupiter in quadriga r., horses galloping. F. » 3 6
- This coin is attributed to these three moneyers as there are similar coins with all their monograms on the same reverse.
- 86541 B.C. 83. Publius Crepusius. Obv. Head of Apollo r., laureate; behind, sceptre; below chin, letter, Q. R. P. CREPVSI (in ex.). Horseman galloping r., hurling spear; behind, number XII. B., Crepusia, 1. V. F. » 4 »
- 86542 B.C. 82. Quintus Antonius Balbus. Obv. Head of Jupiter r.,

- laureate; behind, S.C. Q. ATO. BAB PR. Victory in quadriga r., horses galloping; below horses, letter X; edge serrated. B., Antonia, 1. V. F. » 2 6
- This moneyer was a member of the Marian party, and in B.C. 82 was appointed praetor in Sardinia, from whence he was driven by L. Philippus, the legate of Sulla, and slain. This money was probably struck before he left Rome for Sardinia, ready to pay his troops. B.M.C., 1, 344.
- 86543 — C. Marius C. f. Capito. Obv. C. MARI. C. F. CAPIT. VIII around bust of Ceres r., draped, wearing earring; head bound with corn-wreath. R. Husbandman l., ploughing with yoke of oxen; in r. hand he holds staff; above, number VIII; edge serrated. B., Maria, 7. F. » 3 6
- 86544 B.C. 81. C. Publius Quinti f. Obv. Bust of Roma r., dr., wearing helmet, feather on each side; hair long; behind, ROMA; above, letter C. R. C. PUBLI. Q. F. Hercules naked, standing l., and strangling the Nemean lion; at his feet, club; on l., bow and arrows in case; above which, letter C; edge serrated. B., Poblizia, 9. F. » 3 6
- 86545 B.C. 80. Tiberius Claudius Ti. f. Appii Nepos. Obv. Bust of Diana r. diad. and dr.; at her shoulders, bow and quiver; under chin S.C. R. TI. CLAUD. TI. F. A. N. (in ex.). Victory in galloping biga r.; under horses, L XXX IIII; edge serrated. B., Claudia, 5. V. F. » 3 »
- The obverse refers to the Sabine origin of the gens; the worship of Diana having been introduced into Rome by the Sabines. B.M.C., 1, 381.
- 86546 B.C. 79. Lucius Proculus f. Obv. Head of Juno Sospita r., wearing goat's skin, tied under the chin; behind, s.c. R. L. PROCILI. F. (in ex.). Juno Sospita, armed with spear and shield in galloping biga r.; she wears goat-skin on her head, and close-fitting dress; under horses, serpent, erect; edge serrated. B., Proclia, 2. M. » 2 »
- 86547 B.C. 78. Marcus Volteius M. f. Obv. Head of Jupiter laur. r. R. M. VOLTEI. M. F. (in ex.). The tetrastyle Doric temple of Jupiter Capitolinus with closed doors. B., Volteia, 1. F. » 3 6
- The representation on the reverse is of the temple on the Capitol, and would refer to the ludi Romani established by Tarquin the Ancient, and celebrated in September.
- 86548 B.C. 77. L. Rutilius Flaccus. Obv. Head of Roma, behind, FLAC. R. L. RVTILI. (in ex.). Victory in galloping biga r. B., Rutilia, 1. F. » 2 »
- 86549 B.C. 76. Lucius Rustius. Obv. Head of young Mars r., wearing crested helmet; behind, s.c.; under chin, mark of value, ✠. R. L. RVSTI. (in ex.). Ram standing r. B., Rustia, 1. F. » 2 6
- No explanation of this type has been suggested.
- 86550 B.C. 75. L. Farsuleius Mensor. Obv. Bust of Libertas r., draped, wearing diadem; before, MENSOR; behind, cap of Liberty and s.c.; banker's countermark on cheek. R. L. FARSVLEI. (in ex.). Roma assisting a togate figure to mount into a chariot; under horse's feet XXII. B., Farsuleia, 2. V. F. » 5 »
- Eckhel thinks that the type alludes to the 'lex Julia' which was promulgated during the Social war and by which the right of citizenship was granted to all Italians; hence the representation of Liberty on the obverse, and on the reverse, Roma inviting the Genius of Italy to enter her chariot.
- 86551 B.C. 74. Publius Cornelius Lentulus Pub. f. L. Nepos. Head of Hercules, bare with close beard; behind, Q. S. C. R. P. LEN. P. F. L. N. The Genius of the Roman people, bearded, veiled and naked to the waist, seated facing on a curule chair and crowned by a Victory; he holds cornucopiae in r. hand and sceptre in l., and rests his foot on a globe. B., Cornelia, 58. RRR. F. » 2 10 »
- 86552 B.C. 73. Quintus Crepereius M. f. Rocus. Bust of Amphitrite turned from spectator, head r., draped, and showing her shoulders bare; before, letter B; behind, symbol tortoise. R. Q. CREPEREI. M. F. ROCVS below Neptune in sea-chariot r., drawn by two hippocamps; he holds reins in l. hand, and with r. hurls trident; above, letter B. B., Crepereia, 2. RR. From the Ramon Sale. V. F. » 4 10 »
- The Crepereia gens was of equestrian rank, and was distinguished for the strict discipline of its members. The types refer to some naval event in which the moneyer's ancestors took part.
- 86553 B.C. 72. Quintus Fufius Kalenus and Mucius Cordius. Obv. KALENI below jugate heads of Honos and Virtus r.; the former laureate, the latter helmeted; behind HO; before VIR. R. CORDI (in ex.). Roma hand in hand with Italia; on l., IA and winged caduceus; on r. RO; edge serrated. B., Fufia, 1. E. F. » 7 6
- The reverse is undoubtedly an allusion to the recent pacification of Italy after the Social war and the obv. type is intended to convey intimation that this alliance would be under the special care of the divinities Honos and Virtus.
- 86553* — Manius Aquillius Mn. f. Mn. Nepos. Obv. Bust of Virtus r.; before, VIRTVS; behind, III VIR. R. M. AQVIL. M. F. M. N., SICIL. The consul Mn. Aquillius raising a kneeling female figure, Sicilia, who is sinking to the ground; edge serrated. B., Aquillia, 2. V. F. » 3 6
- This is the first instance of a moneyer noting his office of
- triumvir of the mint on his coins. The reverse type refers to the success of Manius Aquillius in B.C. 101 in Sicily and the obv. to the exceptional valour which he had shown throughout the war. B.M.C., 1, 416.
- 86554 B.C. 71. C. Hosidius C. f. Geta. Obv. Bust of Diana dr. and diad., she wears necklace of long pendants; at her shoulder, bow and quiver; before, GETA; behind III. VIR. R. C. HOSIDI. C. F. (in ex.). The wild boar of Calydon r., pierced by a spear, and attacked by a dog; edge serrated. B., Hosidia, 1. E. F. » 6 »
- 86555 B.C. 70. Lucius Roscius Fabatius. Obv. Head of Juno Sospita r., wearing goat's skin tied under chin; below, L. ROSCI; behind, symbol, curule chair. R. FABATI (in ex.). Female figure standing r., and feeding from her dress a serpent, erect before her; behind figure, symbol, stool. B., Roscia, 1. V. F. » 3 6
- (See note to Roscia in Oct. N.C.).
- 86556 B.C. 69. Publius Sulpicius Galba. Obv. Head of Vesta, veiled, r.; behind, s.c. R. P. GALB. (in ex.). Sacrificial implements. B., Sulpicia, 7. E. F. » 8 0
- This type relates to Galba's priestly function as a curule aedile, and it was in virtue of that office that he issued this special coinage, probably to meet some extraordinary expenditure. B.M.C., 1, 433.
- 86557 B.C. 68. Marcus Plaetorius M. f. Cestianus. Obv. Young male head, Bonus Eventus, r., with flowing hair; behind, symbol, spear head. R. M. PLAETORI. CEST. EX. S. C. divided by Caduceus, winged. B., Plaetoria, 5. V. F. » 5 »
- As the caduceus is a symbol of commerce, it is possible that we have here a record of a special largesse of corn, which may have occurred about the time of the celebration of the Ludi Cereales. B.M.C., 1, 435.
- 86558 B.C. 67. Quintus Pomponius Musa. Obv. Head of Apollo r., laureate; behind, star. R. Q. POMPONI MVSA divided by the Muse, Urania in long flowing tunic and peplos, standing towards l., and touching, with wand in her r. hand, globe resting on tripod. B., Pomponia, 22. E. F. » 1 »
- This is one of a series of coins by this moneyer representing Hercules Musagetes and the nine Muses, which are no doubt intended to refer to the cognomen of the moneyer. This is Urania, Muse of Astronomy, touching the celestial globe. B.M.C., 1, 442.
- 86559 B.C. 66. Marcus Calpurnius Piso M. f. Frugi. Obv. Terminal bust of Mercury r., draped, head bound with winged diadem; before, cup with two handles; behind, wreath with fillet. R. M. PISO. M. F. FRVGI above Patera, against which rests sacrificial knife in sheath; the whole within laurel-wreath. RR. B., Calpurnia, 23. E. F. » 2 2 »
- If the moneyer was a curule aedile he probably struck these on the celebration of the Terminalia.
- 86560 B.C. 65. Marcus Aemilius Lepidus. Obv. Female head r., wearing diadem. R. M. LEPIDVS. AN. XV. PR. H. O. C. S. (Annorum quindecim progressus hostem occidit, civem servavit) around equestrian statue r., bearing trophy, and wearing bulla etc. B., Aemilia, 22. E. F. » 1 10 »
- This records the deeds of the moneyer's ancestor of the same name who is said to have served in the army when still a youth, and at the age of fifteen to have killed an enemy and saved the life of a citizen.
- 86561 B.C. 64. Caius Calpurnius Piso L. f. Frugi. Obv. Head of Apollo r., with fillet; behind, IA. R. Naked horseman galloping r., bearing long palm-branch over his shoulder; underneath, c PISO L F FR; above, — (?) B., Calpurnia, 24. F. D. C. » 10 »
- These coins are copied from those of his father, see 86534.
- 86562 — Similar but fillet with long ends; behind head, † and above horseman (M). E. F. » 8 0
- 86563 B.C. 63. Marcus Nonius Sufenas. Obv. Head of Saturn r., bearded, hair long; before, SVFENAS; behind, harpa and conical stone and s.c. R. SEX. NONI PR. L. V. P. F. (Sextus Nonius praetor ludos Victoriae primus fecit). Roma seated l. on a pile of arms being crowned by a Victory who stands behind her. B., Nonia, 1. E. F. » 10 »
- These coins were probably issued on the occasion of the ludi Victoriae in B.C. 63.
- 86564 B.C. 62. Faustus Cornelius Sulla. Obv. Diademed bust of young Hercules r., with slight beard, wearing lion's skin; behind, FELIX. R. FAVSTVS below Diana in biga r., horses galloping, she holds lituus and reins; above her head, crescent; above and below horses, two stars. B., Cornelia, 60. RR. V. F. » 3 »
- This portrait is identified as that of the young African Hercules, which was placed on the coins to record the African campaigns of the moneyer's father.
- 86565 — Caius Considius Nonianus. Obv. Bust of Venus Erycina r., laur. and diad.; behind, C. CONSIDI. NONIANI; before, s.c. R. Temple on the summit of a mountain, surrounded by a rampart with gateway in centre, and tower at each side; above the gateway ERVC (Erycina). B., Considia, 1. E. F. » 15 »
- The worship of Venus Erycina at Rome was derived from Eryx in Sicily, where the goddess had the famous temple which is portrayed on the reverse. B.M.C., 1, 473.
- 86566 B.C. 60. Publius Fonteius Pub. f. Capito. Bust of Mars r., draped and helmeted with slight beard; behind, trophy; around,

P. FONTEIVS. P. R. CAPITO. III. VIR. R. Warrior on horseback galloping r., thrusting his spear at enemy who is about to slay third combatant; in field to r., helmet and shield; above, M. FON. TR. MIL. B., Fonteia, 17. V. F. » 5 »
 This reverse records the exploits of Manius Fonteius when he was Governor of Narbonese Gaul B.C. 76-73.

86567 — Obv. Head of Concordia veiled r.; CONCORDIA, P. FONTEIVS. CAPITO. III. VIR. R. The Villa Publica; a building consisting of two storeys each with a row of columns and the upper one supporting a sloping roof; around, T. DIDI. IMP. VII. PVB. B., Fonteia, 18 or Didia, 1. V. F. » 7 6

This coin refers to T. Didius consul of B.C. 98, who it would appear restored or embellished the Villa Publica in the Campus Martius. The moneyer was probably related by marriage to the Didia gens and the good feeling between the two families is emphasized by the bust of Concordia. B. M. C., 1, 478.

86568 B. C. 59. Quintus Caepio Brutus. Obv. Head r., bearded, of Lucius Junius Brutus, the Ancient; behind BRVTVS. R. Head r., bearded, of Caius Servilius Ahala; behind, AHALA. B., Junia, 30. V. F. » 7 6

This moneyer is better known to history as M. Junius Brutus one of the assassins of Julius Caesar. This coin traces his descent from the consul of B.C. 509 and points also to his connection through his mother with the Servilia gens, which claimed as an ancestor C. Servilius Ahala, who in B.C. 439, when master of the horse, slew Spurius Maelius on the ground that he was plotting against the state. B. M. C., 1, 480.

This coin was struck to meet the expenses of the celebration of the public games held in this year, which were noted for their splendour, surpassing anything held before. This is the first instance of a moneyer commemorating on his own coins an event connected with his own history. M. Aemilius Scaurus, one of the most noted men of the time, when governor of Syria repressed the incursions of the Nabathean Arabians, compelling their king, Aretas, to submit and pay a fine of 300 talents. B. M. C., 1, 483.

86571 B. C. 57. Quintus Pompeius Rufus. Obv. Curule chair between arrow and laurel-branch, Q. POMPEI. Q. F. RVFVS, COS. R. Curule chair between lituus and wreath. SVLLA. COS, Q. POMPEI. RVF. B., Pompeia and Cornelia, 49. M. » 1 »

This type is emblematic of the careers and offices of his paternal and maternal grandfathers, Q. Pompeius Rufus and Sulla.

86572 B. C. 56. Lucius Marcus Philippus. Obv. Head of Ancus Marcius r., diad.; below, ANCVS; behind, lituus. R. Equestrian statue r., on an arcade of five arches, within which is the inscription, AQVA MR; behind statue, PHILIPPVS; and under it, a flower. B., Marcia, 28. F. » 2 6

The Marcia gens claimed descent from Ancus Marcius, the fourth king of Rome, who is said to have been the first to bring water to Rome by means of an aqueduct.

86573 B. C. 55. Lucius Furius Cn. f. Broccus. Obv. Bust of Ceres r., draped and wearing wreath of corn; before grain of barley and behind, ear of wheat; below, BROCCHI; above, III VIR. R. L. FVRI CN. F. Curule chair between two fasces with axes. *A. Furia, 23. E. F. » 8 »*

86574 — Obv. Publius Licinius Crassus M. f. Obv. Bust of Venus diad. and laur.; behind, s.c. R. A warrior standing towards l., holding his horse, at his feet trophy. P. CRASSVS. M. F. B., Licinia, 18. F. » 5 »

This issue was especially struck to pay the expenses of a levy of a thousand Gaulish horsemen raised by Crassus which he conducted to Rome. The head of Venus is a compliment to Julius Caesar who claimed descent from that divinity.

86575 B. C. 54. Aulus Plautius. Obv. Head of Cybele r., turreted; around, A. PLAVTVS AED. CVR. S. C. R. Bearded figure, Bacchus in Eastern dress, kneeling r., with camel at his side; in ex., BACCHIVS; on r. IVDAEVVS. B., Plautia, 13. E. F. » 10 »

The head of Cybele may refer to the Megalesian games and the reverse refers to the same event as no. 86570.

Babelon thinks that the curule chair on rev. shows that Messalla was quaestor with Faustus Cornelius Sulla and that he struck money by order of the Senate; the sceptre recalling the circumstance that one of his ancestors P. Valerius Publicola, assisted in banishing the kings from Rome and was consul with Brutus during the first year of the Republic.

There is considerable controversy on the identity of Messalla, as the coins are absent from nearly all the finds of the period and are very rare.

86578 B. C. 51. Caius Memmius C. f. Obv. Head of Romulus (Quirinus) r., laureate, hair long, beard in ringlets; behind, QVIRINVS; before, C. MEMMI. C. F. R. Ceres seated r., at her feet a serpent, she holds ears of corn and torch; around, MEMMIVS. AED. CERALIA. PREIMVS. FECIT. B., Memmia, 9. E. F. » 7 6

The obv. refers to the claimed descent of the gens through Romulus from the Trojan Menestheus. The rev., to the institution of the Ludi Cereales.

86580 B. C. 50-49. Julius Caesar (Gaul). Obv. Elephant trampling on the dragon; below, CAESAR. R. Sacrificial implements. C., 49. V. F. » 3 6

The obverse type refers to Caesar's recent victories in Gaul. The rev. an allusion to the office of Pontifex Maximus which he held from B.C. 63.

86581 B. C. 49. Caius Vibius Pansa and Decimus Postumius Albinus Br. f. Obv. Head of Pietas r.; behind, PIETAS. There is a crescent shaped countermark on the neck. R. Two right hands joined holding winged caduceus; below, ALBINVS. BRVTI. F. B., Postumia, 10, Junia, 25. V. F. » 5 »

This type denotes the good feeling that existed between Caesar and the citizens of Rome.

86582 B. C. 48. Julius Caesar (In the East). Obv. Head of Venus r., diad.; countermark on cheek. R. Aeneas walking l., holding Palladium and carrying on l. shoulder his father Anchises; on r., CAESAR. C., 11. B., Julia, 10. V. F. » 3 6

The types relate to the mythical descent of the Julia gens from Iulus, son of Aeneas. B. M. C., 11, 469.

86583 — Obv. Male head of Gaul, Vercingetorix, r., with long pointed beard and hair flowing back; a chain around his neck; behind, a long shield pointed at the ends. R. Naked warrior in biga r., horses galloping; he is turned from the horses, and holding shield on l. arm, hurls spear with r. hand; the horses are driven by a naked charioteer, who is seated in front of the car; above, L. HOSTILIVS; below, SASERN. RR. B., Hostilia, 2. E. F. 1 15 »

This coin records Vercingetorix's valiant struggle against the Romans.

86584 — Obv. Head of Gallia r., hair long and dishevelled; behind, Gaulish trumpet. R. Diana standing facing, holding a spear and a stag by the horns; around l. HOSTILIVS SASERNA. B., Hostilia, 4. A fine coin. V. F. » 12 6

This type may relate to the siege of Massilia by the generals of Caesar as Diana was especially honoured there.

86585 B. C. 47. Lucius Plautius Plancus. Obv. Mask of Medusa, head facing; below, L. PLAVTVS. R. Aurora, draped and winged, and with palm-branch, encircled with wreath in l. hand, flying r., and conducting the four horses of the sun; below, PLANCVS. B., Plautia, 15. F. » 5 »

Eckhel has explained this type as an event connected with the moneyer's family. Some people were conveyed into Rome in the early hours of the morning and their faces were covered with scenic masks so that they should not be recognized. B. M. C., 1, 516.

86586 B. C. 46. Manius Cordius Rufus. Obv. Conjoined heads of the Dioscuri, each wearing laur. pileus surmounted by a star; RVFVS III. VIR. R. Venus Verticordia standing l., holding balance in r. hand and sceptre in l.; behind her shoulder hovers Cupid; on r. M. CORDIVS. B., Cordia, 1. V. F. » 4 6

Venus Verticordia, the goddess who "turns the hearts of men", to whom a temple was especially dedicated at Rome after the corruption of the vestal virgins, may not only be a punning allusion to the name of the Cordia gens, but may also refer to the supposed descent of the Julia family from Venus.

86587 — Obv. Head of Venus diad. r.; behind, RVFVS. S. C. R. Cupid seated on a dolphin r. which he conducts with a bridle; below, M. CORDIVS. B., Cordia, 2. V. F. » 7 6

Cupid on a dolphin is a common attribute of Venus.

ARIT EX S C (Praefectus classis et orae maritimae ex senatus consulto). C., 17. B., Pompeia, 25. V. F. 1. " "
- The figure of Neptune relates to his recent victory over Salvatinius and to his acclamation as the "Son of Neptune", whilst the representation of the Catanaean brothers may show that the coins were struck at Catana. B.M.C., II, 560.*
- 86602 B.C. 38-36. — Obv. The Pharos of Messina, surmounted by a figure of Neptune; before, a galley with legionary eagle in prow placed on a tripod, and in the stern a trident, a staff with flag, and a grappling-iron; around, MAG PIVS IMP ITER. R. The monster Scylla l., wielding with violence a rudder with both hands; her body terminates
- in two fish-tails and the foreparts of three dogs; around, PRAEF CLAS ET ORAE ARIT EX S C. B., Pompeia, 22. C., 2. V. F. 1 10 "
- The figure of Scylla points to the region in which the second battle took place and where the tempest destroyed the fleet of Octavius. The Pharos is that which stood at the entrance of the harbour of Messina, opposite the fatal rock Scylla, and which served as a warning to mariners to avoid Churybdis. It was in the harbour of Messina that the greater part of the fleet of Pompey took shelter during the tempest which was so fatal to Octavius's ships. B.M.C., II, 563.*
- 86603 B.C. 38-37. Mark Antony (Athens). Obv. Mark Antony in the dress of an augur standing r., holding lituus; around, M ANTONIVS M F M N AVGVR IMP TER. R. Head of Sol r., radiate; around, COS DESIG ITER ET TERT IIII VIR R P C B., Antonia, 80. C., 13. V. F. 1 10 "

- 86605 B.C. 32-31. Mark Antony and Cleopatra. Athens. Obv. Head of Antony r., bare; behind an Armenian tiara; around, ANTONI ARMENIA DEVICTA. R. Bust of Cleopatra r., diad. and dr.; row of jewels at back of head; before bust, stern of prow; around, CLEOPATRAE REGINAE REGVM FILIORVM REGVM. B., Antonia, 95. C., 1. RRR. F. 6 6 "
- 86606 — — Similar. RRR. M. 1 10 "
- The principal events commemorated by these denarii are the conquest of Armenia by Antony in B.C. 34, his subsequent triumph at Alexandria, the honours that he conferred on Cleopatra, and the assistance which he received from her in the supply of ships. In B.C. 32 Cleopatra and Antony went to Athens where they endeavoured to court the people by every mark of favour, and in return public honours were decreed to Cleopatra. It was probably on this occasion that these denarii were struck. B.M.C., II, 525.*
- 86606a B.C. 31. Decimus Turullius (Athens). Obv. Head of Antony r., bare; around, M ANTONIVS AVG IMP IIII COS TERT IIII VIR R P C. R. Victory standing l., holding laurel-wreath tied with fillet in r. hand, and palm-branch in l.; the whole within laurel-wreath. C., 81. B., Antonia, 146. RR. E. F. 4 10 "
- Most of the coins of this issue have Turullius's monogram on them; as they are similar in details, it is certain these were struck at the same time. These coins record Antony's fourth imperatorship, which was assumed after the Armenian war, when he celebrated his triumph at Alexandria. B.M.C., II, 531.*
- 86606b B.C. 29-28. Augustus. Quinarius. Obv. CAESAR IMP VII. His bare head r. R. ASIA RECEPTA. Victory standing on the cista mystica which is placed between two serpents. C., 14. V. F. " 15 "
- This refers to the submission of the Province of Asia or rather all that had been assigned to Antony. The type is copied from the Asiatic cistophori.*
- 86607 B.C. 29. 27. — Denarius. Obv. His bare head r. R. Triumphal arch, surmounted by quadriga, in the ear of which stands Augustus; the frieze of the arch is inscribed, IMP CAESAR. C., 123. V. F. " 12 6
- This refers to his three days' triumph, the first for his victories over the Pannonians, the Dalmatians, and the Gauls; the second for the battle of Actium; and the third for the final extinction of the rivalry of the East and West before the walls of Alexandria. It was the occasion of a distribution of largesse by Augustus. B.M.C., II, 13.*
- 86608 — — Obv. His bare head r. R. IMP CAESAR (across the field). Rostral column ornamented at sides with prows of ships and in front with two anchors, and surmounted by a statue of Octavius resting with r. hand on spear and holding parazonium in l. C., 124 (See note to last coin). V. F. 2 10 "

MARY.

A.D. 1553-1558.

- 87223^a Sovereign. 1553. Mm. (Obv.) Rose and pomegranate dimidiated (?) (R.) Pomegranate only. Obv. MARIA: D'G'AGL'FRAN'ET: HIB: REX, the legend ending $\overline{m} \overline{a} \overline{r} \overline{i} \overline{a}$ III, the Queen enthroned, a portcullis (without chains) at her feet. R. $\overline{p} \overline{r} \overline{o} \overline{t} \overline{e} \overline{g}$ &c., $\overline{m} \overline{i} \overline{r} \overline{a} \overline{b} \overline{i}$ OCVL, shield upon large rose (cf. Ken., no 3). Unpublished variety. The mint-mark on obverse of this coin is of considerable interest as well as rarity. Although Kenyon (p. 118) describes it as a half-rose it appears far more likely to represent a half-rose and sheaf of arrows dimidiated, than either a half-rose, or a half-rose and pomegranate dimidiated. This attribution is strengthened by the fact that in a MS in the College of Arms a badge of Mary's occurs displaying the dexter half of a double rose impaled with a sheaf of arrows. RRR. V. Cross with blazing sun in centre. Rud., ix, 2. Curiously enough Kenyon, p. 118, disputes the accuracy of Ruding's illustration above quoted. This coin effectively establishes Ruding's reading. Not very fine and has been slightly repaired. Of highest rarity and interest. F. 20 » »

- 88013 Royal Irish Fusiliers Unique gold medal for very gallant conduct at Buenos Ayres. $2\frac{5}{16} \times 1\frac{13}{16}$. Obv. Crown, Prince of Wales's plume, Harp, 87th within a wreath formed of Roses, Shamrocks and P. of W. plumes. R. THE GIFT OF THE OFFICERS OF THE 1st BATT. 87th PRINCE OF WALES IRISH REGT TO ENSIGN P... B... H... IN CONSEQUENCE OF HIS VERY GALLANT CONDUCT BEFORE BUENOS AYRES ON THE 5th JULY 1807 WHILST SERVING AS A VOLUNTEER. Within a wreath as on the obverse. RRR.

* The earliest known medal of the Regiment.

* The 87th (Prince of Wales's Irish Regiment of Foot of 1793 — the old Faugh-a-Ballaghs (Clear-the-Ways) of Peninsula story — is the present 1st Battalion Princess Victoria's Royal Irish Fusiliers.

This corps was raised in Ireland, under an order dated 18th September 1793, by Colonel, afterwards General, Sir John Doyle, an officer who had served with much distinction in the old 105th (King's Irish) in the American War. It went to South America with Sir Samuel Auchmuty in 1807, and fought at Monte Video and Buenos Ayres.

In the spring of 1806, Sir Home Popham, who was in command of the Naval forces at the Cape of Good Hope, without any authority from the home government sailed from the Cape taking with him all the naval force, and 1,500 troops. The armament arrived off Buenos Ayres on the 24th June. No time was wasted and on the 28th the land forces surprised and captured Buenos Ayres, while a feint was made by the fleet against Monte Video. But the inhabitants secretly organised an insurrection which broke out on August 4th, and was assisted from without by the Militia of the surrounding districts.

The British garrison, after a stout resistance, was overpowered; and the survivors were made prisoners of war though Sir Home Popham escaped with the squadron and anchored for a while at the mouth of the river. A fresh force of 3,000 troops was despatched, under Sir Samuel Auchmuty, who, on the 2nd Feby. 1807, assaulted Monte Video, and carried it by storm after a most stubborn conflict, in which the British loss was 600.

In June Auchmuty was joined by General Craufurd with reinforcements, which brought up the total of the British forces to 9,000 men; and General Whetelocke was sent out to take command of the whole force.

On the 5th July an attack was made, without due preparation or design on Buenos Ayres. The town had no regular fortifications; and the inhabitants trusted solely to their advantageous positions on the roofs and towers. From these points of vantage the attacking troops were met by a destructive fire. On the right Auchmuty seized the Plaza de Toros, with its large stores of all sorts; but this advantage was more than counterbalanced by the defeat of the English at all other quarters.

5. Irish gold medal of Kinsale Friendly Knot. RRR. 200 »

* "Lieutenant Henry Knolles K. I. S., entered the Navy in 1808 and served for nearly four years with Admiral Hon. Michael De Courcy, under whom in the Tonnant 80, he assisted in embarking the army after the battle of Corunna, and was for a long time employed, in the "Foudroyant" on the Brazilian station.

In Sept. 1813 we find him employed at the siege of St Sebastian in the Revolutionnaire, Capt. John Chas. Woolcombe. He passed his examination in 1814; and after an intermediate servitude in various ships, part of the time on the Cape station, was promoted, 3rd June 1824, to a Lieutenancy in the "Windsor Castle", Capt. Chas. Dashwood, at the particular request of Don John of Portugal upon whose fugitive family while mate of that ship, he had been in especial attendance during the height of the rebellion. As a further mark of favour, the same monarch created him a knight of the Order of the Tower and Sword."

Copy of a letter referring to the rare Kinsale Knolles medal.

St Multose Rectory
Kinsale Co Cork

"Dear Sir,

Nov. 25th 1910.

When I received your letter this morning, I had no idea what the 'Kinsale Knot' meant, but while out I met a gentleman who I thought might be able to throw some light on it. Fortunately, I could not have asked a better, as he is the last member of the Kinsale Knot. It seems the Friendly were formed with various 'Knots' in Ireland, the name 'Knots' signifying a tie of Friendship. It was a very select body somewhat similar in object to the Masonic Order, and the 'Knot' corresponded to the Lodges of Masons. The 'Kinsale Knot' was founded in 1754, and the last meeting was held in 1854. Dr Dunn, the gentleman who gave me this information says Lieut. Knolles must have held some high office, such as President, for the gold medal was not a badge of membership, he himself has not got one. I cannot for the moment remember where the tomb is, but shall get the keeper to look for it when the weather permits. There are members of the Knolles' family living near Kinsale but their burving places are not in St Multose. There is a tablet in the Church to Capt Thomas (Friendly) Knolles, late of Oatland died Novr 1840, erected by the Kinsale Lodge of Friendly Brothers whose arms, a number of hearts bound together with the motto "Quis Separabit" are grouped with the arms of the Knolles family."

Sgn^d H. H. Pearson.

Medal 1¹/₂ diam. Obv. A number of hearts tied together with a cord and crowned within a circle of knots and shamrocks between two dolphins, above, a crested helmet, below, a riband inscribed QUIS SEPARABIT. R. In the centre of a cross a large heart, crowned, FIDELIS ET CONSTANS the whole within a circle of knots and shamrocks.

VARIA

A VALUABLE FIND OF ANCIENT GOLD COINS IN SOUTH INDIA.

The Madras Government have to be congratulated on the discovery of the huge treasure trove of gold coins at Kadur in the Nellore district. These coins numbered 16,586, each coin weighing approximately 52 grains. Of these, 740 were distributed among the Indian Museum, Calcutta, the Provincial Museums including the Madras Museum and Darbars, 482 were retained in the Madras Museum for sale to numismatists and the general public in the Madras Presidency and the remaining 15,364 are now available in our local mint at the hands of the Mint Master, Bombay, for sale at their bullion value. These facts are all recorded in an order issued by the Madras Government wherein the following valuable account relating to these coins, arranged in twelve groups and illustrated in a plate of 86 specimens, appear: — "The hoarding of treasures was in its usual way a meritorious act with the pious Hindus. The vessels with lids, in which these coins were deposited, prove the great care with which this sacred act was ceremoniously performed. This collection could not in any case have formed the whole or part of a ruling chief's treasury, since coins of different dynasties are found mixed up with it, nor could these coins have been minted or struck at one and the same time for a special occasion such as that of the gold-weighting ceremony, tulabhara, even now current in the Travancore State. As the popular Vijayanagara coins of the 15th century are not found in the collection it will be evident that the hoard could not have been deposited subsequent to that period.

The village of Kodur is believed to have been a seaport of some local importance in the past and the spot of the find therein shows traces of its having been a site on which houses once stood. The finder hit upon copper and earthen pots provided with lids varying in size from 7 in. to 8 in. in height, 2½ in. to 4 in. in girth and 2½ in. to 3 in. in the narrow mouth diameter. Broken pieces of both the copper vessel and the pots are now deposited in the Government Museum, Madras.

The coins, almost all of them, are round and are of the well-known western chalukya type called padmatanka. They preserve their cup-shaped form where they happen to be thin. Though differing in size from 1 in. to 41-60 in. in diameter in the case of the thinner and larger kind and down to 29-30 in. in the case of the thicker and smaller, they are of an almost uniform weight, viz., 51¾ grains to 52¼ grains, and value, and are roughly 7 carats fine. They show various punch marks on the surface, the most prominent of which are the two auspicious symbols Sri in the old Telugu-Kannada script on either side of the periphery at the ends of the horizontal diameter. The sun and moon, represented by a circle and crescent, respectively, with or without stars in them, are found at one extremity of the vertical diameter and the name or title of the king who issued the coin is found below, in Telugu-Kannada, Nagari, Tamil or Tamil-Grantha characters. A hook attached to a spear and surmounted by the Sun and Moon, also appear in the majority of cases. Other symbols distinguished on the coins are generally found to be figures of a lion or tiger with open mouth, raised paw and twisted tail, very crudely represented by dots and lines. Sometimes clusters of dots representing flowers or floral devices take the place of the lion. These latter marks, unnecessary though they apparently seem to be, may have been intentional and served to give an attractive reflecting surface to the coin.

The reverse sides of the coins are invariably blank. In the case of one or two groups stray punch-marks, such as those of lotus, svastika, serpent, conch, disc., trident, elephant, and the sign for fanam or fraction thereof are found. Thus it becomes evident that the coins bearing these marks were in weight and value supposed to be less than a varahan as it was then calculated. The suggestion possibly receives further support from the significant statement often made in early Chola inscriptions about the bullion called tulaippon and Kalanju. The former was the standard of gold passed for currency and was "9¼ carats fine, red like fire after being heated, cut, melted and cooled. A piece cut off from the Kalanji was neither wanting in fineness nor in tulai (impression?) when tested by or upon the city stone". Although this scrutiny may not apparently have been necessary in the case of the gold coin issued by the king with his name and symbols punched on it, still it is not improbable that the gold coin in general was tested before it was introduced into the market and the hall mark of the testing office was noted on the back of it as in the case of the special groups under reference. This suggests that forging the king's coin was not altogether unknown and that corrupt gold was often smuggled into the market by unscrupulous persons. A record at Uttaramallur in the Chingleput district refers to a committee of nine elected members, appointed to test the purity of gold collected in that village (as revenue). Gold bullion appears to have been a more common medium of exchange than gold coin.

Palaography is our only guide in determining the age of these coins and groups I to V (b), VIII and XII A and E roughly belong to the 13th century A.D. The legends Bhujavira and Bhujabala found on the coins of these groups have to be interpreted only as titles: for no king of South Indian dynasties bore these names. Further the Nellore district, where these coins were discovered, passed successively under the sway of the Pallavas, the Chalukyas (both Eastern and Western), the Cholas, the later Telugu-Chola chiefs and the Kakatiyas. These Telugu-Cholas, as their family name indicates, had in them combined the elements both of the Telugu and the Tamil races. Again the Telugu Chola chief Madurantaka Pattapi-Chola Manmasittarasu held the title Bhujabalavira and ruled the eastern Paka country, i.e., almost the whole of the modern Nellore district from about 1243-44 to 1261-62 A.D. Another Errasiddha was known as Bhujabala Siddharasa and still another Chakra-Narayana chief bore the surname Bhujabala. A Telugu Chola subordinate of the Chola king Rajaraja was named Yadavaraja Bhujabala Siddharasadeva. Vira-Narasimhadeva Yadavaraja and the gold coin Bhujabalamadai existed during the days of Chola king Tribhuvanaviradeva, i.e., Kulottunga III (1178 to 1228 A.D.). Thus the coins which bear the Telugu-Tamil legends, Bhuja, Bhujava, or Bhujaba (i.e., Bhujabala) belong to one or the other of the Telugu-Chola chiefs of Nellore who bore the title Bhujabala and the coins with legend Bhujavi or Bhujavira similarly belong to some Telugu-Chola chiefs who held that title, the full form of which was evidently Bhujabalavira.

Groups VI and VII bear in Nagari the legends Gajja or Gajva and Gage or Gaji. These may be Bashtrakuta and belong to king Gojjiga Govinda IV (A.D. 918-933) but the Chola symbol of the lion in Group VII makes it doubtful if they may be assigned to the Rashtrakutas.

Coins of group VIII bear the legend Yana or Na which might be a possible contraction of Narayana. These therefore might be attributed to the Telugu-Chola chiefs, some of whom bore the title Tilaka-Narayana while others regularly called themselves Chakra-Narayana.

Group IX bearing the legend Katachitra in very early characters is undoubtedly the oldest and they may belong to a Pallava King who held that title.

Group X belongs to the western Chalukya king Jagadekamalla II (A.D. 1138-1149). The symbols on them are of the lion and the legend is Dasavarna, the younger brother of Satyasraya and a grandson of king Karikala-Chola of the 6th century.

Those of Group XI may relate to about the 11th century A.D.

Those of group XII have the legend Jagado or Jagadoba (standing for Jagadobhaganda) which title was held by the Telugu-Chola chief Kamayadeva-Maharaja of the beginning of the 13th century A.D."

From the Prospectus recently issued in English by a firm of coin-dealers in Germany, we cull the following gems of English prose:

"This year our firm is looking back to her ten-years existence. It was in Spring 1910, that Mr. ... came to the resolution to establish our firm, and in the same time he began with the necessary preparations.

"During the Summer there would established a coin-stock and Octobre of the same year the first store-catalogue of the coin-trade of  was going in the world.

"The building did not been finished, as the world-war did arise the first day of August and called to arms the both partners of our firm. At the end of 1915 Mr. Dr. X did return in our firm with a numb right arm. The bussiness was very calm at this time, but soonly it came again to life.

"The first public sale in war was in Mars 1918. She was putting on the market any series of great rarities, so many pieces, not being foundet hitherto in trade. This auction was going off amid a large concourse of collectors and museums.

"The learneds hitherto have seen themselves compelled to publish their works about this sphere detached in the journals of art of the different countries, and our intention was to call in life a compilation for all that works....."

GREEK COINS.

COINS OF ANTIOCH BEFORE 25 B. C.

- I. Obv. Head of Men to right wearing Phrygian cap.
Rev. Nike advancing to right, on each side a star of eight rays with the legend ANTIOCH and a magistrate's name APTHMI (Artemidos).
- II. Obv. similar to n° 1.
Rev. Bull with humped back standing to right ANTIOX. In exergue, a magistrate's name.
- III. Size .6. Obv. Eagle with open wings.
Rev. A star with eight rays ANTIOX. (Confer Revue Suisse, XIV (1908), p. 141.)

- IV. Obv. Humped bull, with crescent in field above.
Rev. Hind standing to right looking back.
- V. Obv. Bust of Hermes with caduceus behind shoulder ANTIOCH.
Rev. Modius containing corn. COLONIAE, B. M. C., n° 2, type described as a lighted altar.
- VI. Obv. Bust of Hermes, caduceus behind shoulder. ANTIOCH.
Rev. Winged caduceus COLONIA.
- VII. Obv. ANTIOCH. Bust of Hermes to left, caduceus behind shoulder.
Rev. COLON. A cock to right: border of dots (B. M. C., n° 1).
- VIII. Size .55. Obv. ANTIOCH. Bust of Men to right wearing Phrygian cap, crescent.

Rev. COLONIE. A cock to right; border of dots (B. M. C., n° 3). The busts on these small coins are considered by Mr. G. F. Hill to be assimilated to various emperors. One bust of Hermes is like Hadrian, another like the young Caracalla.

IX. Obv. ANT a bearded bust resembling the Emperor Pius.

Rev. COLO, beardless bust to left with caduceus over the shoulder resembling the Emperor Marcus. These coins however Imhoof-Blumer attributed to the time of Severus.

X. Obv. CCAN (Colonia Caesarea Antiochia). The founder of the city ploughing to right with a yoke of oxen.

Rev. CC in middle, four military standards, the two centre ones bear eagles.

COINS OF AUGUSTUS.

XI. Obv. CAESAR on right. Head of Augustus to right bare.

Rev. COL·CAES above AVGVSTVS in middle, between four military standards as on n° X.

XII. Obv. --VI·AVG·F·AVGVST·IMP VIII. Head of Tiberius to left, bare.

XIII. Obv. TI on left, VS on right. Head of Tiberius to right bare: plain border.

Rev. JVLIA A on left ---TA (AVGVSTA). Similar figure to that on n° XII, plain border. This coin was formerly in the trays of the Spanish coins. It may be a coin of Antioch.

VESPASIAN.

XIV. Obv. IMP VESPASIANO CAESAR AVG COS VII. P.P. Bust of Vespasian to right, laureate (year 76 A.D.).

Rev. LEG V on left. This Legion Gallica fifth is known from tombstones in Antioch to have resided there. CC on the right upwards. Eagle standing, wings spread, between two military standards. Two specimens are countermarked with a figure of Men.

TITUS.

XV. Size .85. Obv. T CAES IMP PONT (Pontifex). Head of Titus to right, laureate.

Rev. AN COL. A priest with yoke of oxen to right; he carries a vexillum; above is a crescent.

ANTONINUS PIUS 138 — 161 A.D.

Rev. Men standing to front looking to right, wearing a Phrygian cap, a crescent behind his shoulders, chiton and himation. He holds a Nike on his left hand, in his right a sceptre, his left foot is on a bucranium; at his feet a cock.

ICONIUM.

We learn from Acts XIII, 51, that when St. Paul left Antioch into Pisidia he went to Iconium which is now called Konia and is the terminus of a railway extending from the Bosphorus. The site is on the western edge of a great plain well watered and very fruitful.

Cicero, Strabo and Pliny all called it inaccurately a city of Lycaonia and hence in the 1st edit. of Dr. Head's Hist. Num. it is placed under that region.

St. Paul is described in Acts XIV, 6, as fleeing from Iconium into Lycaonia and rightly. Xenophon described Iconium as the easternmost city of Phrygia and says that on leaving that city he entered Lycaonia (Anab., I, 11). At the trial of Justin Martyr in the year 163 A.D. a slave is described as coming from Iconium in Phrygia. The legends connected with the origin of Iconium derive the name either from the εἰκών (icon) or image of Medusa brought to that place by Perseus (Eustathius), or from the images of day made by Prometheus after the flood in order to repopulate the earth (Stephanus of Byzantium). In the 3rd cent. B.C. it was ruled by the Seleucid Kings. It was under the kings of Pergamum from 181 B.C. until about 164 B.C. when the Galatian princes ruled the city till about 129 B.C. when the Pontic kings began to rule.

During the Mithridatic wars the city was made free. Antioch gave Iconium to Polemon in 39 B.C. but three years afterwards he gave it to Amyntas who was then called king of Galatia. At his death Iconium was incorporated into the Roman Province of Galatia. The Roman influence was so powerful that the very name of the city was romanized and called Claudiconium, and in Nero's reign his head appeared on the Obverse of the small bronze coins with Poppaea seated on a throne on the Reverse.

LYSTRA.

When St. Paul fled from the persecution in Iconium he went eighteen miles to the south-south-west, to Lystra, crossing the boundary line between Phrygia and Lycaonia.

Lystra was founded as a Roman Colony by Augustus about six years before the birth of Christ in order to keep the tribes on the Southern boundaries of the Province quiet. It was one of a series of Colonies, Parlais, Cremna, Comana, and Olbaea, in all of which the Latin language was used officially, thus forming an exception to the general rule of allowing Greek to be used.

The site was in a vale at the northern extremity of the hills which fringe the Lycaonian plain, and which rise gradually to the heights of Mount Taurus. The Colony was founded on a hill near which still stands a base bearing an inscription in honour of Augustus, and probably indicates the site of a temple to the Emperor, called an Augusteum. The site was made known in 1585 when a coin was found with the inscription COLONIA IULIA FELIX GEMINA LYSTRA. No trace has been found of the temple of Zeus before the city, spoken of in Acts XIV, 13, but as it was the custom of the Romans to unite the worship of the Emperor with that of the chief god of the city, very probably the above mentioned base stands on the site of the temple of Zeus. The population would consist of Roman colonists forming the local military aristocracy, many Greek speaking inhabitants, and many Lycaonian natives, uneducated, and speaking their own language.

Among those converted by St. Paul at Lystra was Timotheus the son of a Jewish woman (Acts, XVI, 1).

The legend of the gods visiting Philemon and Baucis, given by Ovid in his Metamorphoseon (VIII, 625-724) is a beautiful description of a happy old age, and generous hospitality exercised by very poor and humble people, and the last line is a fine ending to a memorable legend,

"Cura pii Dis sunt, et qui coluere, coluntur."

"The gods have a care for the pious, and they who honoured the gods are honoured."

The name of the place where this old couple lived is given in such a variety of forms in the various MSS that we cannot identify any known place with any of these various names.

Sir W. M. Ramsay and W. M. Calder published in 1909 an inscription seen by them at Lystra on a stone built into a house, concerning the dedication of a statue of Hermes Megistos, and a sundial to Zeus the Sun god, apparently of the 1st cent A. D.

It is interesting as illustrating the worship of Zeus and Hermes mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles, and also because of the legend of Philemon and Baucis.

Ovid placed the visit of the gods to this old couple near a lake in Phrygia, and the lake Trogites answers to his description it is therefore probable that the myth originated in this locality.

DERBE.

Only three small bronze coins are known to have been struck in Derbe. They are in the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris and their types bear no reference to the ancient native cults. The earliest bears the head of Faustina Junior on the Obverse and a figure of Tyche on the Reverse; the next bears the head of L. Verus on the Obverse and a figure of Heracles on the Reverse; the third bears a head of Lucilla, the wife of Verus, who was killed by Commodus in 183, A. D. on the Obverse, and a figure of Nike on the Reverse.

According to Stephanus of Byzantium the name Derbe signifies the juniper tree in the language of the Lycaonians. We know the name of one citizen of Derbe from the Acts of the Apostles (c. XX, 4) where he is mentioned as going with St. Paul to Jerusalem with the alms of the churches for the poor of that city. The Church at Derbe lasted at any rate till the year 381 A. D., when we read the name of the Bishop of Derbe, Daphnus, as being present at the Council of Constantinople.

The site of Derbe must have been about twenty miles from Lystra, on the borders of Isaurica, of which region it was the capital. Dr. W. M. Ramsay has mentioned either the site Gudelisim or that of Dorla north-west of that town as most likely to be the site of Derbe. The ancient writers do not seem to have given any help in deciding the question. Strabo (Bk., XII, vi, 568) relates that it was taken from the weak Cappadocian kings by Antipater.

"Derbe, the royal seat of the tyrant Antipater, surnamed Derbates, is on the side of the Isaurian territory, close upon Cappadocia. In my time Amyntas attacked and killed Antipater, and got possession of Isauria and Derbe." Stephanus of Byzantium called Derbe a stronghold of Isaurica with a lake of the same name. Probably that was the lake now called Ak Ghieul, the white lake. Wetstein described a coin bearing the legend Δερβη κλαυδία κεινεν ΑΥΧΥΝΙΣ, this reading of the legend however has been rejected as improbable by Eckhel (Vol. III, p. 32). Keepert places Derbe on his map near the lake Ak Ghieul.

MONEY SCALES AND WEIGHTS.

T. Sheppard, M. Sc., and
J. F. Musham, F. E. S.

1790.

No. 51. — Small rectangular round-cornered cut-out-of-the-solid yewtree-wood case, $2\frac{3}{8} \times 1\frac{7}{16} \times \frac{1}{2}$ in. rim convex, fitted with sheet-brass sliding-out-lid, box lined coarse green linen.

Scales. — A diminutive set, with round and tapering balance beam, 2" long, with flat jointed central arm instead of the usual gallows, cords brown.

Pans. — In brass, dished, $1\frac{1}{8}$ in. diameter.

Weights. — 2, reading G. R. crown between, on both sides, for 1-guinea and $\frac{1}{2}$ ditto.

This is a neat little set for the vest-pocket and is illustrated in Fig. 37.

No. 52. — Office guinea set in mahogany rectangular case $7 \times 3\frac{3}{4} \times 1$ in. brass "butt" joints and push-catch; inside lid large rectangular label (the upper one-third torn off), divided into two

No. 11 in Digbeth.
BIRMINGHAM.

Bottom of case lined with burean; pierced block in corner for two weights.

Scales. — An extremely delicate and well made set, with straight, and acutely oval tapering balance beam, cupid's bow under, box heads; block pierced in a semi-circular slot engaging a fixed transverse pin from gallows head, to prevent over-riding; long slender decorated indicator, collared near base, "sight Hole" Gallows, with short decorated pin under centre of head, lining to tip of indicator when exactly central; contemporary watch-bow shaped swinging guard link with decorated drop; blue striped large hempen tassel.

Pans. — Brass $1\frac{7}{8}$ in. diameter; pan-cords slender, dark green and looped through small flat-sided split-rings; below the loops the cords are secured through a woven head of twisted wire.

Weights. — 2 round and knobbed, stamped "anchor", for guinea and half guinea (the latter missing).

The above type of weight recalls the oval-japanned pocket sets, being very unusual in sets of this type.

No. 53. — Rectangular mahogany case, $6 \times 3 \times 1\frac{1}{4}$ in, with two pens for weights.

Inside lid, part only of label, shewing usual list of gold coins, with gold at £ 3. 18/- per oz.

Scales. — A stout set in nickel with brass pans.

Indicator. — Pierced at base, with a sagittate head.

Weights. — 9, from £ 3. 12/- to 4/6 d. Value in script-letters on obverse and reverse.

1795.

No. 54. — Rectangular mahogany case $5\frac{7}{8} \times 2\frac{3}{4} \times 1\frac{1}{8}$ in.

Inside lid : — octangular label divided into three columns, reading : —

"Young & Son. Scale Makers to his Majesty No. 5 Bear Street, Leicester Square, London.

Make and sell all sorts of scales, weights & Steelyards for Home Trade and Exportation : " The outer column giving readings for Avoirdupois Weights, Troy Weights, and Apothecaries Weights. In centre : — Hand & Scales with weights; below : — "Shop-keeper's scales kept in repair by the Year" surmounted by the Royal Arms.

Scales. — A small pair (suitable for Troy weights) of ordinary design with large blue suspender tassel.

The table of avoirdupois weights given on the label of this set is unusual.

1798.

No. 55. — Rectangular Spanish mahogany case, $6\frac{3}{4} \times 3\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{1}{8}$ in. half-rounded edge to lid, two brass, pointed strap-hinges; two large decorated hasps engaging brass staples through holes in front edge of lid.

Inside, contemporary label in script as follows: —

In top left hand corner in a square, the Royal Arms, below "Weights & Scales of all sorts for the following gold coins, etc., by Freeman & Son in Leadenhall Street, London, maker to His Majesty's Mint, Exchequer, Bank of England, etc."

Below, in two columns.

Portuguese 4. 2. 1 & $\frac{1}{2}$	ditto Moidore $\frac{1}{2}$ & $\frac{1}{4}$
Escudo pieces with their	& Guinea $\frac{1}{2}$ & $\frac{1}{4}$
Weights.

"N.B. The Standard price of gold is £ 3. 17. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ per oz."

This case has overhanging lid and bottom, lined inside Scarlet cloth, with 2 large pens for wts.

Scales. — Ornate tapering balance beam, square in section with ends keeled above and below, ending in turned knobs; large box heads, for connecting links.

Cords. — Extremely long and green.

Pans. — Brass; $2\frac{1}{2}$ in. diameter with the usual concentric ring decoration, long slender decorated gallows and extremely slender indicator with knobbed tip.

Morocco tab to gallows instead of tassel, decorated drop link, cupid's bow under beam.

Weights. — None for the coins shown on label. George IV Guinea, and $\frac{1}{2}$ guinea of 1821, Louis XIII $\frac{1}{2}$ pistole, and 3 for grains (5.4. and 3 respectively).

No. 56. — The label quoted is in an oblong wood case with various coin weights:

"All sorts of Scales and Weights for Foreign Plantations according to His Majesties' Proclamation. Also Scales and Weights for Essays, Diamond Scales. Scales for Gold and Silver Weights of Y^e right Standard for Turkey or Spain, East or West Indies and Stilliards of all sorts by SAMUEL READ SCALE MAKER at the Angel and Kings-Arms, in St. Anns-Lane near Aldersgate, London."

The label measures $3\frac{1}{8}$ in. \times $1\frac{3}{4}$ in.

No. 57. — Rectangular hardwood case $5 \times 2\frac{1}{4} \times 1\frac{1}{4}$ in. cut-out-of-the-solid conventional brass wire hinges; square decorated plate-catch.

Lid embossed inside and out, moulded edge; bottom of box similarly decorated; four circular pens for weights, bottom lined with canvas, shewing three green plush bands with an outer broader one in red.

Scales. — Slightly oval and tapering balance beam hollowed out under centre, gallows flat-sided. Indicator with basal boss and knobbed tip.

Pans. — Brass; cords green with red tassels, suspender tassel orange.

Weights. — 4, for 2-Escudo, a chemist's weight, and a Spanish Netherlands = 182 $\frac{2}{3}$ grains, together with one stamped C.B.R. crown over, again over stamped Crown, Wm. IV CITY BRISTOL, weighing 220 $\frac{1}{4}$ grains, which is obviously a later addition.

The decorations on the lid of this set recall the earlier Book-binders tooling on sets in Section A.

No. 58. — Mahogany Case, body cut-out-of-the-solid, with bottom piece nailed on; $6\frac{1}{2} \times 2\frac{1}{2} \times 1$ in., with double rounded ends, the front section of the case being one inch shorter than the back. The lid and bottom has overlapping rounded edges; the case is fitted in two wire-loops hinges, and wire hasp and staple, the latter engaging through a hole in the lid.

Inside. — Two circular deep wells for weights.

Scales. — Of the usual type.

Pans. — Flat, in hammered sheet brass, more or less circular and $1\frac{1}{2}$ in. diameter.

Weights. — 1 rectangular bevel-edged $\frac{1}{2}$ -guinea Weight, stamped crown, 6 grains weights, 1 to 6 grs. respectively stamped "lion". and a circular raised-rim bronze Troy weight for 4 dwts.

This is an interesting departure from the usual type of case.

No. 59. — Troy-weight set in rectangular-oak case, baize lined, with german-silver pans: and weight for 6 dwts, and $\frac{1}{2}$ dwt respectively, by W. EDLEY, supplemented by a series of thin sheet brass Wts from 60-grains to 2-grains.

1817.

No. 60. — Rectangular mahogany case with sliding lid, $5\frac{1}{8} \times 1\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{15}{16}$ in. Maker "Pickett Marlboro".

Brass standards hinged to end of case, and fixed zero index at top, stamped at sides with above name; balance beam: — round with adjustable long and slender indicator. circular pan for coins suspended by green cords, brass clip at outer end of beam for weights.

Weights. — 2, one uniface, round with bevelled margins stamped 1-SOVGN under; the other uniface, milled edge, stamped 7 (large figure for 7/-piece).

KEGELER, LUCAS (Germ.). Mint-master at Rostock, 1567-1570.

KEHL, H.G. (Germ.). Engraver of a medal on the Inauguration of Anhalt-Coethen, 1841.

KEHR, HEINRICH (Germ.). Mint-master at Rostock, 1862-1864.

KEISERSWERTH (also KAYERSWERTH), PETER (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 131). Born in 1724; died at Vienna, 9. March 1793. He was Assistant-medallist to the Vienna Mint from about 1764 to 1780.

KELLEN, DAVID VAN DER (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 132). Dutch coins of Louis Napoleon by this Engraver: 1807. Pattern Ducat, with King's bust, NAP. LOEW. I. KON. VAN HOLL.; R. Date 17-99; legend: CONCORDIA RES—PAR: CRES: TRA (cf. Nahuys, pl. VI, 40; gravée par David van der Kellen sous la direction de Holtzhey).

KELLERMANN, JOHANN (Germ.). Mint-master at Königstein and Ursel, 1574.

KELLY, JAMES E. (Amer.). Contemporary Sculptor, of New York City. He is best known, says the Numismatist, 1914, p. 394, for his famous historical tablets as shown on the Saratoga Battle Monument, the Monmouth Monument at Freehold, N.J.; Washington at Valley Forge, on the Sub Treasury, Wall Street, New York; the Battle of Harlem Heights, erected by the Sons of the Revolution on Columbia College, Broadway, New York, and many others, as also his statues of Sheridan, Roosevelt, colossal group "Defence of New Haven" for Yale College, etc.

A medallion of Barbara Fritchie by this artist, for the Memorial Association of Frederick, Md., is illustrated on p. 394 of the above-mentioned magazine.

The Numismatist for November 1914, p. 559, illustrates a fine Portrait-medallion by him of Thomas A. Edison, a study made from life at Meulo Park, New Jersey, in 1878. It shows Edison, with the first phonograph, at the age of thirty-one, and was modelled when he was at his work.

"James E. Kelly, in addition to his many historical tablets and monuments, commemorating important events in American history, has gathered a most interesting and valuable collection of bas-relief portraits (all of which are signed), of many of the most important men of his day, which will be more appreciated as the years roll by and they are no longer with us."

KELS, HANS (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 139). As additional works of this famous Medallist Dr G. Habich of Munich describes in Archiv für Medaillen- und Plaketten-Kunde, I, pp. 35-41 a boxwood model of the medal of Bartholomäus, 1534, and two chessmen, in Schweinfurt Townhall collⁿ, undoubtedly belonging to Hans Kels's chessboard in the Vienna Museum, and which represent Phaedra and Hippolytus, Orpheus and Eurydice.

Further: Bartholomäus Welser, 1534; 27 mill.; — Johann Hanold, 1535(?); 39 $\frac{1}{2}$ mill.; — Johann Scheubel (1539-40); medallion in boxwood; — Melchior von Ow, 1530; medallion in boxwood.

KEMPEN & SON, J. M. VAN (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 140). I have come across the following additional medallic works by these: Foundation of the Palace of Peace at The Hague, 1907 (modelled by H. Makkink); — Memorial medal of Dr. P. Reiger, 1908 (modelled by J. T. Küppers); — Gymnastic Club 'Olympia' of The Hague; — Prize medals of the Rotterdam Shooting Club of Sharpshooters, 1900; — Baron George Rosenthal, 1902; 100 mill.; — Prize medals of the Royal Rowing and Sailing Club of Rotterdam, 1903, and numerous Public and Private award Medals, and commemorative medals of local interest.

KEMPF, ZACHARIAS (Austr.). Mint-engraver at Joachimsthal, circa 1590-1606.

KEMPSON, PETER (B.D.M., Vol. III, 1907, p. 141). 1797, John Jervis, Defeat of Spanish Fleet. \mathcal{A} . 48; — 1800, Admiral Nelson, Return to England. \mathcal{A} . 38; — Great Britain and Ireland United (obv. by Hancock); — 1801, Napoleon, Peace of Luneville, Signed Z. See Bramsen, No. 114 and said by him to have been struck by Kempson and Kindon.

KERR & LANHAM (Brit.). Die-sinkers of Chancery Lane, London. They issued Diamond Jubilee Medals of Queen Victoria, 1897, and Coronation medals of King Edward VII. and Queen Alexandra, 1902, etc.

KESTNER, SCHMIDT (Germ.). Contemporary Sculptor, by whom I have seen a medal, in iron, commemorating the German Alpine Corps, Tyrol, 1915.

KETTLE & SONS (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 145). The initials K & S also occur on a Memorial Jeton of Princess Charlotte, 1817.

KEY, WILLIAM H. (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 145). Additional medals by this Engraver: — John Wesley; — The New York Free Academy founded, 1847; — Joseph J. Mickley, 1867; — Ulysses S. Grant, 1869; — General Geo. B. McClellan, 1878, and others; — Abraham Lincoln, 1864; — 1864, Elisha Riggs award medal, College of the City of New York. \mathcal{A} . 34; — 1866, Name of Free Academy changed to College of the City of New York. \mathcal{A} . 60; — 1867, Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. \mathcal{A} . 39; — 1884, John Wesley, R. Francis Asbury. \mathcal{A} . 38.

KEYSER, ERNST WISE (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 146). Born at Baltimore, 1874, the son of S. and Helen (Wise) Keyser. He obtained his general education in public and private schools, and was a student of the Art Students' League and Académie Julien, Paris.

He made successive exhibits in Paris Salons, also had executed in competition numerous portraits and mortuary and public memorials, including the Enoch Pratt memorial, Baltimore; — statue of Admiral W.S. Schley, in State House, Annapolis, Maryland; — Barry memorial, Frederick, Maryland; bronze figure (Sir Gahlad) for Harper memorial, Ottawa, Canada, and many others. His studio is now in New York. He exhibited the following works at the New York International Medallion Exhibition held in March, 1910: — Peter Fenelon Collier. Obverse and reverse; — William Travers Jerome; Obverse; — Souvenir card-case with medal portrait of William Travers Jerome; — Medallion, The young St. John; — Portrait medallion, Miss Florence S.; — Portrait medallion, Mr. Joseph O.; — Double portrait medallion, Mr. and Mrs. W.

A large bronze medallion (900 \times 1050 mm.) by Ernest W. Keyser, of Drs. Horace H. Hayden (1769-1844) and Chapin A. Harris (1806-1860), Founders of the Baltimore College of Dentistry, is upon the wall of that College, and of the Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

KHIFER, HANS JACOB (Austr.). Seal and Die-cutter at Vienna, circa 1577-1581.

KIESEL (KIESEL), HENNING (Germ.). Mint-master in the service of Nassau-Weilburg 1594-5, Fulda 1605 and 1612; Mint-Master at Ortenberg 1607, Ranstadt 1617.

KIESERLING (Amer.). Engraver of the middle years of the nineteenth century, whose signature I have noticed on a Portrait-medal of Father Mathew.

KILENYI, JULIO. Child's head, cast \mathcal{A} . 96.

KIMBALL, JAMES P. (Amer.). Director of the Mint, United States of North America, from 1885 to 1889.

KIMON (B.D.M., Vol. III, pp. 148-161. — Notes sur les Signatures, pp. 200-224. — Arturo Sambon, Incisori Siracusani del V secolo a. C. e dei primordi del IV. — Tudeer, Die Tetradrachmenprägung von Syrakus in der Periode der sign. Künstler, Zeits. f. Num., 1913).

Dr Sambon places Kimon's activity in the period after circa B.C. 412 to 400.

The coin of Metapontum (Vol. III, p. 158; Notes, p. 221) attributed to Kimon on a faulty reading by Garrucci (KIMON instead of INON), of which a specimen in M. Jameson's collection reads TEPINON is simply a contemporary forgery. This fact disposes of Kimon's activity at Metapontum.

Kimon's connection with the coinage of cities in Magna Graecia is now strongly doubted by Sir Arthur Evans himself, and also Sambon and Tudeer. Kimon was probably not a native of Magna Graecia like Phrygillos. The coins of Terina and Messina are certainly not original works of the Syracusan Kimon. Sir Arthur Evans "after having brilliantly demonstrated that Kimon was the first to create the types of the agonistic decadrachms, proposes now to connect the creation of these exceptional coins with the first celebration of the Assinarian games in 412, and the festive manifestations, which after the conclusion of peace with the Carthaginians, served to mask the chains of tyranny of the clever Dionysios" (Sambon, p. 43). To the year 409 belongs the facing type of Arethusa on the tetradrachms.

First Type.

Dr Sambon gives the following characteristics of the three distinctive manners in the Dekadrachms which are attributed to him: —

"In the first type, Kimon has kept to the style which we will call "pictorial", and which consists of broad lines delicately veiled. The nymph's profile displays very fine features and a pleasant aspect, the mouth with a delicate smile playing about it, the eyes fixed above with a benign look, the forehead fugitive, the hair neatly arranged under and around the elegant netted obisthosphendone. The bold relief at the truncation of the neck distinctly accentuates the inflection of the shoulders and adds delicacy to the fine profile. A dolphin, flattened under the neck, completes the illusory impression of the bust.

Second Type.

"In the second type, Kimon completely changes his style. The sentiment of the sculptor takes the ascendant; the medallist audaciously renounces the effeminate dictates of Syracusan glyptics, and calling to remembrance the glorious forms by Phidias and Polykleites, concentrates in the restricted space of the medal, both the love of strength detached from the form, and the search after the magnificent thrills of the soul. The head is in bold relief, with a vigorous display of shadows; the features are strong, the mouth disdainful, the nostrils distended, the look downwards and thoughtful, the hair ending in fluttering curls. The effect is marvellous and gives the impression of a monumental work seen from afar. In this strong head, of grand formal truth, impregnated so strongly with sentiment that the intellectual vision completely dominates the sensual, and with that expression of disdainful sadness, Kimon rises to that perfect idealism which magnifies the impressions through strong heart-beats.

Third Type.

"A third type of the dekadrachm shows instead a head with more human aspect, with less intense expression. The artist, in returning to the first majestic cast, has endeavoured to correct and to bring to perfection, but in correcting plastic defects he has nearly annulled or at least decreased the noble expression of calm and thoughtful sadness, which was the greatest asset of the former work. The conformation of the head is indeed better, and some defects in the lines disappear, but the more open eye, the marked pupil, the useless accentuation of the eye-lashes, the small mouth, the greater detail of the hair, do not add to the gracefulness, and only cloud the expression" (Sambon, Incisori siracusani, p. 43).

Varieties occur of these three types, some of which have been described in Vol. II. A number of very beautiful specimens of types II and III came on the market in Munich and Vienna in 1913 from a Sicilian find. Two of Type II are worth mentioning.

Egger Sale, XLV 12, XI 13. Lot 383. Only three locks visible on neck, instead of four. Brought £ 452. 10. 0.

Egger Sale, XLV 12, XI 13. Lot 386. Dolphins differently arranged. Brought £ 250.

Of type III, a specimen brought £ 625. Egger Sale XLV 12, XI 13. Lot 380.

A few specimens from fractured dies of type II also came for sale. One was acquired by the British Museum.

The first types of the gold coin of 100 Litrae (Vol. II, p. 152, n° 5), created by Kimon, circa B.C. 405, have the same eminently sculptural character as the dekadrachms of the second type. Their issue corresponds with the change made at Lampsacus in coining pure gold instead of electrum.

Kimon's head on the second type of his dekadrachms occurs on one tetradrachm (Vol. II, p. 152, n° 4) but the rarity of this coin proves that the issue must have been a very limited one.

Kimon's facing head of Arethusa occurs on two varieties of Tetradrachms. Dr Sambon has detected on what he calls the coins struck from Kimon's original dies the artist's signature KIMON on the rigid band confining the clusters of fluttering curls.

The second type which bears the signature KIMON on the ampyx, is according to Dr Sambon, the work of a copyist. All the best specimens show the letters ΣΩ on the left of the head, on either side of dolphin's head between two curls. The nymph's head is enclosed in a circle of large dots; the dolphin on the right is of inferior design.

Kimon's influence on the coinage of Terina has been demonstrated by Sir Arthur J. Evans in a paper on the Engravers of Terina and Signature of Evaenetos (Num. Chron., 1912, pp. 21-62). On Pl. V he illustrates the particular type (n° 1), corresponding to Regling (Terina), Pl. I, LL, Pl. III, μμμ, ννν, on which he remarks: "The elaborate treatment of the hair as well as the starred bag of the sphendone suggest Syracusan comparisons — a suggestion which gains in force when we regard the face of Nike Terina herself as here portrayed. The proud profile with which these luxuriant details are associated can hardly fail to call up the features of the goddess of the Syracusan "medallions" in Kimon's third manner. To me at least the head of this Terinaean type conveys the strong impression that, if not from the actual hand of Kimon, it was executed in his atelier, and under his immediate inspiration".

Didrachm of Terina.

On the Syracusan Coinage of the period of the signing Artists I would refer to the exhaustive monograph by L. Tudeer, Die Tetradrachmenprägung von Syrakus in der Periode der sign. Künstler, Zeitsch. für Numism., 1913, pp. 1-292.

KINDER, Major J. H. (Brit.). Director of the Imperial Mint, at Osaka, Japan, from March 1870. He terminated his engagement with the Japanese Government on January 31 st., 1875.

KING'S NORTON METAL CO., LTD. (Brit.). A private Mint, works near Birmingham, which in recent years has had many government contracts, either for supplying blanks to the Royal Mint, or striking coins for Colonial governments, Guernsey, and other British and Foreign dependencies. The coins bear the mint-mark K. N.

KINSBURGER, SYLVAIN (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 161). At the Paris Salon, 1908, this artist exhibited two Portrait-plaquettes in bronze of M. and M^{me} H. By him is also a centenary Plaquette of the Paris Firm of Pleyel, which won in competition a Second Prize for its author; — 1910. Chopin; Portrait-plaquette in plaster; — 1912. Raphaël Collin, painter, member of the Institute; — Simon, chanteur mondain; — Le violoniste Joubert; — Chopin; — 1914. Victory of the Marne; plaquette, 63 × 60 mill.

KIPPER (KUPPER) GEORG (Germ.). Mint-master at Ranstadt 1605, 1609 and 1615.

KIRK, JOHN (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 164). Further works by this artist: John Smart, miniaturist (modelled by Smith). Marriage medal of George III. and Caroline, 1761.

The Granby medal I reproduced on p. 164, Vol. III, is by Lewis Pingo (Vide N. Chr., 1891, p. 390). Kirk's Granby medalets are very small and different in type.

By him are also: George III., Restoration of the coinage, 1775; — Jeton of William Henry, Duke of Gloucester, 1773 (signed: KIRK FEC.); — Another, of the Duchess of Cumberland, wife of Duke Henry Frederick (1785). — 1772, Glamorganshire Society for the Encouragement of Agriculture. Æ. 51; — Tokens of George II, George III, The Duchess of Gloucester, Oliver Cromwell, William Beckford, etc.

Kirk was awarded Premiums by the Royal Society of Arts in 1759, 1762, and 1763, for Die-Engraving. The 1762 premium (30 guineas) was for the "Seal for the Society's letters, after a design by Cipriani". He died in 1776.

I have also come across the following uniface medal by John Kirk, on the Capture of the two Spanish ships, Marquis d'Antin and Lewis Erasmus, 1745, with the inscription above the ships, UNITAS DEDIT SUCCESSUM; signature below ships at right hand corner: I. KIRK. F. Undoubtedly, an artist's proof.

The portraits of George II. and Mrs. Claypole by Kirk were reproduced by Tassie.

At the Society of Artists John Kirk exhibited: 1760. A frame with impressions, one his own portrait; — 1771. Proof medal, which the Duke of Grafton, chancellor of the University of Cambridge, gives annually to the best classic scholar; — 1772. A frame with a medal of His Majesty, and reverse; — A frame with a medal of His Grace the Duke of Northumberland, with Alnwick on the reverse; — A frame with four impression portraits; — 1772. The seal of the Magdalen charity; — 1773. A frame, with a small gold medal of the Queen, struck for the Sentimental Magazine; — A proof medal of the King, not finished; — A silver medal and reverse of Mr. Garrick; — A do., a silver medal struck for the Bricklayers' Company, with the reverse; — A head of Lord Chatham; after Wilton, engraved in carnelian; — A head of Susannah; after Wilton, engraved in carnelian; — 1774. A silver medal of Mrs. Claypole, daughter of Oliver Cromwell; a head of Sir John Fielding, engraved on stone; a silver medal, a view of the Grand Hôtel, Covent Garden; a proof in copper of a subscriber's ticket for Ranelagh; — 1775. A frame with the following medals: The King, the Queen, the Duke of Athol, Lord North (with their reverses); — A medal, given by the Glamorgan Society, for the Encouragement of Agriculture; — A medal of the Grand Lodge, in the Grand Mastership of the Duke of Athol; — A portrait of Her Majesty; in sulphur; — 1776. A frame of medals, containing a medal of the late Lord Chesterfield, and the Heads of Lord Camden, Lord Mansfield, and the late Bishop of Winchester (Benjamin Hoadley), intended for medals; — A medal of David Garrick, Esq.; and rev., in silver; — A medal of the late Lord Chesterfield, and rev.: in copper; — A medal of David Garrick, Esq.; — A medal of the Society of Freemasons at Exeter; in silver; — A frame with four engravings, on stone; — 1777. A frame containing medals of His Majesty, Lord Chancellor (Earl Bathurst), Earl of Mansfield, Lord North, Bishop of Winchester, General Wolfe, etc., with reverses; — A portrait, on cornelian; — 1778. A silver medal of the Lord Primate of Ireland (Lord Rokeby), with rev.; — A proof medal, in copper, with the reverse of Queen Elizabeth, Foundress of St Saviour's School, 1562. Given annually, in silver, to the best Latin scholar; — Two portraits; engraved on cornelian; — A proof medal, in copper. Given annually, in Gold, in Ireland.

At the Free Society, Kirk exhibited in 1762 a Copper medal; the subject, the Naval Victory of Belleisle; and in 1764. A frame with impressions of seals. Cf. Algernon Graves, The Society of Artists of Great Britain, 1760-1791, The Free Society of Artists, 1761-1783, KIRKWOOD, ALEXANDER (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 165). This talented Engraver, son of Alexander Kirkwood who died in 1879, and chief of the firm Kirkwood and Son, was entrusted, on the accession of George V., with the execution of the Counter Seal for Scotland.

KIRSTEIN, FRIEDRICH (B.D.M., Vol. III, 1907, p. 167). 1826, J. F. Oberlin. Æ. 45.

KISSEL, HENNING (Germ.). Mint-master in Nassau-Wiesbaden, 1594, later at Solms, 1613, Dhaun, Wertheim 1623, Cromberg (near Schaumburg-on-Lahn) 1626, in which year he died (end of October).

KISSING (B.D.M., Vol. III, 1907, p. 168). Pius IX. Æ. 45; — 1892, 400th. Anniversary of landing of Columbus. Æ. 39.

KITTEL, GEORG WILHELM (B.D.M., Vol. III, 1907, p. 168). 1745, Conclusion of Peace at Dresden; — 1748, Plague of Grasshoppers. Æ. 22.

KITTEL, JOHANN (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 168). There is also a Marriage medal by him of Duchess Wilhelmine Amalie of Brunswick, 1699.

KITZKATZ, RUPRECHT NIKLAS (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 170). I have seen by this artist a Jubilee commemorative medal of John Casimir, Duke of Saxony, signed RNK (in monogram); it is dated 1630 and has on the obv. a bust of the Duke; legend: SIC POST FATA VIVO | SIC RE JUVENSICO.

KLAASSENS, HERMAN CLAESSENS or (Dutch). Mint-engraver at Middelburgh, 1585-86. He cut dies for the Schelling, Nobel, Dukaat, and Rijksdaalder. From 1585 to 1608 his name occurs in the capacity of Assayer (Cf. J. Broekema, Geschiedenes der Zeewsche Munt).

KLÄHREN, HEINRICH VON DER (Germ.). Mint-master at Lübeck, 1619-1644.

KLAGMANN, JEAN BAPTISTE JULES (B.D.M., Vol. III, 1907, p. 172). 1847, Conservatoire Royal des Arts & Metiers, by A. Bovy. Æ. 67 (Klagmann's name is mentioned on this medal).

KLEIN, MAX (Germ.). Contemporary Sculptor of Berlin, by whom is a Portrait-medal of the German actor Friedrich Haase; also: Field Marshal von Hindenburg; Æ. 54 mill. and 32 mill.; — Field Marshal von Mackensen; Æ. 54 mill. and 32 mill.; — Otto von Weddigen, commander of the U.29; — The European War, 1915; iron, 68 mill.; — The Attack, 1914-1916; oval medal, iron; 120 × 103 mill.; — Bavarian Medallion Box, containing a series of 30 prints with portraits of some of the principal heroes of the War and representations of some of the chief events.

KLEMENT, DAVID (Austr.). Die-cutter at the Mint of Kuttenberg, 1626-1627. HANS KLEMENT was employed at the Mint there from 1603 to about 1613.

KLEON (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 176). The gem mentioned before, depicting an Amazon's head, is broken in two, and inscribed, KAES, the rest of the name being lost with the missing half of the stone (Duffield Osborne, Engraved Gems, 1912, p. 122).

KLEPIKOW, A. (B.D.M., Vol. III, p. 179). By him are also a commemorative medal of the Peace of Adrianople, 1829; obv. View of city; Æ. Russian eagle flying above city on sea-shore; — Military medal of Alexander I. of Russia, 1812.

KLOTZ, EDMUND (Austr.). Contemporary Medallist, by whom I have seen a fine Plaquette, The Maid of Spinges, 1797; 70 × 100 mill., 1909.

ON A PENNY OF WILLIAM RUFUS STRUCK AT DURHAM.

By Major Carlyon-Britton, F.S.A.

Obv. + PILLELMRE.

Rev. + ORDRDIC ONDVN.

Weight: 21.5 grains.

From the above illustration it will be seen that this hitherto unissued and, so far as is known, unique penny, is of Type 3 of William II. There is no mark of difference to distinguish it from the normal regal issue. The name of the moneyer is Ordric, a well known Anglo-Saxon name, the second D being redundant and due only to a mistake of the die-sinker.

The name occurs at Gloucester upon Types I and II of William I, but has not hitherto been noted at any mint of his son and immediate successor.

It may be noted that the prototheme Ord occurs also in the name Ordwi, the only recorded moneyer at Durham under Henry I.

The letters DN indicating the name of the mint may be extended to Dunolm or Dunelm, variants of the original Anglo-Saxon Dunholm, signifying Hill-water, or Hill-island.

Notwithstanding the arguments and statements to the contrary set out in Numismatic Chronicle, 4th Series, vol. I (1901), p. 183, when writing my account of the Durham mint in my Numismatic History of William I and II contained in British Numismatic Journal, vol. V, p. 114, I gave it as my opinion that types 2 and 3, and possibly type 5, of William II, struck at Durham, might yet be forthcoming.

According to my computation type 3 was current from Michaelmas 1093 to Michaelmas 1096.

Now William Bishop of Durham, after pardon for his participation in Odo's rebellion against Rufus, was restored to his bishopric on 3rd September 1091 and continued in possession of it until his death at Durham on New Year's Day 1096.

When the King restored the Bishop to his see it is natural to infer that he restored to him also all rights, including that of a mint, which he had enjoyed prior to his rebellion. Indeed Freeman writes "He was restored by the king not only to his former favour, but to a high place in his innermost counsels".

It was in 1093 that Bishop William began to build the great Norman Cathedral, an event which in itself would have rendered a local coinage not only convenient but profitable.

It remains for me to add that this most interesting and important coin was acquired by Messrs. Spink and Son Ltd. at a Sale at Messrs. Sotheby and Co's on 27th Nov. 1918, where it formed lot 116.

NOTES ON THE MITCHELL LIBRARY COIN CABINET.

A PAPER READ BEFORE THE AUSTRALIAN NUMISMATIC SOCIETY
By Dr. A. Andrews.

Having lately had the privilege of cataloguing the Coins, Patterns and Australasian Tokens in the possession of the Trustees of the Mitchell Library I wish to express my thanks to the latter for permission to bring before this Society a few Notes I have made on the Collection as a whole and some of the rarities it includes.

Owing to want of arrangement in the past but little has been known of the contents of the Cabinet beyond the presence of the almost unique penny of John Allen of Kiama and personally though I had twice had an opportunity of inspecting the collection, I must express the pleasant surprise I experienced when first I examined the pieces systematically.

Coins.

The Coins consist almost entirely of specimens of those which at some time during the early existence of the Colony were made legally current at values often above that at which they circulated in the countries of origin. Values were generally fixed by the necessities of the time and were subject to alteration at the will of the Governor and his advisers.

Spanish, Portuguese, Dutch, Indian, as well as British Regal coins freely circulated. Guineas, half guineas, Johannas, gold Mohurs, Spanish dollars, halves and quarters, rupees, Guilders, Bank of England dollars, are all here and remind one of the troubles of the Tradesmen of the time when endeavouring to settle the balance of any commercial transaction. Even when British copper coins reached this country they were issued by the Government at twice their face value.

Next we have pieces which can hardly be classed strictly either as coins or tokens as they were issued by the Local Authorities when attempting to meet the want of specie and to retain here the few coins that did reach the country. These are the Holeys made from Spanish pieces, of which there are two good specimens and also a palpable forgery. Of the dumps, as the pieces stamped from the dollars were termed, there are four varieties. The punch used to cut the dollars was made by Harry Richardson; but the maker of the dies used in the inscription is quite unknown and also how many different dies were used.

Following in chronological order we have other semi-official issues illustrated by the two varieties of Adelaide "Pound pieces". These were issued by the South Australian Treasury in 1852, with the view of helping miners and others in the conversion of the gold obtained on the various diggings into a form more suited to Commercial wants. However, the sanction of the Home Government not having been secured before the issue was made, and it being considered an interference with Royal Prerogative, they were suppressed after but a few thousands had been struck. Both varieties here are in fine condition. The dies were cut by Joshua Payne.

We also have an "Electro" in gold of one of the marked gold Ingots which were weighed and marked by the assay office at the South Australian Treasury as a means of fixing the actual value of small quantities of the precious metal so often brought home by returning diggers. This piece has "Sawtell" in small letters incuse on it suggesting that it was made by the well known Adelaide Jeweller of that name from an original ingot.

Patterns.

It is well known that when the yield of the various Goldfields was at its height in the early 'fifties' suggestions were made for the issue of such pieces as 2 oz., 1 oz., $\frac{1}{2}$ oz., and $\frac{1}{4}$ oz. and here we have patterns showing two proposals for the 2 oz. and one of the 1 oz. and proofs from various stages of the dies in making. They were the work of W. J. Taylor the well known Die sinker. There are also patterns for shillings and sixpences in gold, silver and copper, a fine specimen of Taylor's fourpence in copper; a mule of the shilling with Wiener's head of Victoria; and a proof in silver of his Melbourne Halfpenny.

In 1855, a branch of the English Mint was established in Sydney and immediately commenced the manufacture of sovereigns and halves of the same intrinsic value as the British coins but made with silver as an alloy instead of copper. These are the light coloured coins formerly frequently met with and a favourite export of the Chinese to their home country. Both the first and second issues are well represented in the cabinet. There are also some later issues similar to British specimens.

The series of Australasian Tokens is one of the most comprehensive I have had the privilege of inspecting. Numbering nearly 500 varieties, it includes specimens of the issues of over 170 individuals or firms; there being but four of those who took advantage of this means of advertising unrepresented.

These are Stokes and Martin, John Dixon, F. and G. F. Bullen, and Pope & Co. The first Firm was not formed till about the time that Tokens were declared illegal in Victoria and only issued one variety bearing their own name. They however made many for Henderson in West Australia and several parties in New Zealand where these articles were in use much later.

John Dixon was a miller at Wangaratta and unfortunately met with commercial reverses soon after Stokes had filled his order so that few pieces went into circulation. As far as the writer is aware he is generally represented in collections by restrikes of which there are five or six varieties.

The issue of F. and G. F. Bullen was a very small haltpenny and it is doubtful whether it was really intended for circulation being very like many later purely advertising issues.

Pope & Co., again, issued a piece which bears on it the fact that it was very profitable to export Australian Tokens and may be considered an advertisement. It is rare and probably but few were circulated on this continent.

Though to make the series complete over 100 varieties are required, the value of the series is greatly enhanced by the presence of most of the rarer tokens, those wanted being chiefly of the commoner or less rare varieties.

Taken generally the pieces in the Library are in good condition and most of the really rare specimens are very fine, fully deserving to be described as in 'Mint state'. They have from their rarity probably been looked on more as Proofs or Patterns and therefore preserved as 'curios' rather than passed into ordinary circulation.

The Australasian Tokens have almost disappeared from the market and I feel sure that it would be impossible to replace or equal this series except by securing more than one of the best stocked Cabinets known to Numismatists.

After much consideration it has been decided to arrange the series in strict alphabetical order of the names of the Issuers. Haltpence will be placed immediately after the pence of any Issuer, and where more than one date is met with, due attention will be paid to chronological order.

As far as possible both Obverse and Reverse of each piece will be shown and where a duplicate is not possessed a rubbing of the Reverse will be placed in its normal position.

Varied upsets have not been included as varieties but the Reverse is to be placed as is usual with the piece.

In this connection I would like to point out that those who consider upsets as varieties quite overlook the fact that the dies used in the manufacture of Tokens were seldom fixed; and even if properly placed when work started the repeated stress of the press soon tended to shift one or both. Further, a careful examination of a very large variety even of the tokens showing the best workmanship indicates clearly that it is rather the exception than the rule for any piece to be exactly either normal or upset. A very large number will be found to be from 10 to 15 degrees from either, an error which would ordinarily escape the notice of the Collector.

For the convenience of enquirers a complete Card Catalogue will be prepared and available at any time, with alphabetical lists of Issuers in the various States.

Anything like a full description of the series would be both tedious and far beyond the scope of these Notes and I will therefore merely briefly refer to the more important of the pieces, including some that have not yet appeared in any published list.

Of silver Tokens there are 10 varieties. The first to be noticed is also the first Token ever issued in Australasia. It is the shilling of Mackintosh and Degraives of Hobart and its date is 1823. The specimen is in fine condition as is quite usual with this rare piece. It is generally found in good state, which leads one to conclude that but a limited number were issued and that they were looked on and preserved more as 'Mementoes' than used as 'Currency'. Great obscurity surrounds the issue of this piece but it is fairly certain that it was issued about the date and by the persons indicated on it. Mackintosh died Decr 1834.

Threepences are represented by one of James Campbell made for him by J. C. Thornthwaite and though in good order the workmanship leaves much to be desired. Then there are three of J. C. Thornthwaite's own issues, and five varieties of those of Hogarth, Erichsen & Co.

A careful examination of the latter shows that in one case the O of CO was omitted and as the C is placed closely following the & the legend reads; "Hogarth Erichsen & C. Jewellers". Another almost similar piece appears to indicate that the same mistake was made and was followed by an attempt to remedy it by placing a very minute O in position, but with the result that it is almost within the C. There is also a mark which may be meant to indicate that which is usually placed under the O of CO, but it is decidedly out of position.

Erichsen is understood to have been responsible for the dies from which these small pieces were struck, and but few are aware that after the dissolution of the Partnership, Hogarth continued to prepare designs and cut dies. He had learnt the trade under W. J. Taylor of London. In later years he did considerable work for Thomas Stokes of Melbourne, though he never actually worked in his establishment. The die, from which the Exhibition Medal of 1872 bearing Stokes and Martin's name was struck, was made by him and bears his initials. The writer also has a silver Medal given at an Exhibition held in Albury in 1879, struck from the same die. There is little doubt that he should be numbered among Medallists engaged in producing Australasian Tokens. Later information would show that Hogarth quite possibly did make the dies for the firm especially the rarest which has a Blackfellow on the Reverse.

Among the copper and bronze Tokens, of which there are over 480 varieties, are many well worthy of more than the passing reference which is all that space will allow here. The most important are briefly as follows:

1. Proceeding on the alphabetical plan we first note the rare and almost unique John Allen penny (No. 5, Pl. I). But one other specimen is known to Collectors though it has been lately rumoured that another has been found in England. The British Museum Cabinet is the fortunate possessor of the known piece. That in the Mitchell series is in good order for one of Thornthwaite's pieces and better than we would expect when we are told that the whole lot made was turned back on the maker's hands for bad workmanship. The design is similar to that on the William Allen of Jamberoo penny which is almost as rare in anything like good condition except as regards the name and address.

2. The William Allen piece mentioned above (No. 6, Pl. I) is seen to be also in good order. There is some reason to believe that W^m Allen rejected the Tokens made for him and later sold to one of the Toll keepers and that John Allen countermanded his order and but 2 or 3 patterns were struck.

3. All the known issues of John Andrew & Co. of Melbourne are here (Nos. 11-12-13-14) including the Mule penny (No. 15) and Haltpenny which have the Obv. of the 1862, with the reverse of the 1860 issues.

4. There are no less than three specimens of the rare A. S. N. Co. piece, two on Victorian pence and one on a George III haltpenny (Nos. 25-26). One of the pence shows the upper part of the design and the other the lower half. Thus they can hardly be considered as duplicates.

Probably some will claim that these should not be included among the Tokens as strictly they are surcharges but it has been strongly asserted that they circulated and it is therefore thought best to include them here.

5. Next we have the rare S. Beaven penny of Invercargill, one of the rarest of New Zealand tokens (No. 42). It is in excellent state.

6. The Bell and Gardiner penny, one of Queensland's rarities is here, both normal and upset in good order (No. 43). Formerly collectors listed these as separate varieties.

7. The cabinet is fortunate in possessing all three of the varieties of the Samuel Coombes penny (No. 76). His portrait is well known to most collectors. He traded in Christchurch, New Zealand, and afterwards retired and lived in Melbourne.

8. The scarce Evans and Foster penny is here in fine state (No. 118) and worthy of attention.

9. Both varieties of the Fenwick Bros. penny are here (Nos. 120-121) in fine condition. These are among the rarest of Victorian Tokens.

10. Of T. S. Forsaith of Auckland there are both the penny and haltpenny (Nos. 130-131) and also a brilliant pattern in Brass of the penny.

11. Gourlay & Co. of Christchurch, New Zealand, are represented by both the varieties of penny showing the long and short handles to the saw (No. 150).

12. Henry J. Hall is also well represented (Nos. 159-161-162-163-164 and 172). Among them will be seen the two Mules having for reverse the obv. of E. F. Dease (No. 163) and Lipman Levy (No. 162) respectively.

13. The cabinet is particularly rich in Hedberg issues. No less than seven pence are here in good order beside halfpence (Nos. 196-197-198-200-201-203).

- a) Has on the Obv. the & before COLOR midway between the words OIL and COLOR. On the Rev. the word PENNY is only 15 mm. in length (No. 196).
- b) Has rather more space after and before COLOR while remaining at the same distance from the word OIL as in the preceding. On the Rev. the word PENNY is 17 mm. long (No. 197).
- c) Has a wide space after and before COLOR. On the Rev. the word PENNY is only 15 mm. long (No. 198).
- d) Has the Obv. of b. while the reverse is that of the 1860 issue of John Andrew & Co. of Melbourne.
- e) Has the same Obv. as b. On the Rev. is a beautiful design by W. J. Taylor of Britannia seated on a rock, holding an olive branch in the right hand and a wand in the left which points to the point of the letter I of AUSTRALIA. The sea surrounds the rock, the base line is corrugated and there is a steamer in the distance (No. 200).
- f) Has the same Obv. The Rev. bears a variation of the preceding reverse in which the sea does not surround the rock, the base line is more regular, the wand points to the base of I and the olive branch embraces the S of AUSTRALIA (No. 201).
- g) Has the Obv. of c. with the wide space after and before COLOR while the Rev. has the figure of Britannia as before but without the maker's name on the base and the word AUSTRALIA on a broad raised rim (No. 203).

14. Hedberg halfpence are shown in Nos. 208-209-212 and 213 the two latter being Mules with the Obv. of E. F. Dease and Lipman Levy respectively as their reverses.

15. The piece of Holland and Butler, which is hardly a variety though it reads HOLLAND and BUIER owing to a damaged die, is here.

16. Beside the usual penny and half of Hurley & Co. (Nos. 276-277) there is a fine pattern halfpenny in brass.

17. A piece a little larger than a halfpenny of Joseph Lane & Son., Birmingham, which announces REFINED AUSTRALIAN COPPER for ALLOYING GOLD is here in good state. This is rare and it is doubtful if it was circulated in Australia.

18. LIPMAN LEVY of Wellington, New Zealand, is represented not only by his ordinary varieties (Nos. 321-322) but also by the rarer pieces having the head of Wellington with ERIN GO BRAGH (No. 323) and Taylor's representation of Britannia as on the previously described No. 201 with AUSTRALIA over respectively (No. 324).

19. MARSH, H. J. & BROTHER, have four pence, one of which has not been previously listed. On the Obv. it has the word IRONMONGER low as No. 342, while on the Rev. the tools which are similar to those on No. 343 are differently arranged, as the spade handle is on the right as Chitty's No. 427.

20. The Halfpenny of this Firm is here in two sizes (No. 346). One is slightly less than 26 mm. while the other is fully 27 mm. in diameter. The die used appears to have been the same in both.

21. The rare NEW ZEALAND PENNY is here in splendid order (No. 399). It is doubtful if these were ever freely circulated as but few specimens are now known.

22. We next note the rare A. NICHOLAS penny with the Arms of Liverpool on the Reverse. This is decidedly rare especially in such good condition (No. 400). The writer has this week received a letter from a friend telling him of one for which the holder is asking £ 25, of course an absurd price.

23. The Firm of PEEK AND CAMPBELL whose issues are generally known as the TEA STORES pieces is represented by a fine specimen of the penny of 1852 (No. 426) and also the penny of 1853 in good order. Both varieties of the halfpenny of 1852 are also present. Of that with the bricks in relief (No. 428) there are two sizes each represented by two good specimens in fine condition. They are 29 mm. and 28 mm. in diameter respectively.

24. The rare Mule of Peek & Co. and THORNTHWAITE is here but in poor condition.

25. Among the halfpence of REECE is a pattern in brass (No. 493) in brilliant state.

25^a. ROBISON BROS (No. 458). This is very similar to the other issues of this Firm. The legend is the same but the inner circle is decidedly smaller. The S of BROS is very small, there is no dot under the T of St., and the various letters are not quite in the same relative position as No. 459. The reverse is Stokes Emu with 13 long rays and no flowers and as far as I can find this has not been previously described.

26. The pieces of SMITH, PEATE & CO. include a halfpenny (No. 493) not previously listed. It has a well marked dot under the & as is found on some of the pence.

27. THOMAS STOKES of MELBOURNE. One is always expecting to find new varieties of this maker as his habit of combining two reverses is so well known. In the Mitchell cabinet there are two with the H of THOMAS at the top of COLLINS ST. as in No. 511 which have for reverses, one the well known Emu with 15 long rays to the rising sun and flowers under the scroll; and the other the Emu with 13 long rays and no flowers under the scroll. Neither of these have been previously listed.

28. Both of THORNTHWAITE'S half pence are here, one with one and the other with two letters L in MEDALLIST.

29. The last I propose to specially mention is one of WHITTY & BROWN'S extensive series. It has on the Obv. a smaller head than usual (No. 725) the nose is decidedly pointed and there is clear space between the head and the name BROWN. On the Rev. the scale bar is at the top of E of NEW and the head of the figure appears to be between TH of SOUTH. The folds of the drapery on the figure are wide on the body as in some of this Firm's ONE PENNY series while those hanging down the right side are narrower than usual and end lower down than on the ONE PENNY series.

This may be the piece listed by Chitty as No. 55 but if not it has not hitherto been listed. It is a rare variety.

These short notes will show that while the whole series wants fully 100 varieties to make it complete, its value is greatly increased by the presence of so many of the rarer issues mostly in splendid condition. The scrutiny has led to the noting of several new varieties and should encourage those having many duplicates to examine them carefully on the chance of fresh finds.

In conclusion I think that the Mitchell Trustees deserve the thanks of all interested in Australian Numismatics for deciding to make their Cabinet available for study by enquirers; and I am very pleased to be able to state that they have decided to go further and so enlist the attention of Numismatists in other countries by the issue of a comprehensive illustrated Catalogue of all known Australasian Tokens and coins. It is hoped thus to attract the attention to these pieces which they deserve as records of a time already passed and in danger of being forgotten.

May I further suggest that the Members of this Society should feel a special pride in this Collection and endeavour as far as lies in their power to make it complete. The time is passing and if the gaps are not speedily filled we may doubt if they ever will be.

REVIEWS.

LE MONETE DI VENEZIA descritte ed illustrate da Nicolò Papadopoli Aldobrandini coi disegni di Carlo Kunz. Parte III. Da Leonardo Donà a Lodovico Manin 1606-1797. Venezia-Tip. Emiliana 1919, 8° gr. Testo pagg. 1102 con ritratto e figg.; 99 tavole.

Vivamente attesa da tutti i cultori di numismatica appare la terza ed ultima parte dell'opera del Sig. Conte Senatore Nicolò Papadopoli Aldobrandini che così completa il poderoso suo lavoro sulle "Monete di Venezia". Iniziato parecchi anni or sono, esso per abbondanza di materia fornita dalla maggiore varietà di tipi e dalla ricchezza delle collezioni esaminate dall'A. ha dovuto crescere di mole. Mentre la prima e la seconda parte vennero contenute ciascuna in un volume per quanto di dimensioni notevoli, la terza deve scindersi in due, formando del testo un volume di ben 1102 pagine e riunendo le 99 tavole in un'altro.

Chi ammira il lavoro nella sua integrità ben comprende come il portarlo a compimento fosse cosa ne' facile ne' breve. Alle non comuni doti di profonda conoscenza delle monete l'A. dovette unire il paziente e diligente lavoro di ricerca dei documenti, e l'intelligente vaglio di essi. Spazio di tempo più limitato non poteva impiegarsi per svolgere e così magistralmente il compito ch'Egli s'era prefisso e ch'Egli ha raggiunto dandoci un'opera che giustamente occupa il primo posto come la più esauriente e completa fra quelle di numismatica regionale.

Riprendendo l'esame delle monete dal punto in cui era stato lasciato nel volume secondo che trattava delle monete veneziane da Nicolò Tron a Marin Grimani, l'A. da principio a quest'ultima parte con il dogado di Leonardo Donà e giunge attraverso la serie degli altri 30 dogi che successivamente furono investiti della suprema autorità, all'ultimo di essi Ludovico Manin (1789-1797) per chiuderla con la monetazione anonima sia per la Città che per i possedimenti di terra ferma ed oltremare. Abbondantissima la materia Egli sa presentarla agli studiosi con quella pratica di metodo già nota ed apprezzata nelle pubblicazioni anteriori.

La monetazione di ciascun Doge è soggetto di un capitolo il quale si inizia con brevi cenni sui fatti storici accaduti durante il principato e tratta con maggior dettaglio quanto riguarda la parte numismatica ed economica.

Ad essi fa seguito la descrizione delle monete che, partendo dal caratteristico zecchino o dai suoi multipli, vengono man mano esaminate secondo il metallo e il valore, trattando separatamente quelle battute per la Dominante da quelle destinate ai possedimenti. Le monete anonime sono comprese in tre capitoli: nel primo quelle che indistintamente correvano per la città ed il dominio, nel secondo quelle speciali per la Dalmazia ed Albania, le Isole del Levante, per l'Armata e Morea, nel terzo quelle per il Regno di Candia.

Ogni capitolo si chiude con la citazione delle opere e degli autori che parlarono o riportarono disegni delle monete descritte, anche di quelli che trattarono delle oselle. Benchè di queste l'A. non si occupi particolarmente pure, quando gli è concesso, da indicazioni sulla quantità del metallo destinato alla loro coniazione e non trascura di ricordare le concessioni dogali di far battere nella nostra zecca le oselle per la comunità di Murano.

Tre appendici completano il testo, l'una ha tre interessanti tavole di ragguaglio sul valore e peso della moneta veneziana; la seconda la lista completa dei Massari all'oro e all'argento; la terza la rarità ed il prezzo delle monete descritte.

Un indice alfabetico molto bene compilato chiude il volume, guida e facilita al lettore l'esame e lo studio di esso.

Le singole monete descritte sono 2816 nel testo, 96 nelle aggiunte e 405 quelle anonime, tutte esaminate dall'A. che non volle riportati nel libro se non quei pezzi la cui autenticità era indubbia. Non figurano nel numero tutti i pezzi battuti in oro col conio dell'argento, né i multipli di zecchino che non vengono distinti per la varietà del peso ma solo per quella del tipo. Ciò per rendere ragione della differenza notevole di numero col Corpus Nummorum dove tutte le varietà hanno un numero proprio e che così considerata risulta apparente e non sostanziale.

Nel periodo compreso fra il principio del XVII e la fine del XVIII secolo la zecca di Venezia offre la maggior varietà di tipi nelle sue monete. Benchè fedele alle tradizioni, pure quando la necessità del commercio e le finanze dello stato lo richiedevano, il Governo non fu restio a portare modificazioni alle vecchie monete, a ritirarle dalla circolazione quando ne era il caso, ad adottarne di nuove. 73 sono i tipi che circolarono in questo periodo, dei quali ben 61 sono specie nuove.

Così sotto Leonardo Donà viene coniato il primo ducato d'oro e la sua metà, lo zecchino d'argento con gli spezzati fino all'ottavo. M. Antonio Memmo ha il reale ed il soldino d'argento e Giovanni Bembo il quarto scudo della croce. Antonio Priuli inizia la battitura della doppia o doppio scudo d'oro, del soldo e mezzo soldo o bezzo di rame e il da 30 tornesi con leggenda greca. Giovanni I. Corner ha il pezzo da 48 bagattini, i 60 e 15 tornesi per Candia. Francesco Erizzo decreta la coniazione del quarto ed ottavo di giustina minore, il da 12, 8 e 4 soldi d'argento e col suo successore Francesco Molin ha invece principio la serie dei multipli di zecchino col tipo dello zecchino.

Già sotto Leonardo Donà era comparso, ma battuto col conio dell'argento la prima di tali appariscenti monete. La stessa specie ed i suoi spezzati avevano servito per dar qualche multiplo anche col nome di Nicolò Contarini ma è sotto il Molin che si principia la coniazione col caratteristico tipo. Con qualche lacuna, la serie continua fino a Ludovico Manin col modulo minimo del pezzo da 4 zecchini di Alvise III Mocenigo, con quello del da 6 e 8 di Francesco Morosini, del da 10 che sotto parecchi dogi servi anche per multipli superiori ed inferiori e raggiungendo il massimo modulo nel bel pezzo da 100 zecchini di Alvise IV Mocenigo, una delle tante preziosità della ricchissima raccolta dell'A. Sotto il Molin si conia pure per la prima volta un'altra frazione dello scudo della croce, l'ottavo.

Il ducato nuovo o ducattello, ultima trasformazione della tipica moneta veneziana, compare insieme alla sua metà e al quarto sotto Domenico Contarini, e Francesco Morosini, ha il primo leone, la bella moneta d'argento destinata a sostituire lo zecchino allora scarseggiante negli scambi col Levante, ed i suoi spezzati. Anche Alvise II Mocenigo pone il suo nome su un'altra nuova moneta per i possedimenti di Dalmazia ed Albania chiamata pur questa leone e sui suoi spezzati fino all'ottavo. Giovanni II Corner ha il da 15 soldi ed Alvise Pisani la galeazza o leone per le provincie marittime, la mezza ed il quarto. Alvise III Mocenigo aggiunge alla doppia un'altra frazione, il quarto e sotto Francesco Loredan viene coniato l'ultima moneta istituita dalla Repubblica, il tallero per il Levante. Fabbricata con strumenti nuovi che segnarono un'evoluzione nei sistemi di battitura vigenti nella zecca, ligia alle tradizioni, essa doveva sostituire nel commercio coi popoli d'Oriente il tanto rinomato tallero di Maria Teresa. Fu una delle più belle monete escite dalla zecca ed ebbe oggi la ventura di essere presa a modello del nostro nuovo tallero per l'Eritrea che ripete appunto nel suo diritto il bel busto settecentesco della formosa Repubblica.

Col tallero venne battuto il suo mezzo, mentre il quarto è coniato sotto l'ultimo dei Mocenigo e l'ottavo sotto Paolo Renier.

Fra le anonime sono nuove specie la liretta e la mezza decretate sotto Domenico Contarini, la lirazza da 30 soldi ed il traio da 5. Il soldo ed il bezzo per la Dalmazia e Albania (decreto 9 Maggio 1626); la gazzetta di rame pure per queste provincie (decreto 14 Giugno 1684) tanto i primi che la seconda coniatati anche per le isole del Levante. Tra le monete per il regno di Candia oltre il soldino da 4 tornesi e i pezzi da soldini 2 e 1/2, sono tipi nuovi il ferlino o moneta Grimani e il fides publica da 5 e 10 Lire.

Dei vari tipi l'A. dà le denominazioni ufficiali e quelle d'uso comune, di ognuno il peso e tutti sono riprodotti nelle belle tavole, anche quelli di prova di cui si conoscono esemplari.

Con i nitidi disegni la maggior parte dovuti al defunto Kunz e gli altri al pittore Vincenzo Scarpa, si può con più facilità seguire l'A. nelle dotte sue argomentazioni per l'assegnazione dei pezzi dei Dogi omonimi, i Corner ed i Mocenigo.

Più che per i due primi, la cosa era specialmente difficile per i Dogi della famiglia Mocenigo che portarono tutti e quattro il nome di Alvise e che ebbero tutti varietà ed abbondante emissione di monete.

Se le sigle dei Massari, come scrive il Conte Papadopoli, sono un'indizio sicuro per l'assegnazione delle monete d'argento, esse vengono a mancare completamente in quelle d'oro e di mistura per le quali conviene valersi di indizi forniti dalla iconografia e dallo stile. Ed Egli con minuziose osservazioni guida il lettore nel diligente esame dei pezzi e lo fa certo dell'assegnazione di ciascuno di essi al doge a cui spetta. Per suo merito viene così colmata una lacuna nella numismatica veneziana; lacuna che poneva sempre in grande imbarazzo l'amatore.

Con i documenti che Egli ci porta, opportunamente scelti fra le centinaia d'esaminati da lui e dal valente suo segretario, il Prof. Giuseppe Castellani, sono riprodotti anche i disegni originali di progetti di monete effettuati o no; ed in fine di ogni capitolo ci fa ammirare anche le riproduzioni di preziose bolle, medaglie e tessere dei diversi dogi, quasi tutte facenti parte della sua collezione.

La varietà di tipi, che come ho già detto si riscontra in questo periodo oggetto degli studi dell'A., mostra luminosamente quanto grande sia stata l'attività della zecca di Venezia negli ultimi due secoli della sua vita e quanto interessamento ponesse il governo della Serenissima per risolvere i problemi della circolazione monetaria sia nella Dominante che nei suoi vasti domini di terraferma ed oltremare. Mutata la condizione di Venezia che fino al principio del XVII secolo era, si può dire, l'unico scalo della importazione dei metalli preziosi, essa deve rivolgersi alla piazza di Genova per l'acquisto di essi od ai mercanti privati che a seconda del maggiore o minore utile, portavano più o meno alla zecca l'oro e l'argento, obbligando il governo a continui provvedimenti per far affluire il metallo necessario alle decretate emissioni di monete.

Non sempre i metodi usati rimediavano al male e vi furono periodi in cui sia l'oro che l'argento mancarono, più sovente questo che quello, tanto che molte delle vecchie monete fine si dovevano rifondere per procedere alla battitura delle nuove.

La ricerca del metallo aveva avuto di conseguenza il rincaro di esso per cui il Governo si vide nella necessità di portare riforme nel sistema monetario, sia nel regolare i rapporti di valore fra l'oro e l'argento, che col far corrispondere il valore dell'intrinseco salito di prezzo al valore corrente della moneta. Ritenuta inalterata la bontà dello zecchino si dovette pensare alla riduzione del fino nelle monete d'argento, sperando così di porre anche rimedio alla emigrazione di essa che, appunto per la sua bontà passava facilmente i confini dello Stato Veneto con grave danno dell'erario e disagio della circolazione.

Si decretarono perciò nuovi tipi di monete che corrispondessero ai bisogni dei sudditi, sia nella Dominante che nelle colonie dove la circolazione monetaria era problema importantissimo perchè legato intimamente agli interessi della Repubblica nelle terre a lei soggette.

Di queste, quella che per la sua importanza richiese le maggiori cure fu l'isola di Candia che nei documenti veneziani è sempre chiamata col nome di Regno. Ivi la circolazione monetaria al principio del XVII secolo si trovava in condizioni veramente disastrose. Lo zecchino valutato ad un prezzo maggiore che a Venezia, scarsissima la moneta d'argento, falsificata la minuta che serviva ai bisogni del popolo, si reclamavano urgenti provvedimenti.

Si vagheggiò l'istituzione di una moneta d'argento per il Regno, l'iperpero, di cui non rimane che una prova, ma si provvide alla circolazione minuta con la coniazione di due monete di rame, il soldino o 4 tornesi e i soldini 2 e mezzo equivalenti a 10 tornesi.

Ad esse col volgere degli anni si aggiungono altre monete di lega bassa fino a che ebbe inizio la lunga guerra di Candia, periodo fatale per la potenza di Venezia, ma pur sempre glorioso per l'indomita sua forza nell'opporvi quasi da sola all'irrompente tracotanza del secolare nemico, il Turco.

Stretta d'assedio la capitale del Regno, tardive le comunicazioni con la madre patria, il suo Provveditore Generale dopo aver cercato invano di rinsanguare l'esaurito tesoro con prestiti forzosi, con bollettini e lettere di cambio, con la requisizione degli argenti esistenti nell'isola, fu costretto ad emettere una moneta di necessità che, dal nome del Capitano Generale che ne autorizzò la coniazione, fu chiamata moneta Grimani.

Ma le emissioni abbondanti che ne furono fatte per provvedere a pagamenti urgentissimi e le frequenti falsificazioni, ebbero per effetto il rinvilimento del loro valore ed il conseguente rialzo dello scudo d'argento che ormai nell'isola diviene soltanto moneta di conto.

Si provvide allora a ritirarle deliberando la coniazione di altre due monete speciali di rame da 5 e 10 lire chiamate Salvatori o Fides publica che spiegano col loro nome l'ufficio a cui erano chiamate e che dovevano poi essere permutate ai primi recapiti in tanto argento che equivallesse al prezzo dichiarato.

Il beneficio arrecato fu effimero. La situazione diviene disperata ed il Senato è costretto ad inviare con un nuovo provveditore una ingente somma di denaro ordinando di ritirare tutte le monete di rame che circolavano, sostituendole con i grossetti e le gazzette di mistura speciali per Candia. Poco appresso si provvedeva alla circolazione minuta con l'emissione di gazzette e soldi di puro rame, le ultime monete decretate pel regno di Candia e delle quali l'ultima coniazione non giunse nel regno perchè, dogando Domenico Contarini, non ostante il valore dei suoi difensori e dell'ultimo Provveditore Generale Francesco Morosini, l'isola veniva per sempre tolta al dominio di Venezia.

Ma se il decadimento erasi fatalmente iniziato, nel non breve tempo che passò ancora fino alla caduta della gloriosa Repubblica, mai si smentì la saviezza del suo governo in materia finanziaria, tanto che all'ascesa al trono ducale dell'ultimo suo doge, essa, tenuto conto dei tempi, si trovava in condizioni migliori degli altri stati Italiani. Una nuova magistratura era stata istituita per la regolazione della materia monetaria, ma lo svolgersi degli avvenimenti non permise di raccogliere i frutti del coscienzioso lavoro dei magistrati che ne fecero parte.

Le nuove idee venute di Francia s'erano sviluppate anche in seno dello Stato Veneto, il cui capo di governo ed i suoi coadiutori non ebbero né la mente né la fermezza atte ad affrontare le gravi contingenze del fortunoso periodo. La fine della Serenissima decretata implicitamente con la neutralità disarmata di fronte al movimento Napoleonico, veniva decisa nell'ultima seduta del Maggior Consiglio, la sera del 12 Maggio del 1797.

Ignominiosamente caduta per l'inettitudine di quelli che avrebbero dovuto essere i migliori suoi figli, pure lascia nella storia la memoria imperitura della sua vita, forte di virtù guerresche e civiche.

Al Sig. Conte Papadopoli che, attraverso le vicende della zecca di Venezia diede nuovo ed incitante esempio della sapienza e previdenza di governo della Repubblica di S. Marco così spesso invocata ma ahimè poco imitata in questi difficili tempi nostri, vada insieme al plauso degli studiosi, il tributo della profonda riconoscenza di noi Veneziani, giustamente orgogliosi di Lui e con lui della sua opera.

CATALOGUE OF COINS IN THE PROVINCIAL MUSEUM, LUCKNOW. By C. J. Brown, Professor of English, Canning College, Lucknow. COINS OF THE MUGHAL EMPERORS. Vol. I. Prefaces and Plates (XXII). Map of India illustrating the Mints. Vol. II. Catalogue, 468 pp. Published for the United Provinces Government. 4to. Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1920.

The compiler of this excellent Catalogue has been well-advised by the leading numismatists in India to publish it, and we congratulate him upon having secured the support of the United Provinces Government.

Some of the new features of the book, as the list of words and phrases used on the coins, with their meanings, the list of all known Mughal couplets, with references to this and other collections, and also the list of denominational epithets and terms used in connexion with Mughal numismatics, will prove of great interest to the lay student and even of greater value to the specialist. The four plates of ornaments are no less valuable for the identification of adjuncts and mint-marks.

The bulk of the Mughal coins in the Lucknow Museum have been derived from treasure-trove, finds of this particular series being very frequent in that province. The collection originated in 1868, but no arrangement was attempted until 1898, when the first coin committee was constituted, consisting of the late Mr. Vincent A. Smith, Mr. H. Nelson Wright, the late Mr. J. Hooper, the late Dr. W. Hoey, Capt. (now Lt.-Col.) W. Vost, and Mr. R. Burn (Secretary). In 1868 the Pathan, Suri, and Mughal coins together numbered 1390; the total number of coins included in this catalogue is 5802 — 224 gold, 4895 silver, and 683 copper, representing 132 mints out of the 206 known. Except for the pretenders Dāwar Bakhsh and 'Azimu-oh-Shan, all the Mughal emperors are represented. The collection is very strong in Akbar's silver and copper series, and the compiler of the Catalogue tells us that the 618 silver coins of Jahangir are the glory of the cabinet.

A first attempt to arrange and catalogue the collection was made by Mr. Burn in 1899, and the present work is based upon his classification and the able works of H. Nelson Wright and R. B. Whitehead. Mr. John Allan, of the British Museum, and Mr. W. E. M. Campbell, have seen the volumes through the press.

The plates are excellent in every respect, and the whole a real credit to the compiler and to the publisher.

A new Periodical :

MISCELLANEA NUMISMATICA. Periodico mensile diretto da M. Cagiati. Redattore Capo N. Borrelli. Villino Mandara a Posillipo. Napoli.

No one interested in Italian numismatics can afford not to subscribe to Prof. Memmo Cagiati's new periodical, which we sincerely welcome, and recommend, feeling sure that it will meet with a wide support.

It may be truly said that Prof. Cagiati has done more than any other Italian numismatist to promote interest in that branch of study and his efforts have been duly rewarded. There was a time when very little attention was paid to the coins of Naples, the Two-Sicilies, and Italian southern states; but since the publication of that most important work of our distinguished confrère, "Monete del Reame delle Due Sicilie" the reverse is the case.

"Miscellanea Numismatica" is intended to serve as a medium between students and collectors; it will be chiefly devoted to the subject of Southern Italian coins, so as to form a complement to Prof. Cagiati's great work; it will bring before the readers the latest numismatic news and notices of the most recent numismatic publications.

The first number which we have before us is excellent and promises well: 16 pages 4to, with numerous illustrations in the text, good print, etc. The papers, contributed chiefly by Prof. Cagiati, comprise :

Editorial notice to intending subscribers.

Unpublished coins in the Cagiati collection.

The coins struck at the mint of Salerno.

To beginners in the study of numismatics.

Obituary : Vittorio Alfieri.

Reviews of Books, Periodicals and Catalogues.

The covers are devoted to advertisements, with the special feature of private advertisements for collectors wishing to purchase or exchange.

The price is 15 lire per annum, which at the present exchange works out at less than 3/.

We trust that subscribers to the Numismatic Circular reading Italian will favour us with their orders for Prof. Cagiati's new magazine, the circulation of which in this country we should very much like to extend.

GRAINS AND GRAMMES. A Table of Equivalents for the Use of Numismatists. London, 1920. Small 8vo. Printed by order of the Trustees of the British Museum. 3/ net.

Mr. G. F. Hill, Keeper of Coins, in a short preface to this work, states that "This Table of Equivalents is intended to facilitate the use, by metrologists, of the older volumes of the British Museum Catalogue of Coins especially, and generally of English works on numismatics, in which the weights of coins are given in Troy grains to one place of decimals. As all metrological investigation is now conducted according to the metric system, it is necessary to convert these data into their metric equivalents".

At the end of the book has been appended the Table for converting English inches into millimetres and the measures of Mionnet's scale.

It would be desirable if all new English works on numismatics were to register the weight of coins in both grains and grammes, as I am doing in the forthcoming Catalogue of the Weber Collection, and for this purpose the little book before us is invaluable.

NUMISMATIC SOCIETIES, MUSEUMS, &c.

ROYAL NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

Oct. 21. Sir Charles Oman, M.P., K.B.E., President, in the Chair.

Messrs. J. C. Lewis and K. D. Stewart were elected Fellows of the Society.

Mr. Henry Garside showed a pattern nickel half anna of India, 1908.

Dr. Codrington exhibited a small bronze medal of Antony Durand :

Obv. AD in monogram. Arms below : NUMISMATICUS around. Rev. Londinium in monogram : NATUS ANNO MDCCCIV around, presented by him to the Society in October, 1862, of which only 14 specimens were struck, and read the following note on him : —

"According to a necrology in the Revue Belge de Numismatique, 1875, A. Durand was born in London in 1804. He travelled a good deal and made a large collection of Greek and other Coins, Medals and Jetons. In 1863 he settled near Geneva; in 1865 published his Médailles et Jetons des Numismates, in which this Medal is figured on the title page and described on page 57. Having parted with most of his collection of Greek and Roman Coins he made, in their stead, one of the Medals of the French Revolution of 1789 and proceed to make a descriptive Catalogue of them which however was not printed. The MS of it is a fine specimen of calligraphy and careful work. This he presented to this Society. I have not ascertained his parentage. He does not appear to have been a member of the Society but he made two or three gifts of medals to it in the early years, and it is suggested that he was the son of Amédée Durand who engraved many English medals between 1818 and 1846.

Very fine selections of coins of Vespasian were exhibited by Mr. F. A. Walters, Mr. Sydenham, Mr. Percy H. Webb, and the President.

M. Edouard Bernays read a note on an esterlin of John the Blind struck by Arnould, Sheriff of Arlon, in 1346, and copied from a penny of Edward III.

Mr. Harold Mattingly read a paper on the 'Mints of Vespasian' in which he discussed the characteristic features of the mints and attempted to date the issues as far as possible. A feature of the mint of Rome was the constant echoing of the coin-types of Augustus. In discussing the Spanish coins it was suggested that one series at present attributed to Tarraco might really belong to Illyricum. Ephesus was the chief Asia Minor Mint but Byzantium must also have been important especially while it was the headquarters of Mucianus. Tacitus refers to Vespasian's coinage at Antioch and there were coins to be attributed to other Syrian mints. A small series of coins dated 74 to 76 A.D. should, as their types suggest, be attributed to Lycia, which with Pamphylia was reconstituted in the Empire in 74 A.D.

Nov. 18 : Percy H. Webb, Esq., M.B.E., Treasurer, in the Chair. Mons. Edouard Bernays, Colonel E. J. King, C.M.G., Mr. Charles E. Gunther and the Marchese Roberto Venturo Ginori were elected Fellows of the Society.

Mr. Henry Garside exhibited an Egyptian gold 100 piastre piece of 1916.

Mr. G. C. Haines showed a silver medallion of Valentinian II. Obv. VALENTINIANVS P.F. AVG. Rev. VIRTVS EXERCITVS : — TRPS.

Mr. Fredk. A. Walters, F.S.A., showed two profile groats of Henry VII. 1. Obv. Mm. lys. Rev. Greyhound's head, a very rare mm. 2. Obv. Pheon. Rev. Mm. pheon and cross-crosslet, a rare and interesting combination.

Rev. Edgar Rogers exhibited three Seleucid tetradrachms of the winged diadem type; one of Antiochus Theos, symbol, feeding horse (Larissa) and two Hierax, symbols, bee (Gentinus) and owl (Sigeium).

Mr. J. Allan exhibited on behalf of Mr. C. S. Gifford of Boston the half dollar issued to commemorate the Mayflower tercentenary. Half-length bust of General Bradford 1; below, PILGRIM HALF DOLLAR UNITED STATES OF AMERICA above : in field IN GOD WE TRUST. Rev. The Mayflower 1; PILGRIM TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION 1620-1920.

Mr. L. A. Lawrence, F.S.A., read a paper on 'A Second specimen of the Crown of the Rose'. This coin was only issued in September, October, 1526. Its types were modelled on those of the contemporary French écu with which it was intended to compete. It was too heavy, however, and was replaced in October by the Crown of the double rose. The specimen described has recently been presented to the British Museum by Mr. J. Sanford Saltus of New York, who by a remarkable coincidence also acquired the first specimen which he presented to the New York Numismatic Museum in 1907.

Mr. G. C. Brooke read a paper entitled 'PERERIC' in which he dealt with a suggestion by Mr. H. W. C. Davis that PERERIC M might stand for EMPERERIZ M, i.e. the Empress Matilda, Empe- reriz being an old French form of the feminine of Empereur. Mr. Brooke welcomed the suggestion, not, however, as settling the attribution to Matilda, but as providing support for a view which he has already advanced, namely that the legend is intended by the moneymen to be ambiguous, to read either as a legend of Matilda or of Henry I.

BRITISH NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

October 20th, 1920. — Mr. F. A. Walters, F.S.A., President, in the Chair. The President referred in feeling terms to the death, on August 23rd, of Mr. Edward Shepherd, who had been a Member of the Council almost continuously since 1913, and was often one of the Auditors of the Society's accounts. He was an expert on the Greek coinage, and his knowledge and assistance were always at the service of Members. His regular attendance at the meetings evidenced his interest in the Society, and his kindly disposition earned the friendship and respect of all his colleagues. The vote of condolence with his widow and family was passed in silence, the Members standing in honour to his memory.

The President announced that an English Member, who desired to remain anonymous, had forwarded through Mr. Andrew a bank-note for £100 as a contribution towards the present increased cost of the Society's Journal; and a special vote of thanks was passed to the donor for the generous and thoughtful spirit which had prompted so handsome a gift.

He further announced that Mr. John Sanford Saltus, of New York, Officier de la Légion d'Honneur, and a Vice-President to whom the Society already owed much of its sound financial position to-day, had made a further donation to its funds of £113 18 s. 1 d., in English money. A grateful vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Saltus for this welcome proof of his continued generosity and support.

Exhibitions.

By the President: Philip and Mary. Shilling with the date, 1554' below the busts, and the English title only. Shilling of the same date, but of the usual type, with the Spanish and Neapolitan titles, and another, similar, but with the English title only. Shilling or 1555 without the figures of value, and an Irish shilling of that year.

By Mr. Ogden: Elizabeth. Uniface pattern in silver, bearing the crowned Tudor rose, similar to that on Henry VIII's shilling but of Elizabethan workmanship. Sixpence of 1576 with mint-mark rose, found that month during excavations in the Kingsway, London; and a beautiful example in fine silver of the Irish shilling of 1561.

By Mr. F. Willson Yeates: The collection of Elizabethan counters and jettons described by Surgeon-Captain Weightman later.

By Lieut.-Colonel H. W. Morrieson:

Elizabeth. Pattern shilling, mint-mark key.

Charles I. Six shillings of the Tower mint with mint-mark tun; three being of type 3a and three of type 4, to show the different busts. Particular attention was drawn to one of type 3a, the bust of which corresponds with that on the second variety with the mint-mark anchor of type 4.

By Mr. William Dale: Roman copper coins of Maximianus Hercules, Constantius Chlorus, and Galerius, found together near the line of the Roman road at Bishop's Waltham.

By Mr. Henry Garside: British India. Nickel half-anna, 1908. Mauritius. Copper five-cents, two-cents and cent, 1917.

By Mr. Coleman P. Hyman: An official Trafalgar medal in contemporary silver mounting and perfect condition.

Paper.

Surgeon-Captain Weightman, O.B.E., F.S.A., read an interesting paper, illustrated by lantern slides, on "The Patterns for a Copper Coinage in the Reign of Elizabeth," and exhibited a series of them from his collection. He explained in detail the three successive proposals made to the Queen in the years 1574, 1576, and 1601, for the coining of small money. In this relation he explained that "A HALF PENNY PECE" first described by the late Mr. Hoblyn in 1903, was the pattern for the proposal of 1574 for a coinage in embased silver; and that "THE PLEDGE OF A HALFEPENNY" was the pattern for that of 1576 for a copper coinage. He gave reasons for believing that "the so-called half-groat" was, in fact, the pattern for a two-penny piece, and that the example described by the late Mr. Montagu as the farthing of 1601 was really the halfpenny of that year. The remaining patterns were also described and brought into natural sequence.

Later, Captain Weightman, by request, kindly described the collection exhibited by Mr. F. Willson Yeates, who was unable to be present, as: "A numerous and fine series of lead, or more probably pewter, pieces of the time of Elizabeth, the use of which is, perhaps, obscure, but some may be medalets and others counters for reckoning purposes. From the fact that certain of them have a rampant lion within the Garter on one side, and the arms of France on the other, it has been supposed that they refer to Mary, Queen of Scots; as certainly do some which bear a rampant lion on one side, with the arms of the Dauphin of France and the inscription GOD SAVE THE QVENE on the other. There are pieces which bear the arms of France surrounded by HENRICVS DEI GRATIA, and on the other side two intertwined columns, crowned, which might have been thought to refer to Henry Darnley had not a somewhat similar example been found with the arms of France surrounded by CAROLVS DEI GRATIA, and on the other side a lion rampant within the Garter. These two jettons therefore probably represent Charles IX and Henry III of France. Those, however, which show a rose, crowned, between E and R, and the inscription GOD SAVE THE QVENE, must certainly refer to Queen Elizabeth.

Probably the clue to the problem is to be found in the pieces bearing what has been thought to be a portcullis—the Tudor badge. But it looks more like a chequer board, and that it was intended for the board of the Exchequer is proved by the fact that usually in the centre of each of the squares a little counter is represented, and sometimes the legend itself directly refers to the Royal Exchequer.

KENT NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting took place on Thursday, Nov. 11th, when J. Tomlin Esq. J.P. presided over a good attendance. The first event of the evening was a suitable recognition of the honour conferred upon one of our members by the Royal Numismatic Society; and we heartily congratulate J. Shirley-Fox Esq. R.B.A. on his having been awarded the Gold medal.

A suitable room having been offered to the Society, a resolution was passed to accept the same; and it will shortly be opened in the town of Maidstone as the Office and Library of the Kent Numismatic Society.

The auditors and officers for the coming year were then nominated which brought the business proceedings to a close.

The exhibition included six very fine silver war medals all won by men of Maidstone, Mr W. Savage F.R.N.S. having recently obtained them for the Society. Dr A. Spencer Edwards M.B. had on view a large number of silver and bronze commemorative medals including a very beautiful specimen of Professor Roscoe, and some 10 cent notes of the period of the American Civil War.

A reading was given by the Hon. Secretary on the subject of clipping and filing coins; this was taken from an old sermon preached by one Fleetwood to the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen at the Guildhall, London, Dec. 18, 1694, and proved very interesting and instructive. The usual votes of thanks closed the proceedings.

YORKSHIRE NUMISMATIC SOCIETY.

An ordinary meeting of the Society was held in the Museum, Hull, on Saturday, September 18th 1920 at 3 p.m.

The President (Mr. J.F. Musham, F.E.S.) occupied the chair. Mr. Hedley Mackay was admitted a member of the Society.

Paper. Mr. Frank Varley (Sherbwen-in-Elmet) read the second and concluding part of his paper on "The Copper Coinage of France". This portion of the paper dealt with all types of copper, bronze and nickel money issued from the beginning of the First Revolution to the present day. Mr. Varley gave an interesting and scholarly account of all the various issues drawing attention to the remarkable changes in type and denomination which took place at the advent of the Revolution.

Various tokens for 1, 2, 3 and 5 sols issued at the beginning of the Reign of Terror by Monneron, Brezin and Bonne Foy were severally described, together with the coins of the 1st Republic of 1 and 5 Centimes and 1 and 2 Decimes with head of Liberty designed by Dupré who is said to have taken as his model the famous Madame de Récamier.

Of Napoleon I, though there are several patterns and essays in the baser metals no coins of bronze or billon bear his effigy. In the
